Foreword

THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK was first published in 1926. Since 1960 it has appeared in annual two-volume editions, and has become established as an authoritative reference work, providing a wealth of detailed information on the political, economic and commercial institutions of the world.

Volume I deals with international organizations and the countries of Europe, as well as providing the first part of the alphabetical survey of the rest of the world, from Afghanistan to Burundi. Volume II lists the remaining countries of the world, from Cameroon to Zimbabwe.

Readers are referred to our regional books THE MIDDLE EAST AND NORTH AFRICA, AFRICA SOUTH OF THE SAHARA and THE FAR EAST AND AUSTRALASIA for additional information on the geography, history and economy of these areas as well as a Who's Who of influential personalities.

The information is revised annually by a variety of methods, including direct mailing to the institutions listed. Many other sources are used, such as national statistical offices, government departments and diplomatic missions. The editor thanks the innumerable individuals and organizations throughout the world whose generous co-operation in providing current information for this edition is invaluable in presenting the most accurate and up-to-date material available, and acknowledges particular indebtedness for material from the following publications: the United Nations' Demographic Yearbook, Statistical Yearbook and Yearbook of Industrial Statistics; the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations' Production Yearbook, Yearbook of Fishery Statistics and Yearbook of Forest Products; and The Military Balance 1981-1982, published by the International Institute for Strategic Studies, 23 Tavistock Street, London, WC2E 7NQ.

INTERNATIONAL COMPARISONS

The following tables provide a general comparison of population and economic statistics for every independent state (excluding the Vatican City) and every other territory with more than 25,000 inhabitants (excluding the Gaza Strip). An attempt has been made to provide comparable information under each heading and the figures presented refer to the latest period for which uniform data are available in each category.

Area figures refer to total area, including inland water. Unless otherwise indicated, population figures are mid-year estimates. Most of the data refer to de facto population (persons actually present in the area), though some are estimates of de jure population (persons normally resident). Figures for life expectancy are estimates, prepared in the Population Division of the United Nations, of the average number of years of life remaining to a new-born child if subject to the mortality conditions (recorded or assumed) of the period 1975-80. It should be stressed that the figures refer to the average life expectancy at birth for both sexes. In many developing countries mortality rates are high during the first few years of life, but persons who survive infancy have a life expectancy much greater than the average at birth. It is also noteworthy that in all developed countries the life expectancy of females is greater than that of males.

Figures for gross national product (G.N.P.) may be taken as indicators of the comparative sizes of the various national economies, while data on G.N.P. per head provide an index of the comparative wealth and poverty of the countries. Owing to unequal distribution of wealth, a figure for G.N.P. per head can by no means be taken as an average income. Sources are quoted at the end of the tables, but it must be stressed that the data on total G.N.P. and on G.N.P. per head are approximations and may be used only as a general index. In particular, a wide margin of error may be expected in estimates for centrally planned economies, and in figures for G.N.P. per head of less than $300, where the subsistence sector is unusually important and the degree of precision tends to decrease as the ratio of subsistence production to total G.N.P. increases. Figures refer to G.N.P. at market prices, converted to U.S. dollars (using a weighted average for 1977-79), with totals usually rounded to the nearest ten of the unit employed. Data on G.N.P. per head are based on World Bank figures for population.

PART I

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Founded in 1945 to maintain international peace and security and to develop international co-operation in economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

ORIGIN

The United Nations was a name devised by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was first used in the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, when representatives of twenty-six nations pledged their governments to continue fighting together against the Axis powers.

The United Nations Charter was drawn up by the representatives of fifty countries at the United Nations Conference on International Organization, which met at San Francisco from April 25th to June 26th, 1945. The representatives deliberated on the basis of proposals worked out by representatives of China, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States at Dumbarton Oaks in August-October 1944. The Charter was signed on June 26th, 1945. Poland, not represented at the Conference, signed it later but nevertheless became one of the original fifty-one members.

The United Nations officially came into existence on October 24th, 1945, when the Charter had been ratified by China, France, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States, and by a majority of other signatories. October 24th is now celebrated as United Nations Day.

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

The purposes of the United Nations are:

- To maintain international peace and security;
- To develop friendly relations among nations;
- To co-operate internationally in solving international economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;
- To be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining these common ends.

The United Nations acts in accordance with these principles:

- It is based on the sovereign equality of all its members.
- All members are to fulfil in good faith their Charter obligations.
- They are to settle their international disputes by peaceful means and without endangering peace, security and justice.
- They are to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against other states.
- They are to give the United Nations every assistance in action it takes in accordance with the Charter, and not to assist states against which preventive or enforcement action is being taken.
- The United Nations is to ensure that states which are not members act in accordance with these principles in so far as it is necessary to maintain international peace and security.

Nothing in the Charter is to authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are purely the national concern of any state.

The official languages of the General Assembly are Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. The working languages of the UN Secretariat in New York are English and French.

Membership of the United Nations is open to all peace-loving nations which accept the obligations of the United Nations Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

The original members of the United Nations are those countries which signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, or took part in the San Francisco Conference, and which signed and ratified the Charter.

Other countries can be admitted by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. A two-thirds majority vote by the Assembly is required.

Members may be suspended or expelled by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council. They may be suspended if the Security Council is taking enforcement action against them or expelled if they persistently violate the principles of the Charter. The Security Council can restore its rights to a suspended member.

THE MAIN ORGANS

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The General Assembly was established as a principal organ under the United Nations Charter; first met January 10th, 1946. It is the main deliberative organ of the United Nations.

MEMBERS

All members of the UN. Each delegation consists of not more than five representatives and five alternates with as many advisers, technical advisers and experts as may be required.

ORGANIZATION

President of 36th Session (September–December 1981):
ISMAT KITTANI (Iraq).

The Assembly meets regularly for three months each year, but special sessions may also be held. It has the power to adopt recommendations only, not binding decisions. Important questions are decided by a two-thirds majority. Each nation has one vote and each vote is equal.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY COMMITTEES AND COMMISSIONS

MAIN COMMITTEES

There are seven Main Committees, on which all members have a right to be represented. The First to Sixth were appointed on January 11th, 1946. An ad hoc Political Committee was first established in November 1948 and re-established annually until November 1956, when it was made permanent and renamed Special Political Committee.

First Committee: Political and Security.

Special Political Committee.

Second Committee: Economic and Financial.

Third Committee: Social, Humanitarian and Cultural.

Fourth Committee: Decolonization.

Fifth Committee: Administrative and Budgetary.

Sixth Committee: Legal.

OTHER SESSIONAL COMMITTEES

HIGHER EDUCATION

United Nations University Council.

SECURITY COUNCIL

Established as a principal organ under the United Nations Charter; first met January 17th, 1946. The task of the Security Council is to promote international peace and security in all parts of the world.

MEMBERS

Permanent members:

China	France	U.S.S.R.	United Kingdom	U.S.A.
-------	--------	----------	----------------	--------

The remaining ten members are normally elected by the General Assembly for two-year periods:

Until December 1982: Ireland, Japan, Panama, Spain, Uganda.

Until December 1983: Guyana, Jordan, Poland, Togo, Zaire.

FUNCTIONS

The Security Council has the right to investigate any dispute or situation which might lead to friction between two or more countries, and such disputes or situations may be brought to the Council's attention either by one of its members, by any member state, by the General Assembly, by the Secretary-General or even, under certain conditions, by a state which is not a member of the United Nations.

The Council has the right to recommend ways and means of peaceful settlement and, in certain circumstances, the actual terms of settlement. In the event of a threat to or breach of international peace or an act of aggression, the Council has powers to take "enforcement" measures in order to restore international peace and security. These include severance of communications and of economic and diplomatic relations and, if required, action by air, land and sea forces.

All members of the United Nations are pledged by the Charter to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with special agreements, the armed forces, assistance and facilities necessary to maintain international peace and security. These agreements, however, have not yet been concluded.

The Council is organized to be able to function continuously. The Presidency of the Council is held monthly in turn by the member states in English alphabetical order. Each member of the Council has one vote. On procedural matters decisions are made by the affirmative vote of any nine members. For decisions on other matters the required nine affirmative votes must include the votes of the five permanent members. This is the rule of "great power unanimity" popularly known as the "veto" privilege. In practice, an abstention by one of the permanent members is not regarded as a veto. Any member, whether permanent or non-permanent, must abstain from voting in any decision concerning the pacific settlement of a dispute to which it is a party.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The Council held 77 meetings in 1980. Of these, 38 were devoted to the Middle East, seven to the war between Iran and Iraq, six each to Afghanistan and South Africa, and five to Zimbabwe.

United Nations (Main Organs)

SUBSIDIARY BODY

Military Staff Committee: Consists of the Chiefs of Staff (or their representatives) of the five permanent members of the Security Council and assists the Council on all military questions.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL—ECOSOC

Promotes world co-operation on economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

MEMBERS

Fifty-four members are elected by the General Assembly for three-year terms: eighteen are elected each year.

Membership:

Until December 31st, 1981: Algeria, Barbados, Brazil, Cyprus, Ecuador, France, German Democratic Republic, Federal Republic of Germany, Ghana, Indonesia, Ireland, Morocco, Pakistan, Senegal, Spain, Turkey, Venezuela, Zambia.

Until December 31st, 1982: Australia, Bahamas, Belgium, Bulgaria, Chile, Ethiopia, Iraq, Italy, Jordan, Libya, Malawi, Mexico, Nepal, Nigeria, Thailand, U.S.A., Yugoslavia, Zaire.

Until December 31st, 1983: Argentina, Bangladesh, Burundi, Byelorussian S.S.R., Cameroon, Canada, People's Republic of China, Denmark, Fiji, India, Kenya, Nicaragua, Norway, Peru, Poland, Sudan, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom.

ORGANIZATION

The Council, normally meeting twice a year in New York and Geneva, is mainly a central policy-making and co-ordinating organ. It has a co-ordinating function between UN and the specialized agencies, and also makes consultative arrangements with approved voluntary or non-governmental organizations which work within the sphere of its activities. The Council has functional and regional commissions to carry out much of its detailed work.

President (1981): PAUL LUSAKA (Zambia).

FUNCTIONAL COMMISSIONS

Statistical Commission: Standardizes terminology and procedure in statistics and promotes the development of national statistics.

Population Commission: advises the Council on population matters and their relation to socio-economic conditions.

Commission for Social Development: Plans social development programmes.

Commission on Human Rights: Seeks greater respect for the basic rights of man, the prevention of discrimination and the protection of minorities. (Sub-commission: on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities.)

Commission on the Status of Women: Aims at equality of political, economic and social rights for women.

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

The Trusteeship Council has supervised United Nations' Trust Territories through the administering authorities to promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants towards self-government or independence.

MEMBERS

The Council consists of member states administering Trust Territories, permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer Trust Territories, and other non-administering countries elected by the Assembly for three-year terms.

Administering Country:

United States

Other Countries:

China, People's Republic
France
U.S.S.R.
United Kingdom

ORGANIZATION

The Council meets once a year, generally in May–June. Each member has one vote, and decisions are made by a simple majority of the members present and voting. A new President is elected at the beginning of the Council's regular session each year.

The only territory remaining under United Nations trusteeship is the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands which consists of the Caroline Islands and the Marshall Islands, island groups in Micronesia. The Northern Mariana Islands, formerly the Marianas District of the Trust Territory, became a Commonwealth territory of the U.S.A. in January 1978, although it remains legally part of the area covered by the Trusteeship Agreement. The Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands has been designated a strategic area, and the supervisory functions of the United Nations are, in its case, exercised by the Trusteeship Council under the authority of the Security Council.

The Constitution of the Marshall Islands entered into force on May 1st, 1979. The Constitution of the Federated States of Micronesia, four districts of the Caroline Islands, entered into force on May 10th, 1979. A referendum held in July 1979 in the Palau district approved a proposed local constitution, and in January 1981 it became the Republic of Palau. With the entries into force of the Constitutions, the High Commissioner, the chief executive of the Trust Territory, retained only the authority necessary to carry out the obligations of the U.S.A. under the Trusteeship and other agreements. In October and November 1980 agreements were initialled providing for the future self-government of the islands under a compact of "free association" with the U.S.A., subject to approval by the U.S. Congress and by plebiscite in the islands, after which the agreements would be submitted to the UN for formal termination of the trusteeship agreements.

High Commissioner: ADRIAN P. WINKEL.

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The court is composed of fifteen judges, each of a different nationality, elected with an absolute majority by both the General Assembly and the Security Council. Representation of the main forms of civilization and the different legal systems of the world are borne in mind in their election. Candidates are nominated by national panels of jurists.

The judges are elected for nine years and may be re-elected; elections for five seats are held every three years. The Court elects its President and Vice-President for each three-year period. Members may not have any political, administrative, or other professional occupation, and may not sit in any case with which they have been otherwise connected than as a judge of the Court. For the purposes of a case, each side—consisting of one or more States—may, unless the Bench already includes a judge with a corresponding nationality, choose a person from outside the Court to sit as a judge on terms of equality with the Members. Judicial decisions are taken by a majority of the judges present, subject to a quorum of nine Members. The President has a casting vote.

FUNCTIONS

The International Court of Justice operates in accordance with a Statute which is an integral part of the UN Charter. Only States may be parties in cases before the Court; those not parties to the Statute may have access in certain circumstances and under conditions laid down by the Security Council.

The Jurisdiction of the Court comprises:

1. All cases which the parties refer to it jointly by special agreement (there have been six such).

2. All matters concerning which a treaty or convention in force provides for reference to the Court. About 700 bilateral or multilateral agreements make such provision. Among the more noteworthy: Treaty of Peace with Japan (1951), European Convention for Peaceful Settlement of Disputes (1957), Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs (1953), Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees (1967), Hague Convention on the Suppression of the Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft (1970).

3. Legal disputes between States which have recognized the jurisdiction of the Court as compulsory for specified classes of dispute. Declarations by the following 45 States accepting the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court are in force: Australia, Austria, Barbados, Belgium, Botswana, Canada, Colombia, Costa Rica, Denmark, the Dominican Republic, Egypt, El Salvador, Finland, the Gambia, Haiti, Honduras, India, Israel, Japan, Kampuchea, Kenya, Liberia, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malawi, Malta, Mauritius, Mexico, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, the Philippines, Portugal, Somalia, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Switzerland, Togo, Uganda, the United Kingdom, the U.S.A., and Uruguay.

Disputes as to whether the Court has jurisdiction are settled by the Court.

Judgments are without appeal, but are binding only for the particular case and between the parties.

Compliance with Judgments. States appearing before the Court undertake to comply with its Judgment. If a party to a case fails to do so, the other party may apply to the Security Council, which may make recommendations or decide upon measures to give effect to the Judgment.

Advisory opinions on legal questions may be requested by the General Assembly, the Security Council or, if so authorized by the Assembly, other United Nations organs or specialized agencies.

Rules of Court governing procedure are made by the Court under a power conferred by the statute.

CONSIDERED CASES

JUDGMENTS

Forty-six cases have been referred to the Court by States. Some were removed from the list as a result of settlement or discontinuance, or on the grounds of a lack of basis for jurisdiction. Cases which have been the subject of a Judgment by the Court include:

Corfu Channel (United Kingdom v. Albania), Fisheries (United Kingdom v. Norway), Asylum (Colombia/Peru), Haya de la Torre (Colombia v. Peru), Rights of Nationals of the United States of America in Morocco (France v. United States), Ambatielos (Greece v. United Kingdom), Min-Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. (United Kingdom v. Iran), Minquiers and Ecrehos (France/United Kingdom), Nottebohm (Liechtenstein v. Guatemala), Monetary Gold Removed from Rome in 1943 (Italy v. France, United Kingdom and United States), Certain Norwegian Loans (France v. Norway), Right of Passage over Indian Territory (Portugal v. India), Application of the Convention of 1902 Governing the Guardianship of Infants (Netherlands v. Sweden), Interhandel (Switzerland v. United States), Sovereignty over Certain Frontier Land (Belgium/Netherlands), Arbitral Award made by the King of Spain on 23 December 1906 (Honduras v. Nicaragua), Temple of Preah Vihear (Cambodia v. Thailand), South West Africa (Ethiopia and Liberia v. South Africa), Northern Cameroons (Cameroon v. United Kingdom), Barcelona Traction, Light and Power Co., Ltd. (New Application: 1962) (Belgium v. Spain), North Sea Continental Shelf (Federal Republic of Germany/Denmark and Netherlands), Appeal relating to the Jurisdiction of the ICAO Council (India v. Pakistan); Fisheries Jurisdiction (United Kingdom v. Iceland; Federal Republic of Germany v. Iceland); Nuclear Tests (Australia v. France; New Zealand v. France); Aegean Sea Continental Shelf (Greece v. Turkey); United States Diplomatic and Consular Staff in Teheran (U.S.A. v. Iran). At November 1981 a case concerning delimitation of the Continental Shelf, between Libya and Tunisia, was nearing completion; in April the Court had rejected an application by Malta for permission to intervene.

REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS

ECONOMIC COMMISSION FOR EUROPE—ECE

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

COMMISSION

ECE is one of the five regional economic commissions set up by the UN Economic and Social Council. The Commission holds an annual plenary session and brief meetings of subsidiary bodies are convened throughout the year. Specialists seek agreements for later government approval, collect statistics and exchange technical information, both at meetings and through distribution of reports and special papers.

Environment and energy questions figured prominently in the work of the ECE during 1980. The Commission particularly emphasized activities arising from the important decisions taken in November 1979 by the High-level Meeting within the Framework of the ECE on the Protection of the Environment and from the establishment, on an ad hoc basis, of the Senior Advisers to ECE Governments on Energy. Energy questions now account for more than one-third of the total projects in the ECE'S work programme.

The convening in Madrid in November of the Review Meeting of the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe (CSCE) provided an opportunity to assess the role of the ECE in implementing the Final Act of the CSCE. The ECE work programme has been adapted to reflect the provisions of the Final Act and new impetus has been given to many ECE activities as a result.

Other developments include the following:

An Interim Executive Body, established pending entry into force of the Convention on Long-Range Transboundary Air Pollution, adopted by the 1979 High-level Meeting, held its first meeting in October. Work has begun on priority areas such as air pollution caused by sulphur compounds.

Following the adoption in 1980 of the Declaration of

SECRETARIAT

Executive Secretary: JANEZ STANOVNIK (Yugoslavia).

The Secretariat services the meetings of the Commission and its subsidiary bodies and publishes periodic surveys and reviews, including a number of specialized statistical bulletins on coal, timber, steel, chemicals, housing and building, electric power, gas, general energy and transport.

ACTIVITIES

Policy on the Prevention and Control of Water Pollution, the Committee on Water Problems decided to prepare a project on monitoring trans-boundary water pollution.

The Senior Advisers to ECE Governments on Energy undertook an extensive exchange of information, views and experience between member states on general energy problems and examined problems related to a possible High-level Meeting on Energy organized within the framework of ECE.

East-west trade and industrial co-operation developed at a satisfactory pace, although more slowly than in recent years. ECE activities included studies and ad hoc meetings on industrial co-operation and on trade information combined with work in the fields of trade facilitation and standardization.

New emphasis was placed on transport programmes and policies. Customs facilitation, harmonization of standards, carriage of dangerous and of perishable goods and combined rail/road transport continued to receive close attention.

Progress was made in operational projects in co-operation with UNDP, such as the Trans-European North-South Motorway (TEM), a 10,000-km. high speed motorway which should be finished towards the

ORGANIZATION

COMMISSION

The work of the Commission is conducted through its annual sessions and conference structure, through the meetings of its main committee, ad hoc conferences and ad hoc working groups of government officials or experts. Other activity includes field missions, training courses and seminars. Technical assistance is provided for governments, while the secretariat continually provides its services at headquarters in Bangkok.

The nine main legislative committees cover:

Agricultural development;

Development planning;
Industry, technology, human settlements and the environment;
Natural resources;
Population;
Shipping, transport and communications;
Social development;
Statistics;
Trade.

Executive Secretary: Shah A. M. S. KIBRIA (Bangladesh).

Pacific Liaison Office: Nauru; Liaison Officer PAULA E. SOTUTU.

FUNCTIONS

ESCAP's fields of activity are as follows: promoting regional co-operation on social and economic problems, with increasing attention to sub-regional approaches as well as assistance to individual governments in planning and carrying out balanced development programmes. Since 1974, following the guidance of its members, ESCAP has gradually concentrated its efforts in six priority areas: food and agriculture; energy; raw materials and commodities; transfer of technology; international trade, transnational corporations and external financial resources transfers; and integrated rural development.

Also, efforts have been made to encourage technical and economic co-operation among the developing countries (TCDC and ECDC) in ESCAP's activities and to increase the direct involvement of all social groups, especially women, in the development process. Greater attention has also been given to the least developed of the developing countries including the land-locked and island countries.

The post of a Liaison Officer to be based in the South Pacific, was approved by the UN General Assembly at its 34th session in 1979. The Liaison Office was opened in Nauru in October 1980.

Although ESCAP does not itself distribute capital aid, it has helped to set up and attract funds for regional and sub-regional projects that, in turn, provide development assistance. It is also increasingly becoming the executing agency for regional projects.

ANNUAL SESSIONS

At its yearly sessions the Commission examines the region's problems, reviews progress, sets new goals and priorities and may launch new projects.

37th Session, Bangkok, March 1981: priorities for the continued work of the organization were as follows:

1. promotion of the integration of women in the development process;
2. review and appraisal of the implementation of the new International Development Strategy;
3. unified approach to economic and social development and planning;
4. United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries;

5. Charter of the Asian and Pacific Development Centre;
6. role of the co-operative movement in the social and economic development of the developing countries of Asia and the Pacific;
7. role of qualified national personnel in the social and economic development of developing countries;
8. expanding and strengthening the functions of the Commission in the context of the restructuring of the economic and social sectors of the United Nations system.

BUDGET

For 1980/81, ESCAP's regular budget, an appropriation from the UN Budget, was U.S. $26 million. The regular budget is supplemented each year by funds from various technical assistance sources which amounted to about U.S. $22.4 million in 1980/81.

Regional advisers and supporting personnel are paid from technical assistance funds. In addition, a UN Development Advisory Team (UNDAT), for which ESCAP is the executing agency, is stationed in Fiji to serve the South Pacific area.

INTERIM COMMITTEE

The functioning of the Co-ordination Committee was interrupted by upheavals in Indochina in 1975 but the work of the Secretariat in Bangkok continued. In January 1978 Laos, Thailand and Viet-Nam agreed to establish the Interim Committee for Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin to promote the development of water resources of the lower Mekong basin and to increase agricultural and power production in order to meet the needs for reconstruction and development of Laos and Viet-Nam and the economic needs of Thailand. The Interim Committee is intended to function only until Kampuchea (formerly a member) resumes participation in the Co-ordination Committee. At its twelfth session in Vientiane, Laos, in September 1981 the Committee considered the work programme for 1982. About U.S. $400 million of foreign assistance was required to implement the main projects to increase food and energy production. Other projects include agricultural development, irrigation, fishing and navigation.

EXECUTIVE AGENT

Responsible for day-to-day management and co-ordination between sessions of the Committee. Assisted by a staff provided by the member countries, the co-operating countries and the United Nations (UNDP).

Executive Agent: B. A. BERNANDER.

ACTIVITIES

Contributions pledged at the end of 1980 amounted to U.S. $427,715,586, of which some $159.3 million was provided by member states, $193.5 million by co-operating countries, $44.2 million by UN agencies (chiefly UNDP) and $30.7 million by other international agencies (chiefly the Asian Development Bank, the European Community and the OPEC Special Fund).

Data collection is carried out in such fields as hydrology, meteorology, mapping and levelling, agriculture and industry. An indicative development plan for the water resources of the Basin was published in 1972.

Feasibility reports have been completed for the Pa Mong project in northern Laos. The cost of the Pa Mong project (installed capacity of 4,800 MW.) is estimated at U.S. $2,000 million (at 1975 prices).

Thirteen dams have been built on tributaries of the Mekong, mostly with bilateral help from the donor countries. Six more are under construction.

The Committee has undertaken the Nam Ngum project in Laos, the first phase of which was completed in 1971.

The second phase, to provide an additional 80 MW. of hydro-electric power, was completed in October 1978.

Pre-investment preparation for 12 pioneer agricultural projects has been completed for the Committee by the World Bank, the FAO and the Asian Development Bank, with multilateral financial support. Four pioneer projects and part of another have been started; the total current financial commitment for these is U.S. $36 million.

Included in the construction programme of the Interim Committee are agricultural production projects in Laos, Thailand and Viet-Nam for which studies have been completed. The implementation of these would require about U.S. $150 million in assistance.

The Committee also sponsors experimental and demonstration farms in the basin.

The Committee conducts hydrographic surveys, rock-blasting, channel marking and dredging, improvement in cargo-handling facilities and craft construction.

Other projects include mineral surveys, fisheries and forestry, power market surveys, socio-economic and environmental studies and professional training.

(as of September 1979)

COMMISSION

The Commission normally meets every two years in one of the Latin American capitals. The Commission has established permanent bodies with various sub-committees:

Central American Economic Co-operation Committee:

- Central American Trade Sub-Committee.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Statistical Co-ordination.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Transport.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Housing, Building and Planning.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Electric Power.
- Central American Commission for Industrial Initiatives.

Central American Sub-Committee on Agricultural Development.

Trade Committee.Caribbean Development and Co-operation Committee.

Secretariat: Santiago de Chile; branch offices at Mexico City, D.F., Brasilia, D.F., Montevideo, Washington, D.C., Port-of-Spain, Buenos Aires and Bogotá. The Secretariat is organized into divisions of economic development and research, trade policy, industrial development, social development, agriculture (jointly with FAO), statistics, natural resources and environment, transport and economic projections.

Executive Secretary: ENRIQUE V. IGLESIAS (Uruguay).

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

LATIN AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PLANNING

Santiago, Chile

The Institute was founded by ECLA in June 1962, with financial assistance from the United Nations Special Fund, the Inter-American Development Bank and sixteen Latin American governments, and with the co-operation of OAS, ILO, UNICEF and other international bodies. It operates under the aegis of ECLA to provide training and advisory services on request to member countries and to undertake research in planning techniques.

United Nations (Regional Economic Commissions)

Director: JORGE MENDES (Colombia).

LATIN AMERICAN DEMOGRAPHIC CENTRE

In accordance with a resolution adopted by ECLA in 1975, the Centre became an integral part of the Commission. It works in co-operation with a number of international organizations and is financed by the UNDP and the UNFPA. Its tasks are to undertake research and to provide training facilities in the region.

Director: JUAN CARLOS ELIZAGA.

ACTIVITIES

ECLA collaborates with Latin American Governments in the investigation and analysis of different areas of regional and national economic problems and provides guidance and counselling in the formulation of development plans. It also assists in placing professionals and experts in the economic field. The 19th session of the Commission was held in Montevideo, Uruguay, in May 1981, to discuss development problems, including industrialization and inflation.

ECLA has carried out joint activities with UNIDO in the field of industrial development and with FAO in the area of agricultural development. Other divisions of the organization have been concerned with natural resources and international commerce, concentrating on Latin American trade relations with the U.S.A., Europe, Japan and the socialist countries. Considerable emphasis has been given to the promotion of economic integration both within the various sub-regional groupings and between them. Finally, ECLA publishes the Economic Survey of Latin America each year, an annual review of the progress and problems in all sectors of the Latin American economy and of the economic evolution of selected countries.

BUDGET

ECLA's share of the UN budget for 1980-81 was U.S. $42.2 million. In addition, voluntary extrabudgetary contributions are received.

PUBLICATIONS

Economic Survey of Latin America, annually.
Economic Bulletin for Latin America, twice yearly.
Statistical Yearbook for Latin America.
Revista de la CEPAL, twice yearly.
Journals on various subjects, at regular intervals.

ORGANIZATION

COMMISSION

The Commission may only act with the agreement of the Government of the country concerned. It is also empowered to make recommendations on any matter within its competence directly to the Government of the member or associate member concerned, to Governments admitted in a consultative capacity, and to the UN Specialized Agencies. The Commission is required to submit for prior consideration by ECOSOC any of its proposals for actions that would be likely to have important effects on the international economy.

THE CONFERENCE OF MINISTERS

The Conference of Ministers is the main deliberative body of the Commission. It meets annually. The priorities and work programme of the Commission and the implementation of programmes and projects of other international bodies, along with issues of international significance, are considered at alternate meetings. A Technical Preparatory Committee of the Whole representing all Member States was established in 1980 to deal with matters submitted for the consideration of the Conference.

The Commission's responsibility to promote concerted action for the economic and social development of Africa is vested primarily in the Conference. It considers matters of general policy and the priorities to be assigned to the Commission's programmes, considers inter-African and international economic policy and makes recommendations to Member States in connection with such matters. It reviews the course of programmes being implemented in the preceding year and examines and approves the programmes proposed for the next.

The Conference is attended by Ministers responsible for economic or financial affairs, planning and development of governments of Member States.

OTHER POLICY-MAKING BODIES

Conference of African Ministers of Industry.
Conference of African Ministers of Social Affairs.
Conference of African Ministers of Trade.
Conference of African Ministers of Transport, Communications and Planning.
ECA/FAO Regional Conference of Ministers of Agriculture.
Councils of Ministers of the MULPOCS (see below).

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat provides the services necessary for the meeting of the Conference of Ministers and the meetings of the Commission's subsidiary bodies, carries out the resolutions and implements the programmes adopted there.

HEADQUARTERS

The Headquarters of the Secretariat is in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. It comprises a Cabinet Office and ten Divisions.

Cabinet Office of the Executive Secretary:

Administration and Conference Services Division
Policy and Programme Co-ordination Office
Economic Co-operation Office
Office of the Secretary of the Commission
Technical Assistance Co-ordination and Operations Office
Information Service
Environment Co-ordination Office
Pan-African Documentation and Information System (PADIS)

Divisions:

Socio-Economic Research and Planning
International Trade and Finance
Joint ECA/FAO Agriculture
Joint ECA/UNIDO Industry
Social Development
Natural Resources
Transport, Communications and Tourism
Public Administration, Management and Manpower
Statistics
Population

Executive Secretary: ADEBAYO ADEDEJI (Nigeria).

SUBSIDIARY BODIES

Joint Conference of African Planners, Statisticians and Demographers.
Intergovernmental Committee of Experts for Science and Technology Development.
Intergovernmental Regional Committee on Human Settlements.

REGIONAL OPERATIONAL CENTRES

Multi-national Programming and Operational Centres (MULPOCs) act as "field agents" for the implementation of regional development programmes, replacing the former UN Multidisciplinary Development Advisory Teams (UNDATS). The Centres are located in Yaoundé, Cameroon (serving Central Africa), Gisenyi, Rwanda (Great Lakes Community), Lusaka, Zambia (East and Southern Africa), Niamey, Niger (West Africa) and Tangier, Morocco (North Africa). Each centre holds regular ministerial meetings.

CO-OPERATION WITH OTHER ORGANIZATIONS

The ECA co-operates closely with the Organization of African Unity (the memberships of the two organizations are the same) and many other African bodies, notably the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) and the African Development Bank.

It also participates in the work of many UN bodies in Africa and operates two divisions jointly with the FAO and UNIDO.

ACTIVITIES

Policy and Programme Co-ordination

In 1977 the Revised Framework of Principles for the Implementation of the New International Economic Order in Africa, 1976-81-86, prepared by the Secretariat, was endorsed by the fourth meeting of the ECA Conference of Ministers and thirteenth session of the Commission and subsequently approved by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity at its Libreville Summit in July 1977. Implementation of the work programme of the Commission, as contained in the 1980-83 medium-term plan, will continue to seek achievement of a number of objectives, including: the establishment of self-sustaining processes of development and economic growth at regional and subregional levels; the promotion of economic growth and development in ways which will enable governments and communities to mitigate unemployment and mass poverty and to protect and improve the environment; and the establishment of mutually beneficial and equitable relations between African countries and the rest of the world.

The Commission works towards the adoption by member states of certain priority policies aimed at: the attainment of self-sufficiency in food; the establishment of a sound industrial base; integrated planning of development and economic growth; physical integration through the development of transport and communications; the development of manpower, natural resources, technology, capital goods and services; and the promotion of intra-African trade and economic co-operation.

A Development Strategy for Africa for the Third Development Decade was drawn up by the ECA Conference of Ministers and approved by the OAU summit meeting in Monrovia in July. In 1980 the Council of Ministers drew up a plan for the implementation of this strategy, approved by the OAU as the Lagos Plan of Action, aiming at economic integration of the continent—an African common market—by the end of the century.

Population

The ECA gives assistance in all aspects of population work including demographic analysis, evaluation and adjustment of data and assists in the training of personnel through the Regional Institute for Population Studies in Accra, the Institut de formation et de recherches démographiques in Yaoundé, and national Institutes. The first session of the Joint Conference of African Planners, Statisticians and Demographers was held in April 1980. The ECA assists in the development of both national and regional statistical services: during 1980-81 training was given in national accounts (Morocco), civil registration (Kenya) and household surveys (Ethiopia).

Transport and Communications

There are five Trans-African Highway projects in progress in the continent, namely: Trans-Sahara Road (Algiers-Lagos), Trans-African Highway (Mombasa-Lagos), Trans-Sahelian Highway (Dakar-N'Djamena-Djibouti), Trans-Coastal Highway (Lagos-Nouakchott-Tangier) and Trans-East African Highway (Cairo-Gabrone).

These five highway projects, which are at very different stages of progress, covered 33,089 km. in early 1979, while feeder roads into the system extended over 4,273 km.

In the "Transport and Communications Decade for Africa", 1978-88, special efforts are to be devoted to this sector. A total of 561 transport and 210 communications projects have been approved for implementation in the first phase of the decade. Projects consisting of new construction (roads, railways, ports and airports) account for 89 per cent of the total programme cost. An African Highway Code was being prepared in 1981.

The ECA and the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) are engaged, with the collaboration of the OAU, in assisting member states towards completion of the Pan-African Telecommunication network (PANAFTEL). The network will cover 24,000 km. of routes in Africa with broadband microwave circuits and 18 international switching centres and will include satellite earth receiving stations operating within the Intelsat system. A pre-feasibility study was being made in 1981 for an African Regional Satellite System for serving remote areas and improving communications within and outside the region.

Social Development

The African Training and Research Centre for Women was established in the Secretariat in 1975 to involve women more in the development of Africa, particularly through work on food and nutrition, handicrafts, small-scale enterprises, family service management, income-generating projects and improvement of conditions for wage-earning women, the promotion of mass communication for development and village technology. It organizes the African Women's Task Force, a volunteer corps of skilled women serving in countries generally other than their own.

In January 1980 the African Centre for Applied Research and Training in Social Development was inaugurated in Tripoli, Libya, to provide training of high-level personnel required for research and development programmes and to organize seminars.

Joint ECA/FAO Agriculture Division

Major emphasis continues to be laid on the problem of self-sufficiency in food for the African Region. In this context, the Regional Food Plan for Africa, prepared by ECA in collaboration with FAO, was adopted by the African Ministers of Agriculture at a conference held at Arusha (Tanzania) in September 1978. ECA has undertaken the implementation of the Regional Food Plan along with the various intergovernmental organizations working in Africa. Accordingly a study was prepared in order to evaluate the capacity of intergovernmental organizations for implementing programmes, to assess their on-going activities in the field of food development and lay down guidelines for additional programmes and projects. The Division also made a study on behalf of the Secretariat of ECOWAS on the problem of intrasub-regional trade and co-operation in food, livestock, fishery and forestry products in the West African Subregion, and in 1980-81 it was involved in working out how to implement the recommendations made in the Lagos Plan of Action in food security and self-sufficiency. Assistance is given to the preparation of agricultural development projects for various intergovernmental organizations such as UDEAC and the Community of the Great Lakes Countries. A UNDP/ECA forestry project is also supervised by the Division.

Industrialization

A regional symposium on Industrial Policies and Strategies for Internally Self-sustaining Development and Diversification and Collective Self-reliance during 1978-2000 was convened in Nairobi (Kenya) in September 1979. It considered a wide variety of industrial programmes for individual African countries, and evaluated the prospects for co-operation between African countries on exchange of raw materials, training possibilities and joint development opportunities.

The fifth Conference of African Ministers of Industry (1979) gave priority to five basic industries: food and agro-industry; building materials and construction; engineering; basic metals; chemicals. It initiated plans for the setting-up of African multinational corporations in these areas.

A Regional Centre for Engineering Design and Manufacturing (Ibadan, Nigeria) was being set up in 1980, while an African Industrial Development Fund and a Regional Centre for Consulting Engineering and Management are also planned.

The former East African Management Institute, based in Arusha, Tanzania, became the Eastern and Southern African Management Institute in 1980, serving 18 countries. The African Regional Centre for Technology, based in Dakar, Senegal, became operational in January 1980.

Technology

In November 1977 an African Centre for Technology was established, to be located in Senegal; it will assist African countries through national centres in the development of indigenous technologies, the improvement of negotiating capabilities for imported technologies and related areas. The African Institute for Higher Technical Training was established in Nairobi in 1980.

Since October 1979 ECA, UNESCO and UNEP have been co-operating in a project on marine science and technology in Africa; a comprehensive programme was established, to begin in 1982, to develop high-level manpower and form a regional network of research and training centres.

Natural Resources

An intergovernmental conference in 1978 agreed that three ground stations would be built to receive signals from remote-sensing satellites and process the data received; the United States' National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is to provide the satellites. Remote-sensing satellites are an invaluable source of information on mineral, land and water resources.

The ground stations' will be set up at Kinshasa, Zaire, Ouagadougou, Upper Volta, and Nairobi, Kenya; and four regional centres had been established by 1981 to train manpower in the techniques for these stations. An African Remote Sensing Council, based in Bamako, Mali, was established in October 1979; and had 17 member countries by August 1980.

An East African Mineral Resources Development Centre at Dodoma, Tanzania, provides information on the development of mineral resources, practical courses in geology and mining and specialized laboratory services. Preparations are being made for the establishment of a similar Central African multi-national centre. The first Regional Conference on the Development and Utilization of Mineral Resources was held in February 1981. It recommended that multinational mineral enterprises should be established, and urged co-operation in the processing of raw materials. As a result feasibility studies were begun in the creation of financing, investment and insurance for mining institutions, to be submitted to a further conference within two years.

Two Regional Centres in Surveying and Mapping, at Ile-Ife (Nigeria) and Nairobi (Kenya) provide specialized services for an inventory of natural resources.

An ECA/WMO joint project on "Planning and Development of Hydrometeorological networks and related services in Africa" has been in progress since July 1980. This project is to promote the assessment of hydrometeorological data for development of water resources. A Regional Meeting on Drinking Water Supply and Sanitation was held in August 1980 at Addis Ababa: the problems and needs of Africa in community water supply and sanitation were examined and programmes for implementation during the 1981-90 Water Decade were drawn up. The first half of 1980 saw the implementation of one phase of the project entitled "Land and Water Resources Survey for Irrigation in Africa". The overall objectives of the project are to assist African countries in planning new irrigation projects and in improving existing schemes and to strengthen national irrigation services. The objectives are linked with the principle of food self-sufficiency initiated in the Lagos Plan of Action.

Energy

Assistance is being given on the development of energy resources, on planning and efficient utilization. Investigations are being made on development and use of non-conventional sources of energy including solar, geothermal and biogas energy. At the fifth meeting of the Conference of Ministers at Rabat in 1979 it was decided to establish a Regional Centre for Solar Energy Research and Development.

International Trade and Finance

Activities during 1980 continued to be centred on assistance in the promotion and expansion of intra-African and external trade and financial co-operation. A draft programme of action for intra-African trade expansion was prepared for the conference of African Ministers of Trade in March 1980 and approved by the OAU Economic Summit in April. A draft treaty for the establishment of a Preferential Trade Area for Eastern and Southern Africa was completed in 1980. A pre-feasibility study on the establishment of an agricultural commodity exchange for Eastern and Southern Africa was also carried out. Other studies concerned identification of raw material inputs for basic industries, existing and potential products for intra-African trade, and obstacles to intra-African trade. Graduate Schools of Business and International Finance were established in Kenya and Ghana in 1980.

Comprehensive assistance is provided for the Association of African Central Banks, the African Centre for Monetary Studies and the West African Clearing House; efforts have also been made to assist the creation of new clearing and payments arrangements in other sub-regions.

Draft studies have been completed on expansion of trade between Africa and Latin America and between

United Nations (Regional Economic Commissions)

Africa and Asia. In 1980 the ECA organized study tours to specialized trade and payments groups in Latin America and Asia. A draft project on trade co-operation between Africa and Arab countries has been initiated and submitted to the Arab Bank for Economic Development in Africa (BADEA) for financing. A project on co-operation with East European socialist countries was begun in 1980.

BUDGET

ECA's share of the UN budget for 1980-81 was $29.7 million.

COMMISSION

The seventh session of the Commission was held in April 1980 in Baghdad, Iraq.

Chairman (Seventh session): HASSAN ALI (Iraq).

SECRETARIAT

In September 1974 it was decided at a special session of ECWA that the headquarters should be at Beirut until 1979. During the hostilities in Lebanon in 1976 the Commission took up temporary offices in Amman, Jordan, moving back to Beirut in 1977. At its sixth session in 1979, the Commission decided to commence its move to permanent headquarters in Baghdad, Iraq.

Executive Secretary (1980–82): MOHAMMED SAID AL-ATTAR (Yemen Arab Republic).

RECENT ACTIVITIES

The seventh session of the Commission (1980) recommended that a programme be established on co-operation for the reconstruction of Lebanon. Other measures approved included: an environment programme to start in 1984; a programme of action in agrarian reform and rural development for the ECWA region; a regional water council; a committee of experts to advise on programme priorities for the medium-term plan, 1984–89; completion of a census of the Palestinian Arabs and a study on their economic and social situation and potential.

BUDGET

Budget approved by the General Assembly for the two-year period 1980–81: U.S. $14,451,500.

SPECIALIZED AGENCIES

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION—FAO

Telephone: 57971.

FAO, the first specialized agency of the UN to be founded after World War II, was established in Quebec in October 1945. The Organization fights malnutrition and hunger and serves as a co-ordinating agency for development programmes in the whole range of food and agriculture, including forestry and fisheries. It helps developing countries to promote educational and training facilities and institution-building.

MEMBERS

147 members: see Table on pages 29–32.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

The governing body is the FAO Conference of member nations. It meets every two years, formulates policy, determines the Organization's programme and budget on a biennial basis, and elects new members. It also elects the Director-General of the Secretariat and the Independent Chairman of the Council.

21st Session: November 1981.

COUNCIL

The FAO Council is composed of representatives of 49 member nations, elected by the Conference for staggered three-year terms. It is the interim governing body of FAO between sessions of the Conference. The most important standing Committees of the Council are: the Finance and Programme Committees, the Committee on Commodity Problems, the Committee on Fisheries, the Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on Forestry.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: ÉDOUARD SAOUMA (Lebanon).

Deputy Director-General: RALPH W. PHILLIPS (U.S.A.).

The total number of staff at FAO's headquarters and regional and country offices in June 1980 was 4,489, of whom 1,610 (from 114 countries) were in the professional and higher categories and 2,879 in the general service category. In addition, field project personnel, working in 125 countries, comprised 2,267 staff members in the professional and higher categories and 564 in the general service category. Of a total of 373 associate experts working for the FAO, 337 were in the field and 36 at headquarters and regional offices.

ACTIVITIES

The 20th FAO Conference (November 1979) expressed concern at the long-standing problems continuing to beset food production and agriculture as the second UN Development Decade drew to a close. It urged governments to implement the Plan for World Food Security, which would provide for a system of internationally co-ordinated, but nationally held, food reserves to be released in the event of crop failure or high prices. An action programme following up the World Conference on Agrarian Reform and Rural Development (sponsored by the FAO in 1979) was endorsed, and a special Commission established to back the long-term programme for the control of African trypanosomiasis. The pledging target of U.S. $1,000 million for voluntary contributions to the World Food Programme for 1981–82 was approved, and it was decided that a World Food Day should be observed annually on October 16th.

Finance. The 20th Conference approved a budget of U.S. $278,740,000 for 1980–81, a real increase of 2.6 per cent per annum. Funding sources for field programme activities are being increasingly diversified. The UN Development Programme is still the major source of funds, but its share of the total decreased from 68 per cent in 1974 to 57 per cent in 1980. This reflects the increasing importance of various Trust Fund sources and the establishment of the Technical Co-operation Programme (TCP), financed under the FAO's own Regular Budget. Total field programme expenditure in 1980 was $292 million, of which $168 million was provided by the UNDP, $110 million by Trust Funds and $14 million by the TCP.

Agriculture and Agrarian Reform. In 1979 the FAO circulated a study entitled Agriculture: Toward 2000, assessing the implications for agriculture of a faster rate of economic growth in each of 90 developing countries, in order to provide governments with a long-term view of food and agriculture. A revised final version was completed in 1981.

The World Conference on Agrarian Reform and Rural Development was held in July 1979.

The five-year preparatory phase of a programme for the control of African trypanosomiasis, set up by FAO in collaboration with WHO, IAEA and OAU, was completed in 1979.

Fisheries. The widespread imposition of fishing zones extending to 200 nautical miles (370 km.), affecting most sea fisheries under commercial exploitation, has posed many scientific, legal and technical problems which FAO is tackling through its $35 million programme for coastal developing countries. In 1979, over 60 governments were aided by 170 FAO projects involving training, feasibility studies, research and development of small-scale and inland fisheries.

Forestry. In 1979 FAO's forestry field programme comprised 200 projects, with particular emphasis on forestry activities supporting rural employment. The development of small-scale industries has been encouraged by the compilation of a portfolio of plant designs for wood production, using locally appropriate technology.

Freedom from Hunger/Action for Development. The FFH/AD programme aims to improve public awareness of development issues through local groups which encourage personal involvement. It provides facilities for study, research, discussion and action. About 100 FFH/AD National Committees concern themselves with the quality of aid and its effect on rural population, the need for institutional changes, innovations in education. In 1980 35 new projects, valued at $2.5 million, were adopted for implementation, through FAO or bilaterally.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION PROGRAMME

The Technical Co-operation Programme (TCP) was founded in 1976 to enable FAO to meet emergencies, either of natural disaster or project difficulty. TCP reduces administrative procedures to a minimum so as to follow up each request as quickly and flexibly as possible.

By the end of 1980, 952 projects had been approved, at a total cost of $61.7 million. Projects approved during 1980 helped to meet critical situations in Africa (37.8 per cent), Asia and the Far East (23.7 per cent), Latin America (24.8 per cent), the Near East (12.2 per cent) and Europe (1.5 per cent).

OFFICE FOR SPECIAL RELIEF OPERATIONS

The Office for Special Relief Operations (OSRO) was set up in 1973 to cope with the disastrous drought in the Sahel in that year. In 1975 the office was expanded to handle such emergencies globally. During 1979/80 emergency assistance channelled through OSRO totalled $68.7 million, of which FAO contributed $4.6 million under the Technical Co-operation Programme, $49.7 million was drawn from OSRO's General Trust Fund set up by donor countries, and over $14.4 million was contributed by UNDP.

BUDGET

Budget for 1980-81: U.S. $278,740,000.

Provisional budget for 1982-83: $363 million.

GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE—GATTCentre William Rappard, 154 rue de Lausanne, 1211 Geneva 21, Switzerland

Telephone: 31 02 31.

Established in 1948 to achieve a substantial reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade.

CONTRACTING PARTIES TO GATT

86 states; one state has acceded provisionally to GATT and a further 30 in practice apply the rules of GATT to their commercial policy: see Table on Pages 29-32.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

SESSIONSChairman (1980-81): GABRIEL O. MARTÍNEZ (Argentina).

The Sessions of Contracting Parties are usually held annually, in Geneva.

The Session is the highest body of GATT. Decisions are generally arrived at by consensus, not by vote. On the rare occasions that voting takes place, each contracting party (member country) has one vote. Most decisions by vote are taken by simple majority; but a two-thirds majority, with the majority comprising more than half the member countries, is needed for "waivers", authorizations, in particular cases, to depart from specific obligations under the General Agreement. (When the members thus act collectively, they are referred to in GATT documents as Contracting Parties). Outside the Sessions, votes may be taken by postal ballot.

COUNCIL OF REPRESENTATIVES

Meets as necessary (generally about eight times a year) to deal with urgent and routine matters arising between sessions and to supervise the work of committees and working groups.

SECRETARIATDirector-General: ARTHUR DUNKEL (Switzerland).

The secretariat, numbering about 300 people, consists of experts in trade policy and research and an administrative staff. It prepares and runs the Sessions and services the work of the Council and of the committees, working groups and panels of independent experts. It is also responsible for organizing multilateral trade negotiations held within the framework of GATT.

COMMITTEES AND WORKING PARTIES

Standing committees or councils exist to direct GATT work on trade and development issues; to carry on trade negotiations among developing countries; to examine the situation of countries using trade restrictions to protect their balance of payments; to supervise implementation of the various Tokyo Round agreements; to supervise the Arrangement Regarding International Trade in Textiles (Multifibre Arrangement); and to deal with budget, financial and administrative questions.

A Consultative Group of Eighteen, consisting of high-level representatives with responsibility for trade policy in their countries, was established in 1975. It meets about three times a year.

Working parties (ad hoc committees) are set up to deal with current questions, such as requests for accession to GATT; verification that agreements concluded by member countries are in conformity with GATT; or studies of issues on which the member countries will later wish to take a joint decision. Panels of independent experts are often set up to investigate disputes and report their conclusions to the Council. During 1980 13 trade disputes (a record number) were brought before GATT for arbitration.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE CENTRE54-56 rue de Montbrillant, 2102 Geneva, Switzerland*Executive Director: GÖRAN M. ENGBLOM (Sweden).

Established by GATT in May 1964, the Centre has been jointly operated since January 1968 by GATT and UNCTAD.

It assists developing countries to formulate and implement trade promotion programmes; provides information and advice on export markets and marketing techniques, helps to develop export promotion and marketing institutions and services, and trains national personnel.

THE AGREEMENT

GATT is based on a comparatively few fundamental principles. First, as directed in the famous "most-favoured-nation" clause, trade must be conducted on the basis of non-discrimination: all Contracting Parties are bound to grant to each other treatment as favourable as they give to any country in the application and administration of import and export duties and charges. Exceptions—principally for customs unions and free trade areas and for measures in favour of and among developing countries (see Tokyo Round "framework" agreements below)—are granted only subject to strict rules.

Second, protection should be given to domestic industry essentially through the customs tariff. The aim of this rule is to make the extent of protection clear and to make competition possible.

Third, a stable and predictable basis for trade is provided by the binding of the tariff levels negotiated among the Contracting Parties. These bound items are listed for each country in tariff schedules which form an integral part of the General Agreement. A return to higher tariffs is discouraged by the requirement that any increases are compensated for; consequently this provision is invoked rarely.

Consultation, to avoid damage to the trading interests of Contracting Parties, is another fundamental principle of GATT. Members are able to call on GATT for a fair settlement of cases in which they think their rights under the General Agreement are being withheld or compromised by other members.

There are "waiver" procedures whereby a country may, when its economic or trade circumstances so warrant, seek a derogation from a particular GATT obligation or obligations. There are also escape provisions for emergency action in certain defined circumstances.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

The trade problems of developing countries receive special attention in GATT. In 1965 a new chapter on Trade and Development was added to the General Agreement; a key provision is that developing countries should not be expected to offer reciprocity in negotiations with developed countries. GATT members have also relaxed the most-favoured-nation rule to accommodate the Generalized Scheme of Preferences by developed for developing countries and to allow an exchange of preferential tariff reductions among developing countries.

Finally, GATT offers a framework within which negotiations are held for the reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade and a structure for putting the results of such negotiations into a legal instrument.

ACTIVITIES

Much of GATT's regular work consists of consultations and negotiations on specific trade problems affecting individual commodities or member countries.

From time to time, major multilateral trade negotiations also take place under GATT auspices. There have been seven rounds of such negotiations: in 1947 (in Geneva), in 1949 (Annecy, France), 1951 (Torquay, England), 1956 (Geneva), 1960-61 (Geneva, the "Dillon Round"), 1964-67 (Geneva, the "Kennedy Round"), and 1973-79 (Geneva, the "Tokyo Round", so called because the negotiations were launched at a Ministerial meeting in the Japanese capital in September 1973).

Ninety-nine countries participated in the "Tokyo Round". In November 1979 the negotiations were concluded with agreements covering: an improved legal framework for the conduct of world trade (which includes recognition of tariff and non-tariff treatment in favour of and among developing countries as a permanent legal feature of the world trading system); non-tariff measures (subsidies and countervailing duties; technical barriers to trade; government procurement; customs valuation; import licensing procedures; and a revision of the 1967 GATT anti-dumping code); bovine meat; dairy products; tropical products; and an agreement on free trade in civil aircraft. The agreements contain provisions for special and more favourable treatment for developing countries.

Participating countries also agreed to reduce tariffs on thousands of industrial and agricultural products, for the most part over a period of seven years beginning on January 1st, 1980. As a result of these concessions, industrialized countries will reduce the average level of their import duties on manufactures by about 34 per cent, a cut comparable with that achieved in the Kennedy Round of 1964-67.

The agreements providing an improved framework for the conduct of world trade took effect in November 1979. The other agreements took effect on January 1st, 1980, except for those covering government procurement and customs valuation, which took effect on January 1st, 1981, and the concessions on tropical products which began as early as 1977. Committees have been established to supervise implementation of the agreements, and in 1981 negotiations continued on the one major unresolved "Tokyo Round" issue of whether to revise GATT rules on emergency safeguard action against imports.

A new work programme was established in November 1979, giving priority to full implementation of the Tokyo Round agreements, future trade liberalization and further efforts to assist the trade of developing countries; the Committee on Trade and Development is largely responsible for these efforts, and its role was strengthened in the work programme. Two new sub-committees were established in 1981: one to examine any new protective measures taken by developed countries against imports from developing countries, and the other to consider the trade problems of the least-developed countries.

About 80 per cent of world trade in textiles and clothing is carried out by the 51 countries participating in the Arrangement Regarding International Trade in Textiles that entered into force in January 1974 under GATT auspices for a period of four years. In December 1977 the signatory Governments of the Arrangement decided to extend it for a further four years from January 1st, 1978. Negotiations took place throughout 1981 to decide on the future of the Arrangement after its expiry at the end of the year: representatives of textile producers in developing countries demanded that it should not be renewed in its present form, objecting particularly to the "reasonable departure" clause which allowed developed nations, threatened with unemployment in their textile industries, to impose temporary import controls.

BUDGET

Payments are based on each member's share of the total trade between members. The budget for 1981 totalled 41,864,000 Swiss francs.

ASSEMBLY

The Assembly consists of delegates from all member countries, who each have one vote. Associate members and observers from other governments and the international agencies are also present. Regular sessions are held every two years. The Assembly is responsible for the election of members to the Council and to the Maritime Safety Committee. It considers reports from all subsidiary bodies and decides the action to be taken on them; it votes the agency's budget and determines the work programme and financial policy.

The Assembly also recommends to members measures to promote maritime safety and to prevent and control maritime pollution from ships.

The Council is the governing body of the Organization between the biennial sessions of the Assembly. Its twenty-four members are elected by the Assembly for a term of two years. The Council appoints the Secretary-General; transmits reports by the subsidiary bodies, including the Maritime Safety Committee, to the Assembly and reports on the work of the Organization generally; submits budget estimates and financial statements with comments and recommendations to the Assembly. The Council normally meets twice a year.

LEGAL COMMITTEE

Established by the Council in June 1967 to deal initially with problems connected with the loss of the tanker Torrey Canyon, and subsequently with any legal problems laid before IMCO. Membership open to all IMCO Member States.

FACILITATION COMMITTEE

Constituted by the Council in May 1972 as a subsidiary body, this Committee was formerly an ad hoc Working Group. It deals with measures to facilitate maritime travel and transport and matters arising from the 1965 Facilitation Convention. Membership open to all IMCO member states.

COMMITTEE ON TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Constituted by the Council in May 1972 as a subsidiary body, this Committee was formerly a Working Group. It evaluates the implementation of UN Development Programme projects for which IMCO is executing agency and generally reviews IMCO's technical assistance programmes. Its membership is open to all IMCO member states.

THE MARITIME SAFETY COMMITTEE

Chairman: PER ERIKSSON (Sweden).

MEMBERS

The Maritime Safety Committee is open to all IMCO members. The Committee meets at least once a year and submits proposals to the Assembly on technical matters affecting shipping, including prevention of marine pollution.

INTERNATIONAL BANK FOR RECONSTRUCTION AND DEVELOPMENT—IBRD (WORLD BANK)

1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433, U.S.A.

Telephone: (202) 477-1234.

The World Bank was established on December 27th, 1945. Initially it was concerned with post-war reconstruction in Europe; since then its aim has been to assist the economic development of member nations by making loans where private capital is not available on reasonable terms to finance productive investments. Loans are made either direct to governments, or to private enterprise with the guarantee of their governments.

MEMBERS

139 members: see Table on pages 29-32.

Only members of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) (see page 56) may be considered for membership in the Bank; membership in the Bank is a prerequisite for membership in the IDA (see page 49).

Subscriptions to the capital stock of the Bank are based on each member's quota in the IMF, which is designed to reflect the country's relative economic strength. Voting rights are related to shareholdings.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

Officers and staff of the World Bank serve concurrently as officers and staff in the International Development Association (IDA) (see page 49). The World Bank and the IDA have six regional offices at their headquarters in Washington, each headed by a vice-president. In addition there is a vice-president, Projects Staff, who is responsible for general guidance and assistance to the regional offices. His staff consists of selected experts to provide the support necessary to assure uniform sectoral policies throughout the regional offices, and specialists who cannot be practically allocated to single region and project units like population, urbanization and industry.

The regional vice-presidents report to the Senior Vice-President, Operations.

BOARDS OF GOVERNORS

All powers in each institution are vested in a Board of Governors, consisting of one Governor appointed by each member nation. Typically, a Governor is his country's finance minister, central bank governor, or a minister or an official of comparable rank. The Boards normally meet once a year.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS

Each Board of Governors has delegated most of its powers to 21 Executive Directors, who meet as often as required and approve all loans. The Executive Directors are responsible for matters of policy. Each of the five largest shareholders (France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Japan, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A.) appoints a single Executive Director. The remaining 15 are elected for two-year terms by the Governors for other members, each Governor casting the number of votes to which he is entitled. Each Director appoints his own alternate. In the case of the Directors elected by more than one member, the alternate is normally chosen from another of the countries in the electing group.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The Bank's capital is derived from members' subscriptions to capital shares, the calculation of which is based on their quotas in the International Monetary Fund (see page 56). On June 30th, 1981, the total subscribed capital of the Bank was $36,614 million, of which the paid-in portion is 10 per cent; the remainder is subject to call if required to meet the Bank's obligations. Most of the Bank's lendable funds come from its borrowing in world capital markets. As of June 30th, 1981, the Bank's outstanding debt was $27,797.8 million. The Bank also replenishes its funds through the sale of portions of its loans.

ACTIVITIES

Financial operations: the World Bank and its affiliates, IDA and IFC, made lending and investment commitments totalling $13,102 million during the year ended June 30th, 1981, 8 per cent higher than the previous year. Special attention is given to the need to distribute the benefits of development more widely, with particular emphasis on the poorest countries. During the year, the World Bank made 140 loans to 50 countries totalling $8,809 million.

The Bank's operations were supported by gross borrowings which totalled $5,069 million during the year. The estimated distribution of holdings of the Bank's debt by countries at the end of the fiscal year was about 23.3 per cent in the Federal Republic of Germany, 17.2 per cent in the United States, 16.3 per cent in Japan, 14.9 per cent in Switzerland, and 14.9 per cent in OPEC countries. The remaining 13.4 per cent was held principally by central banks and government agencies in over 90 countries.

Technical Assistance: The provision of technical assistance to member countries has become a major component of Bank activities. The economic, sector and project analysis undertaken by the Bank in the normal course of its operations is the vehicle for considerable technical assistance. In addition, project loans and credits may include funds earmarked specifically for feasibility studies, resource surveys, management or planning advice, and training. During the year ended June 30th, 1981, technical assistance amounted to $979 million ($807 million in the previous year).

Although the Bank finances technical assistance activities as part of a loan or credit or in the form of a grant, in most cases it urges the government requesting the assistance to approach the UNDP for funds. In 1980/81 the Bank served as executing agency for 58 new projects, involving commitments of $41.7 million, bringing the total number of projects in progress to 138. The new projects included a scheme for assessing energy requirements in 60 countries, and the first project of the Bank and UNDP in the People's Republic of China.

The Bank continued to act as executing agency for UNDP-financed planning projects in 13 countries in three different regions. While completing projects in Maldives and Zaire, the Bank undertook new projects in the Comoros, Djibouti, Rwanda and the Yemen Arab Republic.

Technical assistance is also extended to countries that do not need Bank financial support. Examples include short-term training; secondment of advisers; transfers of technology, such as computer expertise; serving on evaluation and monitoring panels; and providing demographic, financial and economic advice for project preparation.

Economic Development Institute: founded 1955. Training is provided for government officials at the middle and upper levels of responsibility who are concerned with development programmes and projects. Courses are in national economic management and project analysis.

The EDI has become one of the most important of the Bank's activities in technical assistance. In its overseas courses, the aim is to build up local capability to conduct projects courses in future. By 1979 as many as half of those taking part in the EDI's courses in Washington were teaching staff from institutions overseas.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Each year about 350 Fellows participate in the Washington courses; eight courses and nine seminars were offered in the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1981; in addition, 25 regional and 18 national courses and seminars were sponsored overseas.

New features of the 1981 programme included a course on the management of rural development projects and seminars on the design of rural projects, on the monitoring and evaluation of national economic management, and on the design and implementation of projects for meeting basic needs. Many courses were arranged in co-operation with other institutions, for example a programme on development banking in collaboration with the African Development Bank and the Association of African Development Finance Institutions.

The EDI's expenses in 1980/81 were $10,752,000 and the budget for 1981/82 was $12,504,000.

Director: AJIT MOZOOMDAR.

Consultative Group for International Agricultural Research (CGIAR): founded 1971 under the sponsorship of the World Bank, FAO and UNDP. The Bank is chairman of the group and provides its secretariat.

The group was formed to raise financial support for international agricultural research work for improving crops and animal production in the developing countries. It has a Technical Advisory Committee of 13 experts.

Thirteen institutions doing fundamental research on crops and other programmes to improve food and animal production are assisted by the group: the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) based in the Philippines; the West African Rice Development Association (WARDA) based in Liberia; the International Wheat and Maize Improvement Center (CIMMYT), based in Mexico; the International Potato Centre (CIP), based in Peru; the International Center for Tropical Agriculture, based in Colombia (CIAT); the International Institute of Tropical Agriculture (IITA) based in Nigeria; the International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics (ICRISAT), based in India; the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas (ICARDA), based in Iran, Lebanon and Syria; the International Laboratory for Research on Animal Diseases (ILRAD), based in Kenya; the International Livestock Centre for Africa (ILCA), based in Ethiopia; the International Board for Plant Genetic Resources (IBPGR), based in Italy; the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI), based in Washington, D.C., U.S.A.; and the International Service for National Agricultural Research (ISNAR), based in the Netherlands.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

Annual contributions from members of the Consultative Group amounted to approximately $140 million in the calendar year 1981, of which the Bank was to contribute $14.6 million. Members: 33, including the sponsors, governments representing the developing regions, donor governments, and principal foundations and development banks.

Executive Secretary: MICHAEL LEJEUNE.

Aid Co-ordinating Groups: the Bank has taken the lead in forming groups to co-ordinate financial and technical assistance to developing countries. During 1980/81 the Bank sponsored meetings of aid co-ordination groups for Bangladesh, Burma, the Caribbean, India (twice), Mauritius, Pakistan, Peru, the Philippines, Sri Lanka, Thailand and Zaire.

More than two dozen donor countries have been associated with one or more of these groups. Where appropriate, various international agencies and regional development banks also participate.

The Bank also participated in meetings of the Inter-Governmental Group for Indonesia and the Turkey Consortium.

International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID): f. 1966 under the Convention of the Settlement of Investment Disputes between States and Nationals of Other States. The Convention was designed to encourage the growth of private foreign investment for economic development, by creating the possibility, always subject to the consent of both parties, for a Contracting State and a foreign investor who is a national of another Contracting State to settle any legal dispute that might arise out of such an investment by conciliation and/or arbitration before an impartial, international forum. The governing body of the Centre is its Administrative Council, composed of one representative of each Contracting State, all of whom have equal voting power. The President of the World Bank is ex officio the non-voting Chairman of the Administrative Council.

By the end of June 1981, 83 states had signed the Convention and 78 had deposited instruments of ratification.

Secretary-General: LESTER NURICK.

INTERNATIONAL CIVIL AVIATION ORGANIZATION—ICAO

International Aviation Square, 1000 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal, P.Q. H3A 2R2, Canada

Founded in 1947 to develop the techniques of international air navigation and to help in the planning and improvement of international air transport. Based on the Convention on International Civil Aviation, signed in Chicago, 1944.

MEMBERS

149 members: see Table on pages 29–32.

AIMS

To ensure safe and orderly growth of civil aviation;
to encourage skills in aircraft design and operation;
to improve airways, airports and air navigation facilities;
to prevent the waste of resources in unreasonable competition;

to safeguard the rights of each contracting party to operate international air transport; to prevent discriminatory practices.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

ASSEMBLY

Composed of representatives of the member states, is the organization's legislative body; approves the budget and determines members' contributions; meets every three years.

COUNCIL

Composed of representatives of the member states, elected by the Assembly. It is the executive body, and establishes and supervises subsidiary technical committees and makes recommendations to member governments; meets in virtually continuous session; elects the President, appoints the Secretary-General, and administers the finances of the organization.

The functions of the Council are:

- to adopt international standards and recommended practices and incorporate them as annexes to the Convention on International Civil Aviation;
- to arbitrate between member states on matters concerning aviation and implementation of the Convention;
- to investigate any situation which presents avoidable obstacles to development of international air navigation;
- to take whatever steps are necessary to maintain safety and regularity of operation of international air transport;

to provide technical assistance to the developing countries under the UN Development Programme and other assistance programmes.

President of the Council: Dr. ASSAD KOTAITE (Lebanon).

Secretary-General: YVES LAMBERT (France).

AIR NAVIGATION COMMISSION

Comprises 15 members and three observers.

President: F. CARCAÑO.

STANDING COMMITTEES

These include the Air Transport Committee, the Committee on Joint Support of Air Navigation Services, the Finance Committee, the Legal Committee, the Committee on Unlawful Interference, and the Edward Warner Award Committee.

REGIONAL OFFICES

Europe: 3 b, Villa Emile-Bergerat, 92522 Neuilly-sur-Seine, France.

Asia and Pacific: P.O. Box 614, Bangkok, Thailand.

Middle East and Eastern African: 16 Hassan Sabri, Zamalek, Cairo, Egypt.

North American and Caribbean: Apartado Postal 5-377, México 5, D.F., Mexico.

South America: Apartado 4127, Lima 100, Peru.

ACTIVITIES

ICAO Specifications: these are contained in annexes to the Chicago Convention (see below), and in 3 sets of Procedures for Air Navigation Services (PANS Documents). The specifications are periodically revised in keeping with developments in technology and changing requirements. Amendments affect operation of aircraft, personnel licensing, meteorological services, aerodromes, aeronautical communications, rules of the air, air traffic services, information services, aircraft noise and aviation security. Technical Manuals and Circulars are issued to facilitate implementation.

ICAO Regional Plans: set out the technical requirements for air navigation facilities in the nine ICAO regions; Regional Offices offer assistance (see addresses above). Because of growth in air traffic and changes in the pattern of air routes, the Plans are periodically amended.

European Air Navigation Planning Group: reviews current problems and the need for changes in the air navigation facilities in the European Region.

ICAO Projects: studies of current problems aiming to apply new technology, including: airworthiness of aircraft, all-weather navigation, aircraft separation, obstacle clearances, noise abatement, operation of aircraft and carriage by air of dangerous goods, automated data interchange systems, visual aids, fuel requirements.

Environment: studies have been made on extending the requirements for noise certification of aircraft; another study is in progress on engine exhaust emissions.

Air Transport: continuing functions include preparation of regional air transport development studies; studies on international air transport fares and rates; review of the economic situation of airports and route facilities; development of guidance material on civil aviation forecasting and planning; collection and publication of statistics; facilitation of passenger and freight clearance formalities; and multilateral financing of certain air navigation facilities.

Technical Assistance Bureau: organizes assistance in the developing countries. It is estimated that total expenditure rose from U.S. $40.6 million in 1979 to $53.4 million in 1980.

Chicago Convention: the statutes of ICAO are contained in the Convention on International Civil Aviation, signed in Chicago, 1944; 17 annexes contain the ICAO Specifications.

Legal Committee: studies problems such as liability for damages caused by noise and sonic boom generated by aircraft; legal status of the aircraft commander; collisions of aircraft; and liability of the air traffic control agencies.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION—IDA

1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433, U.S.A.

Telephone: (202) 477-1234.

The International Development Association began operations in November 1960. Affiliated to the World Bank (see page 41), IDA advances capital to the poorer developing member countries on more flexible terms than those offered by the Bank.

MEMBERS

Acc No 75899

125 members: see Table on pages 29-32.

ORGANIZATION

President and Chairman of Executive Directors: Chairman of the World Bank (ex-officio).

Officers and staff of the World Bank serve concurrently as officers and staff of IDA.

FINANCE

IDA's total resources consisting of members' subscriptions and supplementary resources (additional subscriptions and contributions) as of June 30th, 1981, amounted to $22,331 million in current U.S. dollars.

IDA is authorized to accept supplementary contributions from the more developed group among its members, known as the Part I countries: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Kuwait, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, South Africa, Sweden, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A. Switzerland has made loans to IDA, although it is not a member. Part II (developing country) donors include: the Republic of Korea, Saudi Arabia, Spain and Yugoslavia. The United Arab Emirates, though not a member of IDA, has also contributed to its resources.

Voting rights of all members are in proportion to their subscriptions (see page 42), while the supplementary contributions carry no voting rights.

These resources are replenished periodically by contributions from the more affluent member countries. The sixth replenishment of $12,000 million for the fiscal years 1981-83 was delayed, and at a meeting of IDA officials in September 1981 it was recognized that the organization was facing a crisis, since, in spite of advance contributions amounting to $2,500 million from 24 donors and an additional $200 million from other sources, a backlog of credits totalling $800 million would remain unsigned at the end of September.

ACTIVITIES

Principles similar to those of the World Bank are followed by IDA in appraising projects, negotiating its credits and in requirements for procurement, disbursement of funds and reports on the progress of constructions. However, the terms upon which IDA lends are far more favourable; almost all credits so far have been for a period of 50 years, with a 10-year initial grace period and no interest charge; only a service charge of 0.75 per cent per annum is made; credits can thus be extended to countries which, for balance of payments reasons, could not assume the burden of repayment required for World Bank loans.

By June 30th, 1981, IDA had extended 1,079 credits totalling $24,051.9 million. This does not include joint loans and credits by the World Bank and IDA. These are counted instead as World Bank operations.

Lending Operations, fiscal year 1980/81: IDA credits are listed with World Bank loans on pp. 45-6.

INTERNATIONAL FINANCE CORPORATION—IFC

Telephone: (202) 477-1234.

Founded in 1956 as an affiliate of the World Bank to encourage the growth of productive private enterprise in its member countries, particularly in the less-developed areas.

MEMBERS

119 members: see Table on pages 29-32.

ORGANIZATION

IFC is a separate legal entity in the World Bank Group. IFC's share capital, subscribed by member countries, amounted to $392 million at June 30th, 1981.

Executive Directors of the World Bank also serve as Directors of IFC. The President of the World Bank is ex-officio Chairman of the IFC Board of Directors, which has appointed him President of IFC. Subject to his overall supervision, the day-to-day operations of IFC are conducted by its staff under the direction of the Executive Vice-President.

PRINCIPAL OFFICERS

President: ALDEN W. CLAUSEN.

Executive Vice-President: HANS A. WUTTKE.

Vice-Presidents: JOSÉ E. CAMACHO, MAKARAND V. DEHEJIA, JAMES M. KEARNS, JUDHIVIR PARMAR, JOSÉ M. RUISANCHEZ.

Director of Investments, Europe and Middle East: DOUGLAS GUSTAFSON.

Special Representative, Middle East: CHERIF HASSAN.

Director of Investments, Africa I: GUNTER H. KREUTER.

Director of Investments, Africa II: M. AZAM K. ALIZAI.

Special Representative in the Far East: NAOKADO NISHIHARA.

Regional Mission in Western Africa: GUY ANTOINE.

Regional Mission in East Asia: SAKDIYAM KUPASRI-MONKOL.

FUNCTIONS

1. In association with private investors, invests without government guarantee in productive private enterprises of economic priority in member countries where sufficient private capital is not available on reasonable terms.
2. Stimulates the international flow of private capital to developing countries.
3. Encourages the development of local capital markets.
4. Invests in and gives technical help to development finance companies, and assists other institutions which also support economic development and follow policies generally consistent with those of IFC.

5. Commits limited amounts of funds for promotional purposes, to help bring development enterprises into being.

6. Revolves its portfolio by sales of its investments to other investors.

ACTIVITIES

(Fiscal year ending June 30th, 1981)

Total dollar volume of equity and loan investments approved reached $811 million, or $130 million above the previous year's $681 million. About $273 million of total approvals in 1980/81 were for equity investments. The number of projects increased from 55 to 56, of which 29 projects, or roughly half of the total, were in countries with a per capita G.N.P. of less than $626 per year (measured on per capita G.N.P. in 1979 equivalents). There were 21 projects in Latin America and the Caribbean, 16 in Africa, 14 in Asia, and five in the Middle East and Europe.

While manufacturing continued to account for the major portion (44 per cent) of the total number of projects, its share was considerably less than in past years. Ten projects were approved for agroindustry, six for fuels and minerals, nine for financial institutions and six for hotels.

Of the total investments approved during the year, $396.9 million went to establish new operations; $344.2

million to expand and modernize existing plants; and $61.4 million to support financial institutions. The balance, $8.5 million, involved the exercise of stock rights.

The total cost of the projects was $3,340 million, compared with $2,377 million the previous year. IFC contributed $811 million, or 24 cents (of which 11 cents represents syndications) out of every dollar of project costs.

Of the rest, $1,940 million was raised through other financial institutions, mainly commercial banks, and $589 million was provided by the sponsors and through cash generation.

During the year, member countries continued to take up their subscriptions in the IFC's capital increase. By the end of the fiscal year, $373.2 million had been subscribed, of which $283 million had been paid in, raising paid-in capital to $392 million.

FINANCIAL RECORD

(up to June 30th, 1981)

SALES OF INVESTMENTS

At June 30th, 1981, IFC had sold $1,378 million, or 35.9 per cent of its cumulative gross commitments.

Sales and pending sales in the year ending June 30th, 1981, amounted to $393 million.

ORGANIZATION

GOVERNING COUNCIL

Each member state is represented in the Governing Council by a Governor and an Alternate. There are three categories of members: Industrialized Countries (Category I); petroleum-exporting Developing Countries (Category II) and recipient Developing Countries (Category III). Categories I and II shall contribute to the resources of the Fund while Category III may do so. All the powers of the Fund are vested in the Governing Council. It may, however, delegate certain powers to the Executive Board. Sessions are held annually with special sessions as required. The Governing Council elects the President of the Fund by a two-thirds majority for a three-year term. He is eligible for re-election. The President is also the Chairman of the Executive Board.

President: ABDEL MUHSIN M. AL-SUDEARY (Saudi Arabia).

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of 18 members and 18 alternates, elected by the Governing Council, one third by each category of membership. Members serve for three years, after an initial period during which some are elected for terms of one and two years. The Executive Board is responsible for the conduct and general operation of IFAD and approves loans and grants for projects. Meets three or four times a year.

VOTING RIGHTS

The total number of votes in the Governing Council and the Executive Board is 1,800, distributed equally between the three categories of membership.

Thus two-thirds of the votes lie with the developing countries (Categories II and III) which will therefore have a major influence on the investment decisions of the Fund. At the same time two-thirds of the votes are held by donor countries (Categories I and II).

In the Governing Council votes are distributed among members of Categories I and II on a scale partly reflecting their contributions, and are shared evenly among members of Category III. In the Executive Board, the Executive Director casts the votes of those members with which his country forms a constituency.

AIMS AND LENDING POLICIES

To mobilize additional resources for concessional loans or grants for agricultural development. Projects shall be supported which introduce or improve methods of food production and strengthen related national policies and institutions. Financing by the Fund is provided only to developing countries that are members of the Fund, or to inter-governmental organizations in which such members participate. Priority is given to the poorest countries that are in food deficit, for projects aimed to

1. raise food production, particularly on small farms;
2. provide employment and additional income for poor and landless farmers; and
3. reduce malnutrition by producing the kind of food the poorest populations normally consume and by improving food distribution systems.

IFAD is empowered to make both grants and loans. By statute, grants are limited to 12.5 per cent of the resources committed in any one financial year. There are three kinds of loan: highly concessional loans, which carry no interest but have a service charge of 1 per cent and a maturity period of 50 years, including a grace period of 10 years; intermediate term loans, which have an interest rate of 4 per cent and a maturity period of 20 years, including a grace period of 5 years; and ordinary term loans which have an interest rate of 8 per cent and a maturity period of 15 years, including a grace period of 3 years. During the first three years of IFAD's operations, 75 per cent of loans were on highly concessional terms. To avoid duplication of work, the administration of loans, for the purposes of disbursements and supervision of project implementation, is entrusted to competent international financial institutions.

ACTIVITIES

IFAD approved its first two projects in April 1978. Ten projects were approved for that year (amounting to U.S. $117.6 million), 23 in 1979 ($372.1 million) and 27 in 1980 ($380.5 million). These 60 loans were divided between 22 African countries, 13 in Asia and the Middle East, and 13 in Latin America. Technical assistance grants amounting to $22 million were also made during this period.

Examples of projects approved during 1980 include: credit for small farmers in Bangladesh to provide wells, irrigation and fish-ponds; artisanal fisheries development in Djibouti; credit for increasing crop, livestock and fish production in Dominica; settlement of landless families in Egypt; smallholder cattle development in Indonesia; improvement of maize production in Zaïre.

IFAD sends Special Programming Missions to assist governments in reviewing agricultural problems and to recommend improvements. In 1980 five such missions were sent to Haiti, Mozambique, Nicaragua, Papua New Guinea and Senegal.

During 1978-80 co-financing was provided by IFAD for 36 projects which had been initiated by other institutions: the World Bank (24), the Asian Development Bank (six), the Inter-American Development Bank (five) and the African Development Bank (one). IFAD co-operates closely with the FAO and other UN agencies.

FINANCE

The total initial resources pledged by members, valued as at December 31st, 1980, amounted to U.S. $1,050 million, of which $967 million had been paid. Of the total amount pledged, $595 million was made available by Category I countries, $435.5 million by Category II countries, and $19.5 million by Category III.

In order to assure continuity in the operations of the Fund, the Governing Council periodically reviews the adequacy of the available resources. The first such review took place three years after the beginning of operations, as stipulated in the Agreement establishing IFAD. At the third session of the IFAD Governing Council in January 1980, a resolution calling for the replenishment of IFAD's resources at "a level sufficient to provide for an increase in real terms in the level of its operations" was adopted by the Fund's 131 member states. In December 1980 the Council resolved that an operational programme of U.S. $1,500 million should be undertaken for the 1981-83 period. By September 1981, following cuts in allocations by the U.S.A. and other countries, IFAD had come to the end of its resources, but new resources of about $1,100 million for the 1981-83 period were being negotiated at the end of the year.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION—ILO

1211 Geneva 22, Switzerland

The ILO was founded in 1919 to work for social justice as a basis for lasting peace. It carries out this mandate by promoting decent living standards, satisfactory conditions of work and pay and adequate employment opportunities. Methods of action include the creation of international labour standards; the provision of technical co-operation services; and research and publications on social and labour matters. In 1946, the Organisation became a specialized agency associated with the UN. The ILO was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1969.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

President (June 1981): ALIOUNE DIAGNE (Senegal).

Vice-Presidents (June 1981):

Governmental: G. J. OUDOVENKO (Ukrainian S.S.R.).

Employer: H. C. VILLALOBOS (Venezuela).

Worker: F. L. WALCOTT (Barbados).

The supreme deliberative body of ILO. Normally meets annually in Geneva, with a session devoted to maritime questions when necessary. Attended by about 1,800 delegates, advisers and observers. National delegations are composed of two government delegates, one employers' delegate and one workers' delegate. Non-governmental delegates can speak and vote independently of the views of their government. Conference elects the Governing Body and adopts the Budget and International Labour Conventions and Recommendations.

The President and Vice-Presidents hold office for the term of the Conference only.

GOVERNING BODY

Chairman (1981-82): GABRIEL VENTEJOL (France).

Employers' Vice-Chairman: JEAN-JACQUES OECHSLIN (France).

Worker's Vice-Chairman: GERD MUHR (Federal Republic of Germany).

ILO's executive council. Normally meets three or four times a year in Geneva to decide policy and programmes. Composed of 28 Government members, 14 employers' members and 14 workers' members. Ten seats are reserved for "states of chief industrial importance". In 1981 there were 11 states in this category: Brazil, Canada, China, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, India, Italy, Japan, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the U.S.A. The remaining 18 are elected from other countries every three years. Employers' and workers' members are elected as individuals, not as national candidates.

The International Labour Office is the Organisation's secretariat, operational headquarters and publishing house. It is staffed in Geneva and in the field by about 1,800 people of some 100 nationalities. Operations are decentralized to regional, area and branch offices in nearly 40 countries.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR LABOUR STUDIES

Established by ILO in March 1960. The Institute is an advanced educational and research institution dealing with social and labour policy, and brings together international experts representing employers, management, workers and government interests. Activities include international and regional study courses, and are financed by grants and an Endowment Fund to which governments and other bodies contribute.

Director: ALBERT TÉVOÉDJRÈ (Benin).

INTERNATIONAL CENTRE FOR ADVANCED TECHNICAL AND VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Established by ILO in Turin, Italy, the Centre became operational in October 1965. It provides programmes for directors in charge of technical and vocational institutions, training officers, senior and middle-level managers in private and public enterprises, trade union leaders, and technicians, primarily from the developing regions of the world. The ILO Director-General is Chairman of the Board of the Centre.

Director: ANDRÉ ABOUGHANEM (France).

ACTIVITIES

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR STANDARDS

One of the ILO's primary functions is the adoption by the International Labour Conference of Conventions and Recommendations setting minimum labour standards. Through ratification by member states, Conventions create binding obligations to put their provisions into effect. Recommendations provide guidance as to policy and practice. A total of 156 Conventions and 165 Recommendations have been adopted, ranging over a wide field of social and labour matters, including basic human rights such as freedom of association, abolition of forced labour and elimination of discrimination in employment. Together they form the International Labour Code. By August 1981 more than 4,900 ratifications of the Conventions had been registered by member states.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Technical co-operation continued to be a major ILO activity. About U.S. $98 million from all sources, including the United Nations Development Programme, was spent in 1980 for the promotion of employment, the development of human resources and social institutions, and the improvement of living and working conditions. Of the total figure, $59 million was provided by UNDP, $28 million by bilateral aid agencies in trust fund arrangements, and $6 million by the UN Fund for Population Activities, the ILO regular budget contributing $4.5 million. Regional distribution of expenditure in 1980 was as follows: Africa, $36 million; Latin America and the Caribbean, $12.7 million; Asia, $24.8 million; Europe, $1.7 million; Middle East, $6.9 million; inter-regional projects, $11.7 million.

WORLD EMPLOYMENT PROGRAMME

The employment objective has been incorporated by the United Nations as a key policy factor into the Second United Nations Development Decade. The ILO has the role of catalyst in bringing employment considerations to the fore in the activities of all agencies within the UN system, and for this purpose launched the World Employment Programme.

The aim of the programme is to assist decision makers in identifying and putting into effect specific employment-promoting development policies. This is accomplished through comprehensive employment strategy missions and exploratory country employment missions; through regional employment teams for Africa, Asia and Latin America and the Caribbean; and through country employment teams.

The programme also includes research activities which cover eight major project areas: technology and employment, income distribution and employment, population and employment, education and training and employment, rural employment, promotion, urbanization and employment, trade expansion and employment, and emergency employment schemes.

MEETINGS

Among meetings held during 1981, in addition to the International Labour Conference and Governing Body sessions, were the Advisory Committee on Salaried Employees and Professional Workers, the Joint ILO/WHO Committee on Occupational Health, the Joint ILO/IMCO Committee on Training, a Meeting of Experts on Household Surveys, a Meeting of Experts on the Relationship between Hours of Work and Shop and Bank Opening Hours (all in Geneva), and the Seventh Session of the ILO Africa Advisory Committee (Libreville, Gabon). Meetings scheduled for the latter part of 1981 included the Second Tripartite Technical Meeting for the Printing and Allied Trades, a Meeting of Experts on the Safe Use of Asbestos, the Iron and Steel Committee, a Joint Meeting on Conditions of Work of Teachers, and the Third Tripartite Technical Meeting for the Timber Industry (all in Geneva).

67th Session: Geneva, June 1981. Adopted Conventions and Recommendations concerning collective bargaining, equality of treatment for workers with family responsibilities, and safety and health.

68th Session: Geneva, June 1982. Will hold a second discussion with a view to the adoption of instruments on the maintenance of workers' rights in social security and on termination of employment at the employer's initiative.

FINANCE

Net Expenditure Budget 1982-83: U.S. $239 million.

The highest authority of the Fund is exercised by the Board of Governors, on which each member country is represented by a Governor and an Alternate Governor. Normally the Board of Governors meets once a year, but the Governors may take votes by mail or other means between annual meetings. The Board of Governors has delegated many of its powers to the Executive Directors. However, the conditions governing the admission of new members, adjustment of quotas, election of Executive Directors, as well as certain other important powers remain the sole responsibility of the Board of Governors. The voting power of each member in the Board of Governors is related to its quota in the Fund (see below).

BOARD OF EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS

The 22-member Board of Executive Directors, responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Fund, is in continuous session in Washington, under the chairmanship of the Fund's Managing Director. The U.S.A., the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany, France, Japan, China (People's Republic) and Saudi Arabia each appoint one Executive Director, and the fifteen remaining Executive Directors are elected by groups of member countries with similar interests. As in the Board of Governors, the voting power of each member is related to its quota in the Fund, but in practice the Executive Directors operate by consensus.

The Managing Director of the Fund serves as head of its staff, which is organized into departments by function and area. On July 31st, 1980, the Fund staff numbered 1,598 persons from 90 countries.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE AND DRAWING ARRANGEMENTS

Quotas. Each member is assigned a quota related to its national income, monetary reserves, trade balance and other economic indicators. A member's subscription is equal to its quota and is payable in special drawing rights (SDRs), in other members' currencies or in its own currency. The quota approximately determines a member's voting power, the amount of foreign exchange it may purchase from the Fund, and its allocation of SDRs.

In December 1978 the Board of Governors agreed on a 50 per cent increase in quotas, which then totalled 39,011.2 million SDRs.

Drawing Arrangements. Exchange transactions within the Fund take the form of members' purchases (i.e. drawings) from the Fund of the currencies of other members for the equivalent amounts of their own currencies. Fund resources are available to eligible members on an essentially short-term and revolving basis to provide members with temporary assistance to contribute to the solution of their payments problems. A member's entitlement to draw is determined after consideration of its circumstances and its likely ability, with the help of Fund resources, to overcome its problems within a short time.

Drawings are limited by provisions governing both the rate of increase and the total amount of the Fund's holdings of a member's currency expressed as a percentage of its quota. Reserve-tranche purchases (i.e. purchases that do not bring the Fund's holdings of the member's currency to a level above its quota) are permitted more or less automatically.

A member's purchases of currency from the Fund must be repaid by repurchases or by the purchase of that member's currency by another member. As a general rule members undertake to repay within a period not exceeding 3 to 5 years. The exceptions are in the case of extended arrangements. Repurchases are made in SDRs or in usable currencies.

The main devices for assisting members in temporary difficulties are described below.

General Arrangements to Borrow. An agreement was approved by the Fund in 1962, and subsequently extended until 1985, whereby ten industrial members, the Group of Ten, undertook to lend the Fund up to $8,400 million in their own currencies, should this be necessary to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary situation. These General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) may be used by the participants in the GAB.

Stand-by Arrangements. Members may enter into Stand-by Arrangements (introduced in 1954) with the Fund to ensure that drawings up to specified limits may be made within an agreed period provided the conditions of the arrangement are observed. By enabling members to negotiate credit in advance of actual needs, stand-by arrangements have become a valuable instrument in forestalling speculative attacks which would exacerbate or increase impending difficulties.

Extended Arrangements. An extended facility was established in September 1974, to provide medium-term assistance for members in special circumstances of balance of payments difficulty. Whereas the usual duration of a stand-by arrangement does not exceed 12 months, with repayment within a period of 3 to 5 years, an extended arrangement provides assurance of support by the Fund for a period of up to 3 years, with repayment up to a 10-year period. The extended facility is likely to be beneficial for developing countries in particular.

Special Drawing Rights. Facilities for the expansion of international reserves were created in 1969 with the introduction of SDRs which have become established as usable and acceptable reserve assets and as a substitute for gold in international payments. The value of SDRs to a participant in the Special Drawing Rights Department rests basically on the obligation of other participants to accept them from him up to a prescribed ceiling in exchange for convertible currency. Participants are allocated SDRs in proportion to their IMF quotas and may use them bilaterally, in agreement with other participants, to buy back from them equivalent amounts of their own currencies; or to obtain convertible currency from participants designated by the Fund.

Reconstitution provisions—a participant's average holdings of SDRs must not fall below a given proportion of the average of its net cumulative allocation in a given period—are designed to preclude the possibility of excessive reliance on SDRs to finance large or persistent balance of payments deficits.

Compensatory Financing of Export Fluctuations. Under this scheme, a primary-producing member which experiences a fall in export revenue—generally as a result of adverse movements in the world price of a commodity upon which it is heavily dependent—may make drawings which are excluded from the calculation of its reserve-tranche position.

Buffer Stock Financing Facility. Established in 1969, this facility permits members to make drawings in connection with the financing of international buffer stocks of primary products.

Supplementary Financing Facility. This facility entered into effect in 1979, when loan agreements between the Fund and 14 lenders for an amount of SDR 7,784 million were completed. The supplementary financing facility is to enable the Fund to provide supplementary financing in conjunction with use of the Fund's ordinary resources to members facing serious payments imbalances that are large in relation to their quotas. Members can use the facility under a stand-by arrangement reaching into the upper credit tranches or under an extended arrangement.

ACTIVITIES

SECOND AMENDMENT TO THE ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT

The Second Amendment to the IMF's Articles of Agreement, approved by the Board of Governors in May 1976, entered into force on April 1st, 1978, following its acceptance by three-fifths of the Fund's members representing four-fifths of the total voting power. The Fund's articles were amended for the first time in 1969, when the SDR was established.

The Second Amendment revised the Articles in six main areas:

1. Exchange arrangements and surveillance by the Fund. Members undertake a general obligation to collaborate with the Fund and with other members in order to assure orderly exchange arrangements and to promote a stable system of exchange rates and to perform this obligation by observing certain undertakings of a general nature in domestic and external economic and financial policies. Each member is required to ensure that its monetary system does not tend to produce erratic disruptions and must avoid manipulating exchange rates or the international monetary system in order to prevent effective balance of payments adjustment or to gain an unfair competitive advantage over other members. Members must follow exchange policies compatible with these undertakings.

2. A reduction in the role of gold in the international monetary system, including the disposition of part of the Fund's own holdings of gold. The most important changes in this respect are as follows:

- (a) the function of gold as the unit of value of the SDR has been eliminated and gold cannot again become a common denominator for par values of currencies even if par values are introduced in the future;
- (b) the official price of gold has been abolished and all members can deal freely in gold in the market and among themselves;
- (c) obligatory payments in gold by members to the Fund and by the Fund to members have been abrogated and the Fund will be able to accept gold only under decisions taken with a large majority of the total voting power;
- (d) the Fund will complete its announced sale of 50 million troy ounces of gold and will be able to make further sales (see below);
- (e) excess profits on any such further sales will be placed in a Special Disbursement Account;
- (f) the Fund will be required to avoid the management of the price of gold or the establishment of a fixed price for gold;
- (g) members will undertake to ensure that their policies on reserve assets will be consistent with the objectives of improving surveillance of international liquidity and of making the SDR the principal reserve asset in the international monetary system.

3. Changes in the characteristics and expansion of the possible uses of the SDR. To help make the SDR the principal reserve asset of the international monetary system,

- (a) the method of valuing the SDR may be determined by the Fund by large majorities;
- (b) participants are able to enter into transactions by agreement without reference to the Fund and transfers of SDRs in such transactions are not subject to the use of reserve assets;
- (c) the Fund may, subject to appropriate safeguards, authorize operations involving SDRs between participants that are not otherwise provided for by the Articles;
- (d) the Fund has increased powers over the categories of other holders of SDRs, the transactions in which they engage and over the rules for the reconstitution of participants' holdings of SDRs;
- (e) the SDR replaces gold in certain payments by members to the Fund and by the Fund to members and its use in transactions conducted through the Fund's General Department (formerly the General Account) may be expanded;
- (f) the value of currencies held in the General Resources Account of the General Department must be maintained in terms of SDRs.

4. Simplification and expansion of the types of the Fund's financial operations and transactions, particularly those conducted through the General Department. The Fund's holdings of the currencies of all members will be usable by the Fund in its transactions in accordance with its policies. For use of its general resources, the Fund will select the currencies to be sold on the basis of policies that take into account the balance of payments and reserve position of members and developments in the exchange markets.

5. The possible establishment of the Council as a new organ of the Fund. The Board of Governors may decide, by a large majority of the total voting power, to establish a new organ of the Fund, the Council, which would resemble the present advisory Interim Committee of the Board of Governors in composition and terms of reference but would have powers of decision.

6. Certain improvements in organizational and administrative aspects of the Fund. The present number of elective Executive Directors (15) has been incorporated into the articles governing their elections, together with authority to modify that number by a large majority of the total voting power.

GOLD SALES AND THE TRUST FUND

The gold sales programme was the result of agreements in 1975 by the Interim Committee of the Board of Governors on the International Monetary System on the principles for solving the question of the future role of gold. To reduce this role, it was agreed that one-sixth of the IMF's gold (25 million troy ounces or 775 metric tons) would be sold, at the official price before the entry into force of the Second Amendment (SDR 35 per ounce), directly to all countries which were members of the IMF on August 31st, 1975, and a further one-sixth would be sold at public auction for the benefit of developing member countries.

In January 1976 the Interim Committee agreed that the direct sales of gold to IMF members at the official price should be made in four annual instalments. At the completion of the programme, announced in February 1980, a total of 24.5 million ounces had been sold directly to 126 members in four annual restitution sales.

It was also decided at the January 1976 meeting to establish a Trust Fund to provide balance-of-payments assistance, in the form of low-interest loans, to developing countries. The IMF, as the Trustee for the Trust Fund, would sell gold at auctions over a four-year period. It was agreed that the proportion of any profits from the sale of gold that corresponded to the share of quotas of these countries at August 31st, 1975, would be transferred directly to each developing country in proportion to its quota and that the balance would be made available to finance loans by the Trust Fund. The Executive Directors of the IMF announced a four-year gold sales programme in May 1976 and the first auction was held in June.

Initially, the Fund held gold auctions at regular intervals, with about 780,000 ounces offered in each of the first six auctions. Since March 1977 monthly auctions have been held, with 525,000 ounces offered in each auction until May 1978, when the amount offered was lowered to 470,000 ounces to allow for meeting non-competitive bids which central banks were entitled to make since the entry into force of the Second Amendment to the Articles of Agreement.

For the year ending May 1980, the amount to be auctioned monthly was again lowered, to 444,000 ounces.

On completion of the gold auction programme in May 1980, the fund had sold 25 million ounces of gold, profiting about U.S. $4,640 million. Of this, $1,290 million was transferred directly to 104 developing members in proportion to their quotas on August 31st, 1975. The remainder of the profits were available for loans by the Trust Fund. In April 1981 the final loan disbursements were made, bringing the total disbursements to SDR 2,991 million, and the Trust Fund was wound up.

OTHER EVENTS

In December 1980 the Seventh General Review of Quotas came into effect, providing for a 50 per cent increase in all members' quotas, and additional special increases for 11 members. A special increase in Saudi Arabia's quota (from SDR 1,040.1 million to SDR 2,100 million) in April 1981 brought the total of Fund quotas to SDR 60,665.4 million.

In March 1979 the Executive Board adopted a new set of guidelines on conditionality in the use of the Fund's General Resources, whereby a recipient country is required to carry out an economic policy programme aimed at achieving a viable balance of payments position: the new guidelines allowed for longer periods of adjustment and a more flexible approach to the country's problems.

On April 17th, 1980, the Fund's Executive Board decided that the People's Republic of China, rather than the Republic of China (Taiwan), should henceforth represent China in the Fund, with a quota of SDR 550 million. In September the Board of Governors approved a special quota increase for China to SDR 1,200 million.

The Fund resumed SDR allocations on January 1st, 1979, with an allocation of SDR 4,032.7 million to the 137 Fund members that were participants in the Fund's SDR Department on December 31st, 1978. On January 1st, 1980, SDR 4,033.3 million were allocated to the 139 members which were participants in the Department on December 31st, 1979. Together with the initial allocations in 1970-72, there were now SDR 17,380.8 million in existence. These two allocations were made under a resolution of the Board of Governors which provided for a further allocation of SDR 4,052 million to the 141 members in 1981.

In accordance with one of the major objectives of the Second Amendment to the Fund's Articles, the Fund took several decisions towards enhancing the role of the SDR as the principal international reserve asset by improving its yield, providing for a wider range of uses and reducing the reconstitution requirement.

The Fund has also prescribed a total of nine official institutions as "other holders" of SDRs: the Andean Reserve Fund; the Arab Monetary Fund; the Bank for International Settlements; the East Caribbean Monetary Authority; the International Development Association; the International Fund for Agricultural Development; the Nordic Investment Bank; the Swiss National Bank; and the World Bank. "Other holders" can acquire and use SDRs in operations with any other prescribed holder and with any of the Fund's 141 members, all of which are participants in the SDR Department. "Other holders" have the same degree of freedom as Fund members to buy and sell SDRs, both spot and forward, to borrow, loan or pledge SDRs, and to use SDRs in swaps.

During the financial year ending April 30th, 1980, the volume of the Fund's financial activity reached a record SDR 9,675.8 million, of which a major proportion (SDR 5,648.3 million) was on account of developing countries. As repurchases totalled SDR 3,775.8 million during the year, the Fund was a net supplier of SDR 5,900 million of liquidity. All purchases from the general resources account during the financial year, which amounted to SDR 2,433.3 million, were made by developing countries, with the exception of an SDR 49 million reserve tranche purchase.

ADVISORY COMMITTEES

Interim Committee

The Interim Committee of the Fund's Board of Governors met twice in 1979. During its meeting in March in Washington, the Committee considered the plan of a substitution account, to be administered by the Fund, that would accept deposits of U.S. dollars from members of the Fund on a voluntary basis in exchange for an equivalent amount of SDR-denominated claims. The purpose of such an account, the Committee found, would be to take a further step toward making the SDR the principal reserve asset in the international monetary system. At its October meeting in Belgrade, the Committee concluded that a substitution account, if properly designed, could contribute to an improvement of the international monetary system. During its meeting in Hamburg in April 1980, the Committee recommended that the currency "baskets" determining the interest rate and valuation of the SDR should be identical, to enhance the attractiveness of the SDR. The Fund's Executive Board decided in September that the valuation basket should be reduced from sixteen to the same five currencies which determine the interest rate (the U.S. dollar, the pound sterling, the French franc, the Deutsche Mark and the Japanese yen). The change duly became effective from January 1st, 1981. At its September meeting in Washington the Committee endorsed the Executive Board's conclusion that members could borrow up to 200 per cent of quota per year over a three-year period.

Chairman: ALLAN J. MACEachEN (Canada).

Development Committee

The Joint Fund-World Bank Committee on the Transfer of Real Resources to Developing Countries (Development Committee) meets generally at the same time as the Interim Committee. It has examined the current economic situation and prospects of developing countries. The Committee has been particularly concerned about the situation of developing countries which were not oil producers. Many such countries had incurred large balance of payments deficits on current account for several years in succession.

Discussion at its meeting in September 1979 centred on stabilization of the export earnings of developing countries, and on development policy. The Committee urged the Fund's Executive Board to increase the maximum repurchase period under the extended Fund facility from eight to ten years and to develop means of lowering the interest costs of the Fund's supplementary financing facility.

Chairman: DAVID IBARRA MUÑOZ (Mexico).

Executive Secretary: HANS ERIK KASTOFF (Denmark).

GENERAL ACCOUNT

Drawings on the Fund's General Account during the year ending April 30th, 1980, totalled SDR 2,433.3 million while repurchases totalled SDR 3,775.8 million. Total drawings since the beginning of Fund operations reached SDR 51,119 million at the end of April 1980, with repurchases totalling SDR 32,335 million. Stand-by arrangements for 15 countries, totalling SDR 633.9 million, were in effect on April 30th, 1979.

SPECIAL DRAWING ACCOUNT

In transactions between participants during the year ending April 30th, 1979, a total of SDR 1,533.0 million was transferred in transactions by agreement between the participants concerned. In other transactions between participants, members used a total of SDR 1,079.9 million to acquire currency through the designation process.

The General Account's holdings of SDRs as of April 30th, 1980, were SDR 1,407.0 million.

TRAINING FACILITIES

The IMF Institute offers training facilities to officials of member governments and their financial organizations. The major course is on financial analysis and policy. Two shorter courses are also given on balance of payments methodology and public finance. Training and technical assistance to member countries is also extended by the Central Banking service, the Fiscal Affairs Department and the Bureau of Statistics. A number of other departments in the Fund also provide member governments with technical services in their areas of special competence, including the Exchange and Trade Relations Department, the Legal Department and the Treasurer's Department.

INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATION UNION—ITU

Place des Nations, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

Telephone: 41 22 99 51 11.

Founded in 1865, ITU became a Specialized Agency of the UN in 1947. It acts to encourage world co-operation in the use of telecommunication, to promote technical development and to harmonize national policies in the field.

MEMBERS

155 members: see Table on pages 29–32.

ORGANIZATION

PLENIPOTENTIARY CONFERENCE

The supreme organ of ITU; meets about every five years. Each member has one vote at the Conference, whose main tasks are to approve budget policy and accounts, to negotiate with other international organizations, and generally direct policy.

WORLD ADMINISTRATIVE CONFERENCES

The Administrative Telegraph and Telephone Conference: revises telegraph and telephone regulations.

World Administrative Radio Conference: revises radio regulations and reviews the activities of the International Frequency Registration Board.

World Administrative Conferences meet at irregular intervals according to technical needs, and there may also be regional Administrative Conferences held ad hoc.

A ten-week World Administrative Radio Conference (WARC) was held in September and November 1979 to undertake the most complete revision of the radio spectrum allocation to be made since 1959. The results of this conference will govern the planning and operation of radio communication services (radio navigation, broadcasting, mobile radio and satellites) for the rest of the century.

ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

The Administrative Council meets annually in Geneva; the 36th session was held in June 1981. The Council is composed of 36 members elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference.

The Council helps the implementation of the Convention's provisions, and executes the decisions of the Plenipotentiary Conference and, where appropriate, the decisions of the conferences and meetings of the Union. It conducts relations with other international organizations, and approves the annual budget.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: MOHAMED MLI (Tunisia).

Deputy Secretary-General: RICHARD E. BUTLER (Australia).

Chief, Department of External Relations: JOHN FRANCIS.

Chief, Department of Conferences and Common Services: R. PROVENCHER (U.S.A.).

The Secretary-General is elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference, and is responsible to it for the General Secretariat's work, and for the Union's administrative and financial services. The General Secretariat's staff totals 461; the working languages are English, French and Spanish.

INTERNATIONAL FREQUENCY REGISTRATION BOARD (IFRB)

Chairman: PETER SERGEEVICH KURAKOV; 5 mems.; number of staff 93.

IFRB records assignments of radio frequencies and provides technical advice to enable members of the Union to operate as many radio channels as possible in overcrowded parts of the radio spectrum. It also investigates cases of harmful interference and makes recommendations for their solution.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

ITU's programme of technical co-operation in developing countries is carried out within the framework of UNDP.

In 1980, 630 experts were on mission, 650 fellows were undergoing training abroad and U.S. $8,903,467 worth of equipment was delivered. The total cost of this assistance amounted to $33,352,764.

The three main objectives of ITU's activity in the field of technical co-operation continued to be: (a) promoting the development of regional telecommunication networks in Africa, Asia and Latin America; (b) strengthening telecommunications technical and administrative services

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCITT)

Director: LÉON BURTZ (France); number of staff 42.

CCITT is currently organizing 18 study groups covering transmission problems, operation and tariffs, maintenance, electromagnetic dangers, protection of equipment, definitions, vocabulary and symbols, apparatus, local connecting lines, facsimile and photo-telegraphy, quality of transmission, specifications, telegraph and telex switching, telephone signalling and switching and planning the development of an international network. It has its own telephony laboratory.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCIR)

Director: RICHARD C. KIRBY (U.S.A.); number of staff 26.

The work of CCIR is done by 11 study groups covering spectrum utilization and monitoring; space research and radio astronomy services; fixed services below about 30 MHz; fixed services using satellites; propagation in non-ionized media; ionospheric propagation; standard frequency and time-signal services; mobile services; fixed services using radio-relay systems; sound broadcasting service; television broadcasting service. The television study group is working on the following matters: television recording, television standards for both black and white and colour transmission, ratio of the wanted to unwanted signal in television, reduction of band width, conversion of a television signal from one standard to another, estimates of the quality of television pictures, etc.

PLAN COMMITTEES

The Plan Committees are joint CCIR/CCITT committees responsible for preparing plans setting out circuit and routing requirements for international telecommunications and for giving estimates of the growth of international traffic. They comprise a World Plan Committee and four regional committees, for Africa, for Latin America, for Asia and Oceania and for Europe and the Mediterranean Basin.

A meeting of the World Plan Committee was held in Paris in April 1980.

in developing countries; and (c) developing the human resources required for telecommunications.

In 1980 44.3 per cent of the Union's field experts were directly engaged in the training of telecommunication personnel in developing countries as organizers, advisers, lecturers or instructors.

Considerable assistance was also provided by ITU in the specialized fields of telephony, telegraphy, radio-communications, frequency management, satellite communications, planning, organization, administration and management.

CONVENTION

The International Telecommunication Convention is the definitive convention of the Union, member countries being those who signed it in 1932 or acceded to it later. Since 1932 it has been superseded by new versions at successive plenipotentiary conferences.

The Convention deals with the structure of the Union, the application of its own provisions and regulations, relations with the United Nations and other organizations, and special rules for radio.

REGULATIONS ANNEXED TO THE CONVENTIONTELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE

The Telegraph and Telephone Regulations were adopted during the 1973 Geneva Telegraph and Telephone Conference. They deal with problems of telegraph and telephone rates and tariffs among ITU member countries. These two Regulations lay down the general principles to be observed in the international telegraph and telephone service. Their provisions are applied to both wire and wireless telegraph and telephone communications so far as the Radio Regulations and the Additional Radio Regulations do not provide otherwise.

RADIO

The Radio Regulations include general rules for the assignment and use of frequencies and—the most important part of the Regulations—a Table of Frequency Allocations between 10 kHz and 275 GHz to the various radio services; broadcasting, television, radio astronomy, navigation aid, point-to-point service, maritime mobile, amateur, etc. Chapter III deals with the duties of the International Frequency Registration Board. The Regulations governing measures against interference follow. Subsequently, there are the administrative provisions for stations (secrecy, licences, identification, service documents, inspection of mobile stations).

Chapters VI and VII are concerned with personnel and working conditions in the mobile services, and Chapter VIII with radio assistance in life saving. The last two chapters deal with radiotelegrams and radiotelephone calls and miscellaneous stations and services. Partial revisions of the Radio Regulations are in force for Space Services (1965, 1973), the Aeronautical Mobile Services (1967), the Maritime Mobile Service (1969, 1974) and Broadcasting (1975).

UNITED NATIONS EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION—UNESCO

7 place de Fontenoy, 75700 Paris

Telephone: 270002, 204461.

UNESCO was established in 1946 "for the purpose of advancing, through the educational, scientific and cultural relations of the peoples of the world, the objectives of international peace and the common welfare of mankind".

FUNCTIONS

UNESCO's activities, which take three main forms as outlined below, are funded through a regular budget provided by member states and also through other sources, particularly the UNDP.

International Intellectual Co-operation

UNESCO assists the interchange of experience, knowledge and ideas through a world network of specialists. Apart from the work of its professional staff, UNESCO co-operates regularly with the national associations and international federations of scientists, artists, writers and educators, some of which it helped to establish.

UNESCO convenes conferences and meetings, and co-ordinates international scientific efforts; it helps to standardize procedures of documentation and provides clearing house services; it offers fellowships; and it publishes a wide range of specialized works, including source books and works of reference.

UNESCO promotes various international agreements, including the International Copyright Convention and the World Cultural and National Heritage Convention, which member states are invited to accept.

Operational Assistance

UNESCO has established missions which advise governments, particularly in the developing member countries, in the planning of projects; and it appoints experts to assist in carrying them out. The projects are concerned with the teaching of functional literacy to workers in development undertakings; teacher training; establishing of libraries and documentation centres; provision of training for journalists, radio, television and film workers; improvement of scientific and technical education; training of planners in cultural development; and the international exchange of persons and information.

Promotion of Peace

UNESCO organizes various research efforts on racial problems, and is particularly concerned with prevention of discrimination in education, and improving access for women to education. It also promotes studies and research on conflicts and peace, violence and obstacles to disarmament, and the role of international law and organizations in building peace. It is stressed that human rights, peace and disarmament cannot be dealt with separately, as the observance of human rights is a prerequisite to peace and vice versa.

MEMBERS

153 members and one associate member: see Table on pages 29–32.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

GENERAL CONFERENCE

The supreme governing body of the Organization. Meets in ordinary session once in two years and is composed of representatives of the member states. Twenty-first Session: Belgrade, 1980.

President: Dr. Ivo MARGAN (Yugoslavia).

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of 45 members. Prepares the programme to be submitted to the Conference and supervises its execution. Meets twice or sometimes three times a year.

Chairman: VICTOR MASSUH (Argentina).

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: AMADOU MAHTAR M'BOW (Senegal).

Deputy Director-General: FEDERICO MAYOR (Spain).

Director of the Executive Office: CHIKH BEKRI (Algeria).

The Director-General has an international staff of 3,600 civil servants. Of the professional staff (specialists in various disciplines and administrators), about two-thirds are away from headquarters on technical assistance missions to member states.

Assistant Directors-General:

Studies and Programming: J. KNAPP (France).

Education: SIOMA TANGUANE (U.S.S.R.).

Natural Sciences and their Application to Development: ABDUL-RAZZAK KADDOURA (Syria).

Social Sciences and their Applications: RODOLFO STAV-ENHAGEN (Mexico).

Culture and Communication: MAKAMINAN MAKAGIANSAR (Indonesia).

Co-operation for Development and External Relations: DRAGOLJUB NAJMAN (Yugoslavia).

Administration and Programme Support: GOLLERKERY VISHVANATH RAO (India).

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

CO-OPERATING BODIES

In accordance with UNESCO's Constitution, national Commissions have been set up in most member states. These help to integrate work within the member states and the work of UNESCO.

ACTIVITIES

About 200 issues of periodicals and 100 new publications are produced annually, and about 80 meetings and conferences and 30 seminars are held; close relations are maintained with 402 non-governmental organizations, some carrying out projects for UNESCO programmes.

Education. This sector receives roughly a third of the combined budgetary allocation for UNESCO's programmes (see budget, below); during 1981-83 this sector was to administer an estimated $173,219,800 worth of educational projects, roughly equivalent to one third of the allocation for all UNESCO's programmes, on behalf of other sources, largely the UNDP.

UNESCO has an overall policy of regarding education as a lifelong process. As an example, one implication is the increasing priority given to pre-primary training. This approach has been the guideline for many of the projects recently planned.

Each year expert missions are sent to member states on request to advise on all matters concerning education. They also help with programmes for training abroad, and UNESCO provides study fellowships; in these forms of assistance priority is given to the rural regions of developing member countries.

Natural Sciences and Technology. While the main emphasis in UNESCO's work in science and technology is on harnessing these to development, and above all on meeting the needs of developing countries, the Organization is also active in promoting and fostering collaborative international projects among the highly industrialized countries. UNESCO's activities can be divided into three levels: international, regional and sub-regional, and national.

At the international level, UNESCO has over the years set up various forms of intergovernmental co-operation concerned with the environmental sciences and research on natural resources. Examples of these are the Man and Biosphere Programme (MAB) which at present has 900 projects under way in 90 countries, using an interdisciplinary approach to solving practical problems of environmental resource management in such areas as arid lands, humid tropical zones, mountain ecosystems, urban systems, etc.; the International Geological Correlation Programme (IGCP), run jointly with the International Union of Geological Sciences (q.v.); the International Hydrological Programme (IHP), dealing with the scientific aspects of water resources assessment and management; and the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission (q.v.) which promotes scientific investigation into the nature and resources of the oceans through the concerted action of its member states. Another programme, UNISIST, ensures worldwide co-operation in the field of scientific and technological information. In the basic sciences, UNESCO helps promote international and regional co-operation in close collaboration with the world scientific communities, with which it maintains close co-operative links particularly through its support to ICSU and member unions. Major disciplinary programmes are promoted in the fields of physics (including support to the International Centre for Theoretical Physics), the chemical sciences, life sciences, including applied microbiology, mathematics, informatics and new sources of energy.

At the regional and sub-regional level, UNESCO develops co-operative scientific and technological research programmes through organization and support of scientific meeting and contracts with research institutions, and the establishment or strengthening of co-operative networks. Periodically, regional ministerial conferences are organized on science and technology policy and on the application of science and technology to development. More specialized regional and sub-regional meetings are also organized.

At the national level, UNESCO assists member states, upon request, in the field of policy-making and planning in the field of science and technology generally, and by organizing training and research programmes in basic sciences, engineering sciences and environmental sciences, particularly work relevant to development, such as projects concerning the use of small scale energy sources for rural and dispersed populations.

Social Sciences. Since 1976, the social sciences programme has expanded so as to ensure the development of the social sciences throughout the world by strengthening national and regional institutions, the conceptual development of the social sciences, training, the exchange and diffusion of information, and co-operation with international non-governmental organizations. Furthermore, the activities are aimed at promoting, at the methodological level, the applicability of the social sciences, in particular by processes of socio-economic analysis.

The activities concerning Human Rights and Peace include three major projects: firstly, definition of human rights norms and action and study of socio-economic and cultural conditions for the promotion of human rights; secondly, development of human rights teaching; thirdly, peace research, concentrating on obstacles to disarmament.

The programme on the application of social sciences to mankind's development problems, relates to environmental and population issues, and it lays stress upon the study of the socio-cultural bases to the establishment of a new international economic order.

Activities related to women in societies correspond to the three objectives set for the UN Decade for Women, namely: promotion of equality, their participation in development and their contribution to peace. Youth programmes are also under way in co-operation with member states and international non-governmental organizations.

Culture and Communication

Culture: A programme begun in 1973 seeks to speed the change in the role of culture, from the activity of an élite in society to a necessity claimed by all. This involves the training of specialists in cultural development, arts administration and the organization of cultural events.

The Secretariat also runs studies on the situation of the artist in society, various problems of artistic creation and various new possibilities in creative work which have been made by new technology. To widen the appreciation of painting, UNESCO publishes catalogues of colour reproductions and organizes travelling exhibitions of reproductions of famous paintings.

In another programme, translations of important literary works of the world are produced.

An established programme investigates cultures of Asia, Latin America, Europe, Africa and the Arab world. A group of experts is working on an eight-volume General History of Africa, the first two volumes of which were published in 1980. There is also a ten-year programme to promote the study of African languages and oral traditions and to encourage the teaching of these subjects throughout the world.

There are also studies on problems involved in international exchanges of works of art, the preservation of historic quarters or cities, and the protection of works of art from theft.

UNESCO is also concerned with efforts to preserve architectural monuments. It is taking part in a project to transfer to safety a group of temples that are threatened by rising water levels at Philae in Egypt; and in the international campaigns to save the ancient buildings of Borobudur, Indonesia, the Parthenon, Greece, Moenjodaro, Pakistan, and several buildings in Venice, Italy.

As part of a programme aiming to stimulate the production and reading of books, an international committee of publishers, authors, librarians and booksellers has been set up.

Communication: UNESCO's programme aims at fostering a free flow and a wider and better balanced exchange of information among individuals, communities and countries, and focuses on the role of the mass media in furthering international understanding and peace. The international movement of persons and circulation of materials are promoted through measures for the reduction of obstacles of a legislative, administrative or economic nature.

Assistance is provided to member states in the formulation of national communication policies, and a series of regional intergovernmental conferences on this subject has been organized since 1976. UNESCO also promotes research in the field of communication, and for this purpose has been instrumental in setting up an International Network of Documentation Centres on Communication Research and Policies.

UNESCO co-operates with member states, particularly in the developing countries, in strengthening and expanding their communication systems, and for this purpose executes a number of programmes both in individual countries and at the regional and sub-regional levels, to provide advisory services and help advance professional training in communication skills.

In 1977 UNESCO set up a sixteen-member International Commission for the Study of Communication Problems whose final report was published in June 1980. At the General Conference in October 1980 a "New World Information and Communication Order" (NWICO) (including plans for an international code of journalistic ethics and for the "licensing" of journalists) was approved, in spite of objections from the United Kingdom and U.S.A.; those in favour of NWICO argued that established agencies and commercial interests had too much control over news and information, while their opponents maintained that the new proposals infringed press freedom. Following the approval of NWICO, the Intergovernmental Programme for the Development of Communication was established and held its first council meeting with representatives of 35 states in June 1981.

Bureau of Studies and Programming

Information Systems and Services: UNESCO's General Information Programme is an intergovernmental programme concerned with the development and promotion of information systems and services in the fields of scientific and technological information, documentation, libraries and archives at the national, regional and international levels. Its activities, including those directed to the development of UNISIST, fall into the following categories: promotion of the formulation of information policies and plans; promotion and dissemination of methods, norms and standards for information handling; contribution to the development of information infrastructures; contribution to the development of specialized information systems; promotion of the training and education of information specialists and users.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

Since the Intergovernmental Conference on Scientific and Technological Information for Development (UNISIST II) and the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Development (UNCSTD), held respectively in May-June and in August 1979, the General Information Programme has decided to attach particular importance to socio-economic information and to the special needs of developing countries. Its programme will increasingly favour a user-oriented approach, and specifically, those users taking part in the development process; the programme will endeavour to facilitate the member states' choice, use, and adaptation of advanced information and communication technology.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR EDUCATIONAL PLANNING—IIEP

7-9 rue Eugène Delacroix, 75016 Paris, France

Established by UNESCO in 1963 to serve as a world centre for advanced training and research in educational planning. Its purpose is to help all member states of UNESCO in their social and economic development efforts, by enlarging the fund of knowledge about educational planning and the supply of competent experts in this field.

Legally and administratively a part of UNESCO, the Institute enjoys intellectual autonomy, and its policies and programme are controlled by its own Governing Board, under special statutes voted by the General Conference of UNESCO.

Chairman of Governing Board: Prof. MALCOLM S. ADISE-HIGH.

Director: MICHEL DEBEAUVAIS.

A catalogue of publications, listing over 400 titles, is available on request.

Budget 1981-83: U.S. $4,387,400.

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU OF EDUCATION—IBE

Palais Wilson, 1211 Geneva 14, Switzerland

Founded in 1925, the IBE became an intergovernmental organization in July 1929 and was incorporated into UNESCO in January 1969.

COUNCIL

The Council of the IBE is composed of representatives of 24 Member States designated by the General Conference of UNESCO.

Director: J. B. CHANDLER (U.S.A.).

FUNCTIONS

International Conference on Education. 38th session, 1980: on the interaction between education and productive life. 39th session, 1984: on primary education as an introduction to science and technology.

International Education Library: 90,000 volumes; some 1,200 journals received regularly; 162,000 research reports on microfiche.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL COMMITTEE FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT—ICPES

7 Place de Fontenoy, 75700 Paris

Established by UNESCO in 1978 to serve as a permanent intergovernmental body in the field of physical education and sport.

The Committee is composed of 30 member states of UNESCO, elected by the General Conference at its ordinary sessions.

The Committee elects its Chairman, five Vice-Chairmen and Rapporteur-General, who form the Committee's Bureaux.

Among its many purposes aimed at further development of physical education and sport throughout the world, the Committee is responsible for guiding and supervising the planning and implementation of UNESCO's programme of activities in the field of physical education and sport, promoting international co-operation in this area, facilitating the adoption and implementation of an International Charter of physical education and sport.

Chairman: RAUDOL RUIZ AGUILERA (Cuba).

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION—UPU

3000 Berne 15, Switzerland

Telephone: (031) 43 22 11.

By the Treaty of Berne, 1874, the General Postal Union was founded, beginning operations in July 1875. Three years later its name was changed to the Universal Postal Union. In 1948 UPU became a Specialized Agency of the UN.

MEMBERS

164 members: see Table on pages 29-32.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

CONGRESS

The Supreme body of the Union is Congress which meets every five years. Its duties are legislative and consist mainly of revision of the Acts. Eighteenth Congress: Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, 1979; nineteenth Congress, Hamburg, Federal Republic of Germany, 1984.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Between Congresses, an Executive Council, created by the Paris Congress, 1947, meets annually at Berne. It is composed of 40 member countries of the Union elected by Congress on the basis of an equitable geographical distribution. It ensures continuity of the Union's work in the interval between Congresses, supervises the activities of the International Bureau, undertakes studies, draws up proposals, and makes recommendations to the Congress. It is responsible for encouraging, supervising and co-ordinating international co-operation in the form of postal technical assistance and vocational training.

CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL FOR POSTAL STUDIES

At the Ottawa Congress, 1957 a Consultative Committee for Postal Studies was established, which, at the Tokyo Congress, 1969, became the Consultative Council for Postal Studies (CCPS), whose 35 member countries meet annually, generally at Berne. It is responsible for organizing studies of major problems affecting postal administrations in all UPU member countries, in the technical operations and economic fields and in the sphere of technical co-operation. The CCPS also provides information and opinions on these matters, and examines teaching and training problems arising in the new and developing countries.

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU

The day-to-day administrative work of UPU is executed through a permanent organ called the International Bureau stationed at Berne. It serves as an instrument of liaison, information and consultation for the postal administration of the member countries, provides secretarial services for UPU bodies and promotes technical assistance.

Director-General of the International Bureau: MOHAMED IBRAHIM SOBHI (Egypt).

AIMS AND FUNCTIONS

The essential principles of the Union are the following:

1. Formation of one single postal territory.
2. Unification of postal charges and weight steps.
3. Non-sharing of postage paid for ordinary letters between the sender country and the country of destination.
4. Guarantee of freedom of transit.
5. Settlement of disputes by arbitration.
6. Establishment of a central office under the name of the International Bureau paid for by all members.
7. Periodical meeting of Congresses.
8. Promotion of the development of international postal services and postal technical assistance to Union members.

The common rules applicable to the international postal service and to the letter-post provisions are contained in the Universal Postal Convention and its Detailed Regulations. Owing to their importance in the postal field and their historical value, these two Acts, together with the Constitution and the General Regulations, constitute the compulsory Acts of the Union. It is therefore not possible to be a member country of the Union without being a party to these Acts and applying their provisions.

The activities of the international postal service, other than letter mail, are governed by Special Agreements. These are binding only for the countries which have acceded to them. There are eight such Agreements:

1. Agreement concerning Insured Letters and Boxes.
2. Agreement concerning Postal Parcels.
3. Agreement concerning Postal Money Orders and postal Travellers' Cheques.
4. Agreement concerning Giro Transfers.
5. Agreement concerning Cash on Delivery items.
6. Agreement concerning the Collection of Bills.
7. Agreement concerning the International Savings Bank Service.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

8. Agreement concerning Subscriptions to Newspapers and Periodicals.

BUDGET

The Executive Council fixed 20,220,000 Swiss francs (U.S. $9,496,000 at August 31st, 1981) as the maximum figure for annual gross expenditure in the year 1981. This sum, and any extraordinary expenses, are borne by members. Members are listed in eight classes setting out the proportion they should pay.

PUBLICATIONS

UPI publications are listed in Liste des publications du Bureau international; all are in French, some also in English, Arabic and Spanish.

Union Postale (bi-monthly review): published simultaneously in French, German, English, Arabic, Chinese, Spanish and Russian.

WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION—WHO

Avenue Appia, 1211 Geneva 27, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 61.

Established in 1948 as the central agency directing international health work. Of its many activities, the most important single aspect is technical co-operation with national health administrations, particularly in the developing countries.

MEMBERS

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

President (1981): Dr. MEROPI VIOLAKI-PARASKEVA (Greece).

Vice-Presidents (1981): M. C. JALLOW (The Gambia), M. M. HUSSAIN (Maldives), Dr. J. A. FERNÁNDEZ (Honduras), Dr. QIAN XINZHONG (People's Republic of China), Dr. G. RIFAI (Syria).

Generally meets in Geneva, once a year. Responsible for policy making, and the biennial programme and budget; appoints the Director-General, admits new members and reviews budget contributions.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The Board is composed of thirty health experts designated by, but not representing, their governments. It meets at least twice a year to review the Director-General's programme, which it forwards to the Assembly with any recommendations that seem necessary. It also advises on questions referred to it by the Assembly.

Chairman: Dr. H. J. H. HIDDLESTONE (New Zealand).

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: Dr. HALFDAN MAHLER (Denmark).

Deputy Director-General: Dr. ADEOYE T. LAMBO (Nigeria).

Assistant Directors-General: Dr. CHEN WENJIE (People's Republic of China), WARREN W. FURTH (U.S.A.), Dr. IVAN D. LADNYI (U.S.S.R.), Dr. DAVID TEJADA-DE-RIVERO (Peru), Dr. J. HAMON (France).

REGIONAL DIRECTORS

Africa: Dr. A. QUENUM, P.O.B. 6, Brazzaville, Congo.

Americas: Dr. HÉCTOR R. ACUÑA, Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, 525 23rd St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037, U.S.A.

Eastern Mediterranean: Dr. A. H. TABA, P.O.B. 1517, Alexandria, Egypt.

Europe: Dr. LEO KAPRIO, 8 Scherfigsvej, Copenhagen Ø, Denmark.

South-East Asia: Dr. U Ko Ko, Indraprastha Estate, Ring Rd., New Delhi 1, India.

Western Pacific: Dr. H. NAKAJIMA, P.O.B. 2932, Manila, Philippines.

Each of WHO's six geographical regions has its own organization consisting of a regional committee composed of the member states and associate members in the region concerned, and a regional office staffed by experts in various fields of health.

FUNCTIONS

WHO's objective is stated in the constitution as "the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health".

It acts as the central authority directing international health work, and establishes relations with professional groups and government health authorities on that basis.

It supports, on request from member states, programmes to control or eradicate disease, train health workers best suited to local needs and strengthen national health systems. Aid is provided in emergencies and natural disasters.

A global programme of collaborative research and exchange of scientific information is carried out in co-operation with leading national institutions. Particular stress is laid on the widespread communicable diseases of the tropics, and the countries directly concerned are assisted in developing their research capabilities.

It keeps communicable diseases under constant surveillance, formulates health regulations for international travel, and sets standards for the quality control of drugs, vaccines and other substances affecting health.

It collects and disseminates health data and carries out statistical analyses and comparative studies in such diseases as cancer, heart disease and mental illness.

It receives reports on drugs observed to have shown adverse reactions in any country, and transmits the information to other Member States. All available information on effects on human health of the pollutants in the environment is critically reviewed and published.

Co-operation among scientists and professional groups is encouraged, and the organization may propose international conventions and agreements. It assists in developing an informed public opinion on matters of health.

The Assembly organizes its own meetings, membership and budget and may establish committees, research institutions and the like. It acts by issuing instructions to the Executive Board and to the Director-General.

In external relations, it may bring specific matters of health to the attention of the members and of international organizations.

The Board is responsible for putting into effect the decisions and policies of the Assembly.

It is also empowered to take emergency measures in case of epidemics or disasters.

ACTIVITIES

During 1980-81 WHO promoted national, regional and global strategies for the attainment of the main target of member states for the next two decades: "Health for all by the year 2000", or the attainment by all citizens of the world of a level of health that will permit them to lead a socially and economically productive life. In May 1981 the World Health Assembly adopted a Global Strategy in support of this aim. Primary health care was seen as the key to "Health for all", with the following as minimum requirements:

Safe water in the home or within 15 minutes' walking distance, and adequate sanitary facilities in the home or immediate vicinity;

Immunization against diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus, poliomyelitis, measles and tuberculosis;

Local health care, including availability of at least 20 essential drugs, within one hour's travel;

Trained personnel to attend childbirth, and to care for pregnant mothers and children up to at least one year old.

Water supply and sanitation needs of more than 100 countries were assessed in preparation for the International Drinking Water Supply and Sanitation Decade, launched by the UN General Assembly in November 1980. Several inter-regional, regional and national workshops were conducted to develop national strategies for the Decade. Co-operation was given to member governments in planning their water/sanitation programmes.

During 1980 an expert group reviewed the progress of the Priority Programme for the Control of Diarrhoeal Diseases, and recommended launching of national programmes based on simple oral dehydration therapy and better feeding and hygienic practices.

Co-operation was given to more than 100 countries under the Expanded Programme on Immunization (EPI) against childhood diseases—diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus, poliomyelitis, measles and tuberculosis. An essential requirement of the programme is the "cold chain"—refrigerators and cold boxes suitable for storage and transportation of vaccines in tropical climates. A number of new cold chain products were developed and introduced during 1980 and training manuals published.

In May 1980 the global eradication of smallpox was proclaimed. WHO recommended that vaccination against smallpox be discontinued in every country except for investigators at special risk, and no certificates of vaccination against the disease be required from international travellers.

In May 1981 the International Code of Marketing of Breastmilk Substitutes was adopted by the World Health Assembly, aiming to provide safe and adequate nutrition for infants by promoting breast-feeding and by ensuring the proper use of breastmilk substitutes, when necessary, with controls on production, storage and advertising.

World Health Day is held on April 7th every year, and is used to promote awareness of a particular health topic. In 1980 it was devoted to the theme "Smoking or health—the choice is yours", in 1981 to "Health for all by the year 2000". The theme chosen for World Health Day 1982 is "Add life to years", part of the campaign to improve the health and social conditions of the elderly.

INTERNATIONAL AGENCY FOR RESEARCH ON CANCER

150 Cours Albert Thomas, 69008 Lyon, France

Members: Australia, Belgium, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A.

Director: Prof. JOHN HIGGINSON (U.S.A.).

Established in 1965 as a self-governing body within the framework of WHO, the Agency organizes international research on cancer. It has its own laboratories and runs a programme of research on the environmental factors causing cancer.

FINANCE

WORLD INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY ORGANIZATION—WIPO

34 Chemin des Colombettes, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

Telephone: (022) 99 91 11.

WIPO was established by a Convention signed in Stockholm in 1967, which came into force in 1970. It became a specialized agency of the UN in December 1974.

MEMBERS

96 members: see Table on pages 29–32.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU

The secretariat of WIPO and all the Unions. It is controlled by the member states assembled in the General Assembly and Conference of WIPO, and in the separate Assemblies and Conferences of Representatives held by its constituent Unions. The Paris and Berne Unions elect Executive Committees from among their members and the joint membership of these two Committees constitutes the Co-ordination Committee of WIPO.

The International Bureau prepares the meetings of the various bodies of WIPO and the Unions, mainly through the provision of reports and working documents. It organizes the meetings themselves, and sees that the decisions of the meetings are communicated to all concerned, and as far as they affect the Bureau, that they are carried out.

The International Bureau carries out projects and initiates new ones to promote international co-operation in the field of intellectual property. It acts as an information service and publishes reviews. It is also the depositary of most of the treaties administered by WIPO.

Director-General: Dr. ARPAD BOGSCH (U.S.A.).

Deputy Directors-General: KLAUS PFANNER, FELIX SVIRIDOV, MARINO PORZIO.

AIMS

1. To promote the protection of intellectual property throughout the world through co-operation among states and, where appropriate, with other international organizations.

2. To centralize the administration of the Unions which deal with legal and technical aspects of intellectual property. Each Union is founded on a multilateral treaty, while further treaties were yet to come into force in 1981.

Intellectual property comprises two main branches: industrial property, chiefly in inventions, trademarks and designs, and copyright, chiefly in literary, musical, artistic, photographic and cinematographic works.

Under its agreement with the UN, WIPO is recognized as a specialized agency responsible for promoting creative intellectual activity and for facilitating the transfer of technology to the developing countries.

ACTIVITIES

ASSISTANCE TO DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

The industrial field has a high priority in development; industrial property helps to stimulate inventive activity and the use of more efficient methods of industrial production, and is therefore an important factor in promoting industrial development. It also assists the transfer of technology to the developing countries.

WIPO Permanent Programme for Development Co-operation Related to Industrial Property: f. 1973; directed by a Permanent Committee composed of representatives of 69 states, both developing and industrialized. Its objective is to improve access to inventions, technology and trademarks for the developing countries.

The permanent committee plans and assists projects, which include seminars; publications; drafting of model laws; forming collections of foreign patent documents on recent inventions; training; assistance with development of government institutions administering industrial property and related laws.

WIPO Permanent Programme for Development Co-operation related to Copyright and Neighbouring Rights: f. 1976; directed by a Permanent Committee composed of 52 states, both developing and industrialized. Its objectives are to encourage in developing countries intellectual creation in the literary, scientific and artistic domains, to promote and facilitate the dissemination in developing countries, under fair and reasonable conditions, of intellectual creations, protected by the rights of authors (copyright) and by the rights of performing artists, producers of phonograms and broadcasting organizations (neighbouring rights) and to assist in the strengthening of national institutions in the fields of copyright and neighbouring rights.

WIPO grants fellowships to nationals of developing countries, and assigns experts to projects in their field. Regional seminars are held once or twice a year.

LEGAL AND TECHNICAL

Revision of treaties; revision of classifications of goods and services; preparation for entry into force of new treaties, and for other possible new international instruments.

WIPO Permanent Committee on Patent Information: composed of representatives of 58 states; encourages cooperation between national and regional industrial property offices in all matters concerning patent information.

International Patent Documentation Centre (INPADOC): Vienna, Austria; f. 1972; computer storage of bibliographic data on patent documents; access to the data is given to patent offices, industry and research and development institutions.

SERVICES

International registration of trademarks: operating since 1893; by January 1981 over 492,000 registrations and renewals of trademarks had been made, of which 12,339 were made during 1980; publ. Les Marques internationales (monthly).

International deposit of industrial designs: operating since 1928; by January 1981 over 72,000 deposits had been made, of which about 1,700 were made during 1980; publ. Les Dessins et Modèles internationaux (monthly).

International registration of appellations of origin: operating since 1966; by January 1981 over 670 appellations had been registered; publ. Les Appellations d'origine (irreg.).

International applications for patents: operating since June 1978; by January 1981, 7,380 record copies of international applications for patents under the Patent Co-operation Treaty (PCT) had been received.

THE UNIONS

International Union for the Protection of Industrial Property (Paris Convention): the treaty was signed in Paris in 1883; mems. 89 states; member states must accord to nationals and residents of other member states the same advantages under their laws relating to the protection of inventions, trademarks and other subjects of industrial property as they accord to their own nationals.

It contains provisions concerning the conditions under which a state may license the use of a patent in its territory; for example, that the owner of the patent does not exploit it to unfair advantage in that country.

A conference was held in February 1980, and continued in September and October, for the revision of the Paris Convention, with the particular aim of giving developing countries easier access to advanced technology.

International Union for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works (Berne Union): the treaty was signed in Berne in 1886 and last revised in 1971; mems. 72 states; member states must accord the same protection to the copyright of the nationals of other member states as to its own. The treaty also prescribes minimum standards of protection, for example, that copyright protection generally continues throughout the author's life and for 50 years after. It includes special provision for the developing countries.

OTHER AGREEMENTS

Signatories of the agreements form unions similar to those described above.

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL ORGANIZATION—WMO

Case postale 5, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 64 00.

The WMO started activities and was recognized as a Specialized Agency of the UN in 1951, aiming to improve the exchange of weather information and its application.

MEMBERS

152 members, of which one is suspended; see Table on pages 29-32.

ORGANIZATION

(September 1980)

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL CONGRESS

Supreme organ of WMO; convened every four years; all members represented; adopts regulations, approves policy, programme and budget. Eighth meeting: April 1979.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Composed of twenty-nine members; meets at least yearly to prepare studies and recommendations for the Congress; supervises the implementation of Congress resolutions and regulations; informs members on technical matters and offers advice.

President: R. L. KINTANAR (Philippines).

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: Prof. A. C. WIIN-NIELSEN (Denmark).

Deputy Secretary-General: R. SCHNEIDER (Switzerland).

The administrative, documentary and information centre; undertakes special technical studies; produces publications; organizes meetings of WMO constituent bodies; acts as a link between the meteorological and hydrometeorological services of the world, and provides information for the general public.

REGIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

Members are grouped in six Regional Associations, whose task is to co-ordinate meteorological activity within their regions and to examine questions referred to them by the Executive Committee. Sessions are held at least once every four years.

Africa . . . Acting President: S. MBELE-MBONG (Cameroon).

Asia . . . President: ABDUL GHANI J. AL-SULTAN (Iraq).

South America Acting President: Cmdt. F. ROLL FUENZALIDA (Chile).

North and Central America Acting President: S. AGUILAR ANGUIANO (Mexico).

South-West Pacific President: HO IONG YUEN (Malaysia).

Europe . . . President: Dr. R. CZELNAI (Hungary).

TECHNICAL COMMISSIONS

The Technical Commissions are composed of experts nominated by the members of the Organization. Sessions are held at least once every four years.

Commission for Basic Systems (CBS) President: J. R. NEILON (U.S.A.).

Commission for Climatology and Applications of Meteorology (CCAM) President: M. K. THOMAS (Canada).

Instruments and Methods of Observation (CIMO) President: H. TREUSSART (France).

Atmospheric Sciences (CAS) President: A. VILLEVIEILLE (France).

Aeronautical Meteorology (CAeM) President: R. R. DODDS (Canada).

Agricultural Meteorology (CAgM) President: N. GERBIER (France).

Hydrology (CHy) President: R. H. CLARK (Canada).

Marine Meteorology (CMM) President: K. P. VASILIEV (U.S.S.R.).

ACTIVITIES

WORLD WEATHER WATCH PROGRAMME

Combining facilities and services provided by member states, its primary purpose is that all members may obtain meteorological information enabling them to maintain efficient meteorological services.

Global Observing System: simultaneous observations are made by 9,300 land stations. Information is also received from 3,000 aircraft, 7,000 ships and a number of polar-orbiting and geostationary meteorological satellites. About 100 members have equipment to receive picture transmissions from the satellites.

Global Data Processing System: consists of world meteorological centres (WMCs) at Melbourne (Australia), Moscow (U.S.S.R.) and Washington, D.C. (U.S.A.), 25 regional meteorological centres (RMCs) and the national centres. The WMCs and RMCs make analyses and forecasts for exchange on the Global Telecommunications System. These analyses and forecasts are designed to assist the members in making local and specialized forecasts.

Global Telecommunications System: consists of (a) the Main Trunk Circuit and its branches, (b) the regional telecommunications networks, and (c) the national telecommunications networks. The system operates through 147 national meteorological centres, 29 Regional Telecommunications Hubs and three World Meteorological Centres.

Services in the regions outside any national territory (outer space, ocean areas and Antarctica) are maintained on a voluntary basis by member countries.

Executive Committee Panel of Experts on Satellites: co-ordinates work on satellites; examines and records plans for new satellites and satellite operations in the member countries; compares plans in relation to WMO programmes, making recommendations to the WMO institutions; considers ways in which the processing and distribution of information from satellites may best meet the needs of member countries.

Tropical Cyclone Programme: established in response to UN General Assembly Resolution 2733 (XXV); aims at the development of national and regionally co-ordinated systems to ensure that the loss of life and damage caused by tropical cyclones are reduced to a minimum. The programme operates through general and regional components, the latter conducted principally by four regional tropical cyclone bodies, to improve warning systems and for collaboration with other international organizations in activities related to disaster preparedness.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

Atmospheric Sciences: The Commission for Atmospheric Sciences (CAS) continues to promote the co-ordination of members' research activities in the field of atmospheric sciences, to facilitate the exchange of scientific information, to sponsor and/or organize scientific conferences and symposia including joint research projects between member countries.

As specified in the WMO Research Programme priorities and following the relevant decisions of Eighth Congress

(1979), important components of the WMO Research and Development Programme now include: the WMO Programme on Short-, Medium- and Long-range Weather Prediction Research with the major objective to improve the accuracy of weather forecasting on all time scales by making the optimum use of NWP (numerical weather prediction) techniques; and the WMO Programme on Research in Tropical Meteorology with the four study components relating to tropical cyclones, monsoons, semi-arid zone meteorology/tropical droughts and tropical disturbances bringing rain.

In the field of environmental prediction research, WMO continues to implement the Global Ozone Research and Monitoring Project in collaboration with UNEP. WMO also contributes to the UNECE Co-operative Programme on the Monitoring and Evaluation of the Long-range Transmission of Air Pollutants in Europe, where it is responsible for the meteorological aspects of research connected with dispersion and long-range transport of pollutants. As part of its support to the World Climate Programme, the Commission for Atmospheric Sciences is taking a leading role in the implementation of the WMO Project on Research and Monitoring of Atmospheric Carbon Dioxide.

The Weather Modification Programme: was initiated in 1975 with priority to the Precipitation Enhancement Project (PEP). Considerable progress is being achieved in the planning for PEP where the third and final phase of the site-selection process began at a proposed site in Spain. This phase will establish by in situ physical investigations whether the clouds in the pre-selected site are seedable. The proposed plan was to continue the observational programme during a four-month period early in 1981. In other fields of weather modification, WMO also provides for co-ordination of members' research activities in hail suppression research.

Global Atmospheric Research Programme (GARP): organized jointly with the International Council of Scientific Unions (ICSU, page 344) to study the physical and mathematical basis of weather prediction and climate variation. The First GARP Global Experiment, or the "Global Weather Experiment", in association with regional experiments on monsoon phenomena in Africa and Asia and on polar problems, was carried out successfully during the period December 1978 to November 1979. A new WMO/ICSU Agreement on a World Climate Research Programme beginning on January 1st, 1980, also includes activities related to the weather prediction objective of GARP.

METEOROLOGICAL APPLICATIONS AND ENVIRONMENT PROGRAMME

Principal aims are to increase the contribution made by meteorology to economic and social progress, to the protection of life and property and to environmental conservation. WMO engages in international projects or in joint action with other international organizations, and special bodies are set up for the purpose of this programme.

The applied meteorology projects often require consultation with a wider variety of fields of study, including agriculture, environmental studies, hydrology and oceanography.

Applications to agriculture: the study of weather and climate as they affect agriculture, the selection of crops and their protection from disease and deterioration in storage, soil conservation, phenology and physiology of crops and farm animals; the Commission for Agricultural Meteorology supervises the applications projects and also advises the Secretary-General in his efforts to co-ordinate activities in support of food production. Work is also in progress on a special activity in agrometeorology in support of food production.

Services to ocean activities: Supervised by the Commission for Marine Meteorology, international arrangements are made for the provision of marine meteorological and other related geophysical information, including sea ice and wave information, to shipping, fishing operations and other marine activities; the preparation of marine climatological information is also arranged internationally for multiple applications. Close collaboration is maintained with the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission to undertake joint programmes in ocean services and oceanic research.

Applications to aviation: to contribute to the safety and efficiency of civil aviation; the Commission for Aeronautical Meteorology supervises the applications projects; close collaboration is maintained with ICAO, particularly in the development of joint regulatory material.

Applications to various human activities: The Commission for Climatology and Applications of Meteorology (CCAM) deals with aspects of climatological stations such as their networks, programmes of work, collection of data, their quality, presentation and use. Furthermore, this Commission is active in the promotion of applications of meteorology and climatological knowledge and information to many fields of human activities such as those related to land-use planning, human settlements, design construction and maintenance of buildings, engineering, human health and well-being, tourism and transport. The WMO Plan of action in the field of energy problems ensures, among other things, attention to the meteorological aspects of new and renewable sources of energy, with particular emphasis on solar and wind energy.

Environment Programme: The projects under this programme mainly deal with the organization of global, standardized observations of substances and parameters which have or may have a long-term effect on the state of the environment and on climate. In BAPMoN, the Background Air Pollution Monitoring Network, more than 70 countries, with more than 100 stations, participate. Monitoring of pollution in media other than air, in particular the oceans and also soil and biota, contributes to the study of biogeochemical cycles. Such monitoring is to establish global and regional levels of relevant substances, their variation and trends as well as their long-range transport. With respect to the latter subject, as far as Europe is concerned, WMO is responsible for the meteorological part of the European Programme for the Monitoring and Evaluation of the Long-range Transmission of Air Pollutants, and has organized two Meteorological Synthesizing Centres. Scientific guidance for the Environment Programme is provided by the Executive Committee Panel of Experts on Environmental Pollution and co-operation with the appropriate technical commissions.

HYDROLOGY AND WATER RESOURCES PROGRAMME

Promotes international co-operation in evaluating water resources and assists in their development through systematic formation of hydrological services; supervised by the Commission for Hydrology.

WMO collaborates with other international efforts such as the International Hydrological Programme of UNESCO.

Operational Hydrology Programme: concerns standardization of all aspects of hydrological data, including instruments, methods of observation and transmission, systems of forecasting and their application to water resources projects. The regional implementation of this Programme and co-ordination of national Hydrological Services of the world are responsibilities of the WMO Regional Associations.

Hydrological Operational Multipurpose Subprogramme (HOMS): approved by Eighth WMO Congress in 1979, and implemented within the Operational Hydrology Programme, consists of the organized transfer of hydrological technology operationally used in network design, observations, collection, processing and storage of data and hydrological modelling. The hydrological technology available in HOMS is presented and transferred in components consisting of manuals of procedures and general guidance, descriptions of equipment and computer software.

WORLD CLIMATE PROGRAMME

Adopted by the Eighth World Meteorological Congress (April/May 1979) as a major new programme of WMO, the World Climate Programme (WCP) comprises the following components: World Climate Data Programme (WCDP); World Climate Applications Programme (WCAP); World Climate Impact Study Programme (WCIP); World Climate Research Programme (WCRP).

The objectives of this programme are to improve our knowledge of climate, in particular its variability, sensitivity to natural and anthropogenic influences, and predictability, as well as our knowledge of the effects of climate and its changes on socio-economic and environmental systems; and to assist decision-makers by promoting the application of this knowledge in the planning and co-ordination of climate-sensitive activities of economic, environmental and social significance, so that these take optimum advantage of the climatic resources and are less vulnerable to climatic change and variation.

The implementation of the WCIP is the responsibility of UNEP while the WCRP is a joint effort between WMO and ICSU. Other organizations closely involved in the planning and implementation of the various programmes include UNESCO, FAO, UNRISD, UNDRO, ECE, WHO and IIASA (International Institute for Applied Analysis).

EDUCATION AND TRAINING PROGRAMME

Activities include surveys of personnel training requirements, the development of appropriate training programmes, the establishment and improvement of regional training centres, the organization of training courses, seminars and conferences and the preparation of training materials in the form of compendia of lecture notes, problems workbooks and visual and audiovisual aids. Other supporting activities are the provision of fellowships, of which some 400 are awarded each year, the provision of advice on the availability of suitable training facilities and access to a Library of Training Materials for meteorological and related instruction.

The focal point of WMO's education and training activities is the Panel of Experts on Education and Training set up by the Executive Committee.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION PROGRAMME

United Nations Development Programme: WMO provides assistance in the development of national meteorological and hydrological services, in the application of meteorological and hydrological data to national economic development and in the training of personnel. Assistance in the form of expert missions, fellowships and equipment was provided to 79 countries in 1979 at a cost of U.S. $8.2 million under the UNDP.

Voluntary Co-operation Programme: WMO assists members in implementing the World Weather Watch Programme to develop an integrated observing and forecasting system. Member governments contribute equipment, services and fellowships for training. In 1979, 87 projects were completed and a further 250 were in progress in this programme.

WMO also carries out assistance projects under Trust-Fund arrangements, financed by national governments, either for activities in their own country or in a beneficiary country. Seven such projects, at a cost of $2.3 million, were in progress in 1979.

BUDGET

(1980-83)

WMO is financed by contributions from members on a proportional scale of assessment. Outside this budget, WMO is implementing a number of projects as executing agency for the UNDP or else under trust fund arrangements.

UNITED NATIONS CHILDREN'S FUND—UNICEF

Telephone: Plaza 4-1234.

Established in 1946 by the General Assembly to meet the emergency needs of children in post-war Europe and China; UNICEF's primary objective is to improve the situation of children everywhere, particularly those in developing countries who are in the greatest need.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The governing body of UNICEF meets once a year to establish policy, review programmes and commit funds.

Members: thirty governments, ten of which are elected each year for a three-year term by ECOSOC.

SECRETARIAT

The Executive Director of UNICEF is appointed by the UN Secretary-General in consultation with the Executive Board. The administration of UNICEF and the appointment and direction of staff are the responsibility of the Executive Director, under policy directives laid down by the Executive Board, and under a broad authority delegated to the Executive Director by the Secretary-General. UNICEF has over 90 field offices in which about three-quarters of its staff are located.

NATIONAL COMMITTEES

UNICEF's direct link with the public is through some 36 National Committees, almost all in industrialized countries, established to spread information and raise funds.

ACTIVITIES

UNICEF co-operates with 111 developing countries by assisting in the development, administration and evaluation of services benefiting children; delivery of technical supplies, equipment and other aid for extending those services; and providing funds to strengthen training of national personnel. UNICEF facilitates the exchange of programming experience among developing countries, and encourages governments to undertake a regular review of the situation of their children and incorporate a national policy for children in their comprehensive development plans. UNICEF provides assistance on the basis of mutually agreed priorities for children in collaboration with the governments concerned. Priority is given by UNICEF to aiding children in the lower-income groups in the least-developed countries.

Community participation is the key element of the "basic services" approach which is strongly advocated by UNICEF. By using this approach—with its emphasis on meeting the basic needs of children through community involvement and the use of relevant and available technology—a great deal can be done to improve maternal and child care, introduce safe water supplies and sanitation, expand primary and non-formal education, improve the household production of nutritious foods and improve the situation of women. UNICEF also provides emergency relief and rehabilitation, whenever possible using its aid as a means of starting long-term improvements in services for mothers and children.

An international code of marketing of breastmilk substitutes, which stems from a set of recommendations adopted in 1979 at a joint WHO/UNICEF Meeting on Infant and Young Child Feeding, was formally adopted by the 34th World Health Assembly in May 1981. UNICEF is continuing to support programmes at national level designed to promote breast-feeding by ensuring that mothers are informed of the superior nutritional and anti-infective properties of breastmilk. It also supports the inclusion of information on breast-feeding in training curricula for health professionals, and the encouragement of hospital practices that support breast-feeding.

The provision of clean water and adequate sanitation is a rapidly expanding field of UNICEF co-operation in the light of the designation of 1981-90 as the International Drinking Water Supply and Sanitation Decade. UNICEF provides equipment and materials, such as drilling rigs and pipes, and supports training schemes and project support staff on a limited basis.

UNICEF actively participated in the International Year of Disabled Persons (1981) by supporting the incorporation of early detection and treatment of impairments into community-based health, nutrition, immunization, child welfare and education programmes.

UNICEF continues its humanitarian assistance to Kampuchea as part of its long-term programming efforts through the restoration and re-equipment of health and education facilities, and the maintenance of existing ones.

Serious problems resulting from years of drought, conflict, or a combination of both, continue to affect millions of children and mothers in various African countries. As an expansion of existing activities, UNICEF assists with supplementary feeding programmes, public health and water supply programmes, and provides drugs and medical supplies as well as teaching materials.

FINANCE

UNICEF is financed by voluntary contributions from governments, and from organizations and individuals. Income in 1980 came to U.S. $313 million, of which $205 million was for general resources and $108 million for specific purposes. Of this, 73 per cent came directly from 129 governments; 20 per cent from private sources (fund-raising campaigns, greetings card profits, and individual donations); and 7 per cent from the UN system and from miscellaneous sources. UNICEF also handled donations in kind, mainly in the form of children's food, valued at over $11 million, and provided supplies and services worth $36 million on a reimbursable basis. Expenditure in 1980 amounted to $314 million, of which $290.1 million was for assistance and $23.9 million for administration.

ACTIVITIES

SERVICES FOR PALESTINE REFUGEES

Since 1950, UNRWA has provided relief (including food), health and education services for the needy among the Palestine refugees in Lebanon, Syria, east Jordan, the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. For UNRWA's purposes, a Palestine refugee is one whose normal residence was in Palestine for a minimum of two years before the 1948 conflict and who, as a result of the Arab-Israeli hostilities, lost his home and means of livelihood. To be eligible for assistance, a refugee must reside in one of the "host" countries in which UNRWA operates and be in need. A refugee's children and grandchildren who fulfil certain criteria are also eligible for UNRWA assistance. At June 30th, 1981, the registered refugee population numbered 1,884,896, (about half the estimated total number of Palestinians), living in five areas administered by four governments. There were about 663,181 living in 61 camps, while the remaining refugees have settled in the towns and villages already existing.

UNRWA's activities fall into the categories of education and training; health services; and relief and welfare services.

Education (under the technical supervision of UNESCO) and training now take up over half the Agency's annual expenditure: in 1980/81 there were 321,000 pupils in 635 UNRWA schools: in Lebanon (85 schools), Syria (110), Jordan (204), the West Bank (99) and the Gaza Strip (137); there were 9,674 teachers. At three-quarters of the schools, morning and afternoon shifts are held in order to accommodate more pupils. UNRWA also runs seven vocational training centres, with 3,666 places in 1981, and three teacher-training centres with 1,295 places. UNRWA awarded 365 scholarships for study at Arab universities in 1980/81.

On June 30th, 1981, a total of 1.6 million refugees were eligible for health services; there were 3,019 medical staff, 100 health units, 91 specialist clinics and 87 maternal and child health clinics. UNRWA also runs a supplementary feeding programme, mainly for children, to combat malnutrition: there are 96 feeding centres. Technical supervision for the health programme is provided by WHO.

Relief services comprise the distribution of food rations, the provision of emergency shelter and the organization of welfare programmes. Rations (flour, cooking oil, sugar and rice) were distributed to about 45 per cent of the refugee population in 1980, although amounts have been cut owing to shortage of funds: for example the flour ration was cut from 10 kg. to 5 kg. per month in 1979.

AID TO DISPLACED PERSONS

After the renewal of Arab-Israeli hostilities in the Middle East in June 1967, hundreds of thousands of people fled from the fighting and Israeli-occupied areas to east Jordan, Syria and Egypt. UNRWA provided emergency relief for displaced refugees and was additionally empowered by a UN General Assembly resolution to provide "humanitarian assistance, as far as practicable, on an emergency basis and as a temporary measure" for those persons other than Palestine refugees who were newly displaced and in urgent need. In practice, UNRWA has lacked the funds to aid the other displaced persons and the main burden of supporting them has fallen on the Arab governments concerned. The Agency, as requested by the Government of Jordan in 1967 and on that Government's behalf, distributes rations to displaced persons in east Jordan who are not registered refugees of 1948.

With the agreement of the Israeli Government, UNRWA has continued to provide assistance for registered refugees living in the Israeli-occupied territories of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

RECENT DISTURBANCES

Palestine refugees have been affected, and UNRWA's services disrupted, by continuing disturbances in Lebanon and the Israeli invasion of the south in March 1978, which caused the temporary evacuation of most of the 60,000 refugees living there and the flight of 17,000 refugees in other areas. With the assistance of governments and voluntary groups, UNRWA launched an emergency relief programme to provide food, clothing and blankets and temporary shelter in school buildings. Damage to UNRWA's property and installations, such as schools and clinics recently repaired in the wake of the civil war in Lebanon of 1975-76, was estimated at $450,000. While most of the refugees returned to their home towns and villages by the end of April 1978, the devastated economy of the south left them in continued need of extra-budgetary relief supplies and services.

In 1979 UNRWA again launched an emergency appeal for aid to southern Lebanon because of continuing Israeli and other attacks. At August 15th there were more than 50,000 registered refugees displaced from the year's military activities in southern Lebanon.

In 1981 civil strife and later Israeli attacks disrupted UNRWA activities. The education programme was hardest hit with up to 50 school days lost in some schools during the 1980/81 school year.

Estimated income: (1981) $193,818,000; (1982) $185,316,000.

For the most part, UNRWA's income is made up of voluntary contributions, almost entirely from governments, the remainder being provided by voluntary agencies, business corporations and private sources. However, the cost of the Agency's 113 international staff is funded by the UN, WHO and UNESCO.

In recent years financial crises have posed serious threats of cuts in services. Devaluation of the dollar and incessant inflationary pressures, which have had an adverse effect on the price of supplies and the cost of living, seriously affected the Agency's ability to meet the higher cost of health, education and relief services with voluntary contributions. In November 1980, 39 countries pledged about $104 million to UNRWA for 1981. Other countries later made pledges and several special contributions were made early in 1981 to help save the Agency's education programme. Income for 1981 was expected to be about $194 million out of a planned budget of almost $239 million leaving a deficit of nearly $45 million, to be made up by using up cash balances, by eliminating all capital expenditure and by not paying cost-of-living allowances to 5,600 staff in Jordan.

In March 1981, individually addressed notices of termination were prepared for all UNRWA teachers in Jordan and Syria, which would have meant the closing of the 314 UNRWA schools in these countries. Notices were withdrawn when the Agency's cash position improved slightly. However, UNRWA faced a deficit of some $80 million in 1982 and it was possible that cuts in the education programme would still be necessary.

DISPLACED PERSONS

Apart from the Palestine refugees of 1948 who are registered with UNRWA and who are UNRWA's main concern (see table above), considerable numbers of people have, since 1967, been displaced within the UNRWA areas of operations, and others have had to leave these areas. According to government estimates, there were 210,000 displaced persons in east Jordan and 125,000 in Syria in June 1980.

About 11,200 local staff, most of them teachers, work in the education programme.

UNITED NATIONS PEACE-KEEPING MISSIONS IN THE MIDDLE EAST

UNITED NATIONS TRUCE SUPERVISION ORGANIZATION—UNTSO Headquarters at Government House, Jerusalem

Set up in 1948 to supervise the truce called for by the Security Council in Palestine.

Chief of Staff: Maj.-Gen. E. A. ERSKINE (Ghana).

COMPOSITION

As at August 1981 there were 298 Military Observers from the following countries:

Argentina	Denmark	New Zealand
Australia	Finland	Norway
Austria	France	Sweden
Belgium	Ireland	U.S.S.R.
Canada	Italy	U.S.A.
Chile	Netherlands

FUNCTIONS

UNTSO was established initially to supervise the truce called by the Security Council in May 1948 and has assisted in the application of the 1949 Armistice Agreements. Its activities have changed over the years in response to the development of affairs in the Middle East and in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the Security Council.

UNTSO observers assist the UN peace-keeping forces in the Middle East (see below), UNIFIL as a separate group and UNDOF as an integral part of the force. After the expiry of the mandate of UNEF (United Nations Emergency Force) on July 24th, 1979, UNTSO established Observer Group Egypt which maintains a number of outposts in the Sinai.

FINANCE

UNTSO expenditures are covered by the regular budget of the United Nations. For the biennial period 1980–81, a sum of U.S. $29,066,500 was appropriated by the General Assembly.

UNITED NATIONS
DISENGAGEMENT OBSERVER FORCE—UNDOF
Headquarters at Damascus, Syria

Established for an initial period of six months by a Security Council resolution on May 31st, 1974, following the signature in Geneva of a disengagement agreement between Syrian and Israeli forces. The mandate has since been extended until November 1981 by successive resolutions.

Commander: Maj.-Gen. ERKKI R. KAIRA (Finland).

ACTIVITIES

The initial task of the Force was to take over territory evacuated in stages by the Israeli troops, in accordance with the disengagement agreement, to hand over territory to Syrian troops, and to establish an area of separation.

UNDOF continues to man the area of separation, from which Syrian and Israeli forces are excluded; it carries out inspections of the areas of limited armaments and forces, and it uses its best efforts to maintain the ceasefire. The area of separation has been placed under Syrian civil administration.

FINANCE

The General Assembly appropriated $15.0 million for UNDOF for the period from December 1st, 1980, to May 31st, 1981. In addition to this appropriation, it authorized the Secretary-General to enter into commitments at a rate not to exceed $2.5 million per month for the period from June 1st to November 30th, 1981.

UNITED NATIONS INTERIM FORCE IN LEBANON—UNIFIL

Headquarters at Naqoura, Lebanon

Set up in March 1978 by Security Council resolution, for a six-month period, subsequently extended to December 1981 by successive resolutions

Commander: Lt.-Gen. WILLIAM CALLAGHAN (Ireland).

TOTAL 6,000

A group of 74 military observers of UNTSO assist UNIFIL in the performance of its tasks. They form the "Observer Group, Lebanon".

FUNCTIONS

The functions of the force are to confirm the withdrawal of Israeli forces, to restore international peace and security and to assist the Government of Lebanon in ensuring the return of its effective authority in southern Lebanon.

FINANCE

The General Assembly authorized the Secretary-General to enter into commitments for UNIFIL at a rate not to exceed $12.2 million a month for the period from December 19th, 1980, to December 18th, 1981.

UNITED NATIONS PEACE-KEEPING FORCE IN CYPRUS—UNFICYPHeadquarters at Nicosia, Cyprus

Set up in March 1964 by Security Council resolution, for a three-month period, subsequently extended to December 1981, by successive resolutions.

Special Representative of the Secretary-General: HUGO JUAN GOBBI (Argentina).

Commander: Maj.-Gen. GÜNTHER G. GREINDL (Austria).

FUNCTIONS

The purpose of the Force has been to keep the peace between the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities pending a resolution of outstanding issues between them, to help maintain law and order, and to promote a return to normal conditions. UNFICYP now also performs functions in relation to the supervision of the ceasefire between the armed forces of Turkey and Cyprus, and in providing humanitarian assistance to refugees and to villages isolated behind military lines. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees acts as Co-ordinator of UN humanitarian assistance for Cyprus.

FINANCE

The estimated cost to the United Nations for maintaining the Force during the period from December 15th, 1980, to June 15th, 1981, was $14.8 million. The total costs from the beginning of the operation in March 1964 to December 15th, 1980, were estimated at $354.4 million, a sum covered entirely by voluntary contributions. In June 1981 the Secretary-General of the UN appealed for an increase in voluntary contributions to meet a budget deficit of over $73 million.

UNITED NATIONS HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES— UNHCR

Postal address: Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Telephone: 31 02 61.

Established on January 1st, 1951, the Office of the High Commissioner aims chiefly to provide international protection for refugees and seek permanent solutions to their problems through voluntary repatriation, resettlement in other countries or integration into the country of present residence. The High Commissioner also undertakes special humanitarian tasks for which his Office has particular experience or expertise. In 1977 the mandate of UNHCR was extended until the end of 1983.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

HIGH COMMISSIONER

High Commissioner (1978–82): POUL HARTLING (Denmark).

Deputy High Commissioner: WILLIAM R. SMYSER (U.S.A.).

The High Commissioner is elected by the United Nations General Assembly on the nomination of the Secretary-General, and is responsible to the General Assembly and to ECOSOC.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, established by ECOSOC, gives the High Commissioner policy directives in respect of material assistance programmes, and advice at his request in the field of international protection. It meets once a year, usually at Geneva. Special sessions may be called to consider urgent problems. Members: representatives of forty states.

Chairman: OMAR BIRIDO (Sudan).

Vice-Chairman: P. H. R. MARSHALL (U.K.).

ADMINISTRATION

Headquarters includes the High Commissioner's Office, and the following divisions: External Affairs, Protection, Assistance, and Administration and Management. As at May 31st, 1981, there were 10 Regional Offices, 34 Branch Offices and 17 Sub-Offices, 8 Chargés de Mission and seven Honorary Representatives, Correspondents or Consultants located in 61 countries.

FUNCTIONS

COMPETENCE

The competence of the High Commissioner extends to any person who, owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, remains unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to return it. Refugees meeting these criteria are entitled to the protection of the Office of the High Commissioner irrespective of their geographical location. Refugees who are assisted by other United Nations agencies, or who have the same rights or obligations as nationals of their country of residence, are outside the mandate of UNHCR.

INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION

As laid down in the Statute of the Office, the primary function of UNHCR is to extend international protection to refugees. In the exercise of this function UNHCR seeks to ensure that refugees and asylum-seekers are protected against refoulement (forcible return), that they receive asylum, and that they are treated according to internationally recognized standards of treatment. UNHCR pursues these objectives by a variety of means which include promoting the conclusion and ratification by states of international conventions for the protection of refugees.

The most comprehensive instrument concerning refugees which has been elaborated at the international level is the 1951 United Nations Convention relating to the Status of Refugees. This Convention, the personal scope of which was extended by a Protocol adopted in 1967, defines the right and duties of refugees and contains provisions dealing with a variety of matters which affect the day-to-day lives of refugees. The application of the 1951 United Nations Refugee Convention and the 1967 Protocol is supervised by UNHCR. Important provisions for the treatment of refugees are also contained in a number of instruments adopted at the regional level. These include the OAU Convention of 1969 Governing the Specific Aspects of Refugee Problems, the European Agreement on the Abolition of Visas for Refugees, and the 1969 American Convention on Human Rights.

MATERIAL ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES

Emergency relief is provided in the case of new refugee situations when food supplies and medical aid are required on a large scale at short notice. Other members of the UN system, and inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations, co-operate closely with UNHCR in this field as they do in all areas concerning material assistance.

Supplementary aid is provided for the neediest refugees and may take the form of supplementary feeding, medical aid, or clothing.

The Office assists refugees wherever possible to overcome difficulties in the way of their voluntary repatriation. In cases where no funds are available for their transportation to their homeland, arrangements for payment of the cost involved may be made by UNHCR under its material assistance programmes.

UNHCR negotiates with governments in an endeavour to obtain suitable resettlement opportunities for those refugees both able-bodied and handicapped who opt for resettlement through emigration, to encourage governments to liberalize their criteria for the admission of refugees and to draw up special immigration schemes for them wherever possible.

The object of local integration is to assist refugees to become self-supporting in their country of residence. In Europe, this is done either by granting refugees loans for establishment in agriculture, or by assisting them through vocational training or in other ways to learn a skill, or to establish themselves in gainful occupations. One major form of assistance to help refugees leave camps is to provide them with housing.

Refugees in Africa and some refugees in Asia are mainly assisted through local settlement in agriculture. In Africa consolidation of the settlement of refugees is effected through close co-operation between UNHCR and other members of the UN system which provide development assistance to the areas concerned.

The problem of needy individual refugees seeking employment or educational opportunities in urban areas of Africa, and who are mainly without agricultural background, claims special attention. Efforts to help them are made by the OAU Bureau for the Placement and Education of Refugees, while increased support is being given to special refugee counselling services.

FINANCE

The UNHCR material assistance programmes are financed from voluntary contributions made by governments and also from non-governmental sources. In October 1980 the Executive Committee approved the estimated financial requirement for the UNHCR General Programmes for 1981 at U.S. $335 million, including the $10 million Emergency Fund. In addition, UNHCR undertakes a

ACTIVITIES

International protection

UNHCR has actively encouraged States to accede to the 1951 United Nations Refugee Convention and the 1967 Protocol: 90 States had accepted either or both of these basic refugee instruments by July 31st, 1981. An increasing number of states have also adopted domestic legislation and/or administrative measures to implement the international instruments, particularly in the field of procedures for the determination of refugee status. Such measures provide an important guarantee that refugees will be accorded the standards of treatment which have been internationally established for their benefit.

A continuing concern of UNHCR has been to ensure that States scrupulously observe the fundamental principle of non-refoulement according to which no one may be forcibly returned to a territory where he has reason to fear persecution. While this principle is now widely reflected in the practice of States, violations still occur. UNHCR has also continued to promote the adoption of liberal practices of asylum by States, so that refugees and asylum seekers are granted admission, at least on a temporary basis. Major problems have arisen in regard to violation of the physical safety of refugees as a result of piracy, abduction and armed attack, particularly in the South China Sea. UNHCR has urged the international community to find solutions to these problems as a matter of priority.

Close co-operation in the field of international protection has been maintained with regional organizations such as the Organization of African Unity, the Organization of American States, the League of Arab States and the Council of Europe. In the promotional field, increased attention has been given to creating an understanding at all levels—both inside and outside government circles—of the principles of international protection.

Assistance

UNHCR General Programme expenditure amounted to U.S. $280 million in 1980. Of this, the largest proportion (about 55 per cent) was allotted to Asia, particularly for refugees and displaced persons in and from the Indo-Chinese peninsula: Laotians, Kampuchians and Vietnamese, needing both immediate assistance in the countries of temporary asylum to which they had fled, and help in finding a place of permanent re-settlement. By August 1980 over half a million Indo-Chinese refugees had been resettled, chiefly in the U.S.A. (about 283,600), the People's Republic of China (265,000), France (67,000), Canada (63,400) and Australia (40,500): over 200,000 however, still remained in camps, mostly in Thailand, awaiting resettlement. A programme of aid was launched in 1980 for some 300,000 Kampuchians who had returned to their homeland from Thailand, Viet-Nam and Laos.

In May 1979 UNHCR and Viet-Nam signed a "memorandum of understanding" on the orderly departure of persons wishing to leave: over 4,000 Vietnamese left the country during 1980 under the Orderly Departure Programme which resulted.

Refugees from Afghanistan began to enter Pakistan early in 1979; by October they numbered 200,000. UNHCR established a programme to help the Pakistan Government transfer the refugees from the north-western frontier to resettlement areas in the interior; the cost was originally estimated at U.S. $10 million, but numbers increased so rapidly, reaching 2 million by May 1981, that successive appeals had to be made to the international community, for $26.4 million in January 1980, for $99.8 million in June and for a further $56.6 million in June 1981. The total amount needed to cover the assistance programme in 1981 was estimated at $98 million.

* The table shows only those countries where more than 10,000 refugees were present. The total number of refugees registered with UNHCR at the end of June 1981 was estimated at 6,780,300. This figure does not include Palestine refugees, who come under the care of UNRWA (see p. 82), nor non-registered refugees (e.g. Ethiopians living in Somalia outside official refugee camps), nor returnees and persons displaced within their own country (e.g. in Ethiopia, Kampuchea, Uganda, Zaire and Zimbabwe).

§ UNHCR estimate at May 31st, 1981.

About 35 per cent of General Programme expenditure in 1980 was devoted to Africa, where the largest numbers of the world's refugees are concentrated: by the end of 1980 the total number of refugees and displaced persons in Africa, including North Africa, was estimated at over

5 million (compared with 1 million in 1975), the main groups having fled from Ethiopia to Somalia and Sudan, from Chad to Cameroon and Nigeria, from Burundi to Tanzania, and from Angola to Zaire. In April 1981 the first International Conference on Assistance to Refugees

United Nations (Other Bodies)

in Africa (ICARA) was held, with the following objectives:

- to focus public attention on the plight of refugees in Africa;

- to mobilize additional resources for refugee programmes in Africa;

- to assist countries of asylum, adversely affected by the large-scale presence of refugees, to obtain international assistance for projects aimed at strengthening the ability of those countries to carry the extra burden placed on their services and facilities.

It was estimated that a total of U.S. $1,150.5 million would have to be raised by ICARA, of which priority requirements to be implemented in 1981-82 would take $450 million. The target, however, was not met: a total of U.S. $560 million was pledged at the conference, of which $285 million was promised by the U.S.A.

In 1980, the High Commissioner was requested by the Government of Zimbabwe and the Secretary-General of the United Nations to act as co-ordinator of a United Nations programme of immediate humanitarian assistance to returning refugees and displaced persons in Zimbabwe. The needs of this programme amounted to U.S. $110 million which were met through co-ordination by UNHCR of multi- and bi-lateral aid with some U.S. $24 million directly from UNHCR.

In June 1981 there were over 100,000 refugees from El Salvador in various countries of Latin America: an appeal for U.S. $9.8 million was launched by UNHCR in that month to provide assistance for the most needy.

INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC ENERGY AGENCY—IAEA

Vienna International Centre, Wagramerstrasse 5, 1220 Vienna, Austria

Mailing address: P.O. Box 100, 1400 Vienna, Austria

Telephone: 2360.

Founded in 1957 as an autonomous intergovernmental agency, the IAEA has an agreement giving it responsibility in the United Nations system for international activities concerned with the peaceful uses of atomic energy. It seeks to develop the use of atomic energy, ensuring that it is not used for military purposes. See also the Nuclear Energy Agency of the OECD, EURATOM, and the Inter-American Nuclear Energy Agency.

MEMBERSHIP

111 members.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Consists of representatives of all member states. It convenes each year to participate in the general debate on the Agency's policy and programme. It elects members to the Board of Governors, and approves the appointment of the Director-General; it admits new member states. The 1981 General Conference took place in Vienna in September.

President: (1981): M. Xuro (Thailand).

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Consists of 34 member states, 12 designated by the Board of Governors and 22 elected by the General Conference for two-year periods. It is the executive body of the Agency and is responsible to the General Conference. It meets four or five times a year to consider matters proposed to it by member states or the Director-General. It submits the draft budget and programme to the General Conference. Every fourth year it appoints a Director-General subject to approval by the General Conference.

Chairman (1981-82): The Governor from Japan.

SECRETARIAT

Consists of 593 professional staff and 914 general service staff. It is headed by the Director-General who is assisted by five Deputy Directors-General and an Assistant Director-General for External Relations. The Secretariat is divided into five departments: Technical Assistance and Publications; Technical Operations; Research and Isotopes; Safeguards and Inspection; Administration.

Director-General: HANS BLIX (Sweden).

SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Committee was set up in 1958 to advise the Board of Governors and the Director-General upon scientific and technical matters. Appointments are generally for three years.

FUNCTIONS

The Agency is authorized:

1. To encourage and assist research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful uses throughout the world; and, if requested to do so, to act as an intermediary for the purposes of securing the performance of services or the supplying of materials, equipment, or facilities by one member of the Agency for another; and to perform any operation or service useful in research on, or development or practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes.
2. To make provision, in accordance with its Statute for materials services, equipment, and facilities to meet the needs of research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes, including the production of electric power, with due consideration for the needs of the under-developed areas of the world.
3. To foster the exchange of scientific and technical information on peaceful uses of atomic energy.
4. To encourage the exchange and training of scientists and experts in the field of peaceful uses of atomic energy.
5. To establish and administer safeguards designed to ensure that special fissionable and other materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its supervision or control are not used in such a way as to further any military purpose; and to apply safeguards, at the request of the parties, to any bilateral or multilateral arrangement or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.
6. To establish or adopt, in consultation and, where appropriate, in collaboration with the competent organs of the United Nations and with the specialized agencies concerned, standards of safety for protection of health and minimization of danger to life and property (including such standards for labour conditions), and to provide for the application of these standards to its own operations as well as to the operations making use of materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its control or supervision; and to provide for the application of these standards, at the request of the parties; to operations under any bilateral or multilateral arrangement, or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.
7. To acquire or establish any facilities, plant and equipment useful in carrying out its authorized functions, whenever the facilities, plant, and equipment otherwise available to it in the area concerned are inadequate or available only on terms it deems unsatisfactory.

Information and Materials. Each member should make available such information as would, in the judgment of the member, be helpful to the Agency.

Members may make available to the Agency such quantities of special fissionable materials as they deem advisable and on such terms as shall be agreed with the Agency. On request of the Agency a member shall deliver to another member or group of members such quantities of such materials as the Agency may specify. The Agency shall be responsible for storing and protecting materials in its possession. It shall ensure that these materials shall be safeguarded against hazards of the weather, unauthorized removal or diversion, damage or destruction, including sabotage, and forcible seizure. In storing special fissionable materials in its possession, the Agency shall ensure the geographical distribution of these materials in such a way as not to allow concentration of large amounts of such materials in any one country or region of the world.

Projects and Safeguards. Any member or group of members of the Agency desiring to set up any research project for peaceful purposes may request the assistance of the Agency in securing special fissionable and other materials. For the purpose of considering the request, the Agency may send into the territory of the member or group persons qualified to examine the project.

With respect to any Agency project the Agency shall have the following rights and responsibilities:

1. To examine the design of specialized equipment and facilities, including nuclear reactors, and to approve it only from the viewpoint of assuring that it will not further any military purpose, that it complies with applicable health and safety standards.
2. To require the maintenance and production of operating records and progress reports.
3. To approve the means to be used for the chemical processing of irradiated materials solely to ensure that this chemical processing will not lend itself to diversion of materials for military purposes and will comply with applicable health and safety standards.
4. To send into the territory inspectors who shall have access at all times to all places and data and relevant persons.

ACTIVITIES

Technical Assistance and Training: Each year the IAEA provides 400 to 450 experts, lecturers and visiting professors to more than 60 developing countries; over 1,000 fellowships for individual study and participation in training projects; equipment and supplies valued at $7-$8 million to over 60 countries and several international projects. About 30 regional, inter-regional courses and study tours are held annually.

Food and Agriculture. In co-operation with FAO, the Agency programme covers applied research on the use of radiation and isotopes in six main fields: efficiency in the use of water and fertilizers; improvement of food crops by induced mutations; eradication or control of destructive insects by the sterile male technique; improvement of livestock nutrition and health; studies of the fate of chemical pollutants in food and agriculture; and food preservation by irradiation. Over 300 research contract or agreement holders in member states participate in about 25 co-ordinated research programmes. Technical assistance projects, including several regional training courses on the use of isotopes and radiation in agriculture, are undertaken in 44 developing countries. In addition, one or two open symposia, 6-8 expert panels and several research co-ordination meetings are held each year; the proceedings are usually published.

Life Sciences. The Agency's programme, in co-operation with WHO, includes projects in the fields of medical applications of radioisotopes, dosimetry for intentional radiation applications, radiation biology and health-related environmental research. The Agency provides experts and equipment in these fields to member states, awards fellowships for individual study, organizes seminars, training courses and study tours, and awards research contracts. Emphasis is given to research and to up-grading the technical quality of routine applications, such as a joint project with WHO which is concerned with setting up an international network of secondary-standard dosimetry laboratories in the member states.

Physical Sciences. The Agency's programme in physical sciences is concentrated on practical problems arising from the use of atomic energy, radiations and isotopes, particularly in developing countries. It stimulates and co-ordinates scientific research and promotes the dissemination of nuclear and atomic data and the exchange of information relating to nuclear physics and techniques, fusion research, chemistry, industrial applications of isotopes and isotope hydrology. The physics activities concentrate on the use of low-energy accelerators, neutron generators and research reactors, the conversion of research reactors to low enrichment fuel and the development and application of nuclear techniques. Also included under physics is the co-ordination of national programmes in plasma physics and fusion research. Under the guidance of the International Fusion Research Council (IFRC), the International Tokamak Reactors (INTOR) Workshop completed a definitive assessment of the tokamak approach to a fusion reactor in 1979 and completed in 1981 a conceptual design of a large tokamak device that could be built as a co-operative international project. The industrial applications and chemistry programme embraces isotope production, labelled compounds, radiopharmaceuticals, nuclear analytical method, industrial radiation technology using large radiation sources, nuclear materials thermodynamics and chemical standards for nuclear fuels and safeguards. In isotope hydrology the emphasis is on the development of isotope techniques for use in water studies and on the implementation of projects for the investigation of water resources in developing countries. In the field of nuclear and atomic data the Agency assesses the international status and requirements for such data, co-ordinates their determination, compilation and exchange, and offers cost-free data centre services, particularly to developing countries.

Nuclear Power. The Agency promotes the exchange of information between Member States on technical and economic aspects of nuclear power reactors, provides direct assistance in the planning, implementation and operation of nuclear power plants, and assists information exchange between Member States engaged in the development of advanced types of nuclear power plants.

The Agency provides direct assistance in making long-range electricity generation planning studies to define the appropriate energy supply role for nuclear power plants. Member States are advised and assisted on nuclear power plant feasibility studies, manpower development for nuclear power, technical bid specification and evaluation, quality assurance programme planning and implementation, and reliability assessments and improvement of power plant systems and components. Assistance is also provided in assessments of requirements for nuclear fuel cycle services for established and projected nuclear power programmes.

Training courses are offered to participants from developing Member States on various specialized topics related to nuclear power plant planning, construction and operations management, and on safety evaluations, siting of nuclear facilities and quality assurance.

Information is collected, evaluated and disseminated on nuclear power plants in Member States in operation, construction or planned and on operating experience including analysis of plant performance and outage statistics. Guidebooks and other technical publications are prepared and meetings for information exchange are organized on relevant aspects of nuclear power applications.

In the framework of world energy needs and the expected role to be played by nuclear power, studies are made relating to economics of nuclear power. Investment costs and fuel cycle costs are followed and trends in changes of these costs are evaluated. The overall cost of nuclear energy is evaluated in comparison with alternative energy sources. Assistance is given to Member States in improving their capabilities to make such cost studies and to evaluate bids for power plants.

The Agency conducts systematic exchanges of information related to the technology of nuclear power reactors of advanced types, including fast breeders and high temperature electricity producing or process heat reactors and their fuel cycles as well as advanced concepts such as fusion reactor technology. Co-ordinated research programmes and advanced training courses in reactor physics aspects of power reactor operation such as in-core fuel management are initiated and supported.

Nuclear Safety. Safety standards, recommendations, guidance and services to Member States are provided with the aim of ensuring protection of man, property and the environment against any possible harmful effects of radiation arising in the expanding industry.

Basic safety standards which take account of the recommendations of the International Commission on Radiological Protection have been issued and revised periodically. Regulations for the safe transport of radioactive materials have been formulated which now form the basis for the regulations of all international transport organizations and of Member States that are engaged in such international transport.

A system has been established for facilitating the provision of emergency assistance to Member States in the event of a serious radiation accident.

The Agency is in an advanced stage of establishing the most up-to-date set of international safety standards for nuclear power plants in the fields of governmental organization, siting, design, operation and quality assurance. Member States are given up-to-date advice and assistance, through safety advisory missions, on the use of these standards as the basis for the safety of nuclear plants. Specialized courses with topics on nuclear plant safety and radiation protection are held through the technical assistance training programme.

Increasing emphasis is being given to an exchange of information in such fields as safety research, nuclear plant operating experience and emergency preparedness.

An International Conference on Current Nuclear Power Plant Safety Issues was held in Stockholm, Sweden, in October 1980.

Dissemination of Information. The International Nuclear Information System (INIS) provides a computerized indexing and abstracting service. Information on the peaceful uses of atomic energy is collected by member states and international organizations and sent to the IAEA for processing. It is then disseminated in the form of magnetic tapes, a printed abstracting journal, INIS Atomindex or, under special arrangements, directly on-line from the IAEA's computer. The INIS Clearing-house provides microfiche copies of the full text of those documents not readily available through normal commercial channels. IAEA also co-operates with the FAO in an information system for agriculture (AGRIS). The IAEA Nuclear Data Section provides cost-free data centre services and co-operates with other national and regional nuclear and atomic data centres in the systematic worldwide collection, compilation, dissemination and exchange of nuclear reaction data, nuclear structure and decay data, and atomic and molecular data for fusion.

Safeguards. The Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT) requires each non-nuclear-weapon state (one which had not manufactured and exploded a nuclear weapon or other nuclear explosive device prior to January 1st, 1967) Party to the Treaty to conclude a safeguards agreement with the IAEA. Under such an agreement the State undertakes to accept IAEA safeguards on all nuclear material in all its peaceful nuclear activities for the purpose of verifying that such material is not diverted to nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices. Of the 111 non-nuclear-weapon states having ratified or acceded to the NPT, 69 now have safeguards agreements in force, including the seven EEC members.

Two nuclear-weapon states, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A., both Party to NPT, have concluded safeguards agreements with the Agency that permit the application of IAEA safeguards to all their nuclear activities, excluding those with direct national significance. A third nuclear-weapon state, France, has concluded a similar agreement under which it accepts IAEA safeguards on nuclear material in facilities to be designated by France. The agreement with the United Kingdom entered into force on August 14th, 1978 and that with the U.S.A. on December 9th, 1980; the agreement with France was still awaiting entry into force at the end of 1981.

Of the 22 states Party to the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America (Tlatelolco Treaty), 16, being Party to the NPT as well, have concluded safeguards agreements with the IAEA consisting of comprehensive arrangements satisfying the requirements of both the NPT and the Tlatelolco Treaty. Twelve of these arrangements are in force, and two states have concluded safeguards agreements pursuant to the Tlatelolco Treaty only, which have not yet entered into force.

In addition, the IAEA applies safeguards in 16 states under agreements other than those in connection with the NPT and the Tlatelolco Treaty.

Laboratories. The IAEA operates three laboratories, one in Seibersdorf, Austria, one at the Agency's headquarters in Vienna and one in Monaco devoted to the study of marine radioactivity and other forms of marine pollution. The Seibersdorf and Headquarters Laboratories, working jointly, provide services for many of the Agency's programmes in physics, chemistry, hydrology, nuclear medicine, nuclear safeguards, dosimetry and agriculture.

International Centre for Theoretical Physics, Trieste, Italy; brings together scientists from the developed and the developing countries. With support from the Italian government, the Centre has been operated jointly by the IAEA and UNESCO since 1970. Each year it offers one or more lengthy seminars followed by a research workshop, as well as short topical seminars, training courses, symposia and panels. Independent research is also carried out. The programme concentrates on solid-state physics, high-energy and elementary particle physics, physics of nuclear structure and reactions, applicable mathematics and, to a lesser extent, on physics of the earth and the environment and plasma physics.

Nuclear Fuel Cycle. The Agency promotes the exchange of information between Member States on technical, safety, environmental, and economic aspects of nuclear fuel cycle technology, including uranium prospecting and radioactive waste management, provides assistance to Member States in the planning, implementation and operation of nuclear fuel cycle facilities and assists in the development of advanced nuclear fuel cycle technology. Every two years, in collaboration with the OECD, the Agency prepares estimates of world uranium resources, demand and production.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The Agency collects and reviews information and develops guidance for Member States on the safe management of radioactive waste from the nuclear fuel cycle and its impact on the environment.

Continuing attention is given to the technology of handling and treatment of radioactive wastes at nuclear facilities, including waste from uranium mining and milling, liquid and gaseous effluents, low-, intermediate- and high-level wastes, and decommissioning of nuclear facilities.

A programme is under way to develop acceptable guidelines on the safe underground disposal of radioactive wastes ranging from shallow burial to emplacement in deep geological formations.

BUDGET

The agency is financed by regular and voluntary contributions from member states.

The regular budget for 1981 was U.S. $88,677,000. The target for voluntary contributions to finance the IAEA

WORLD FOOD PROGRAMME—WFP

Via delle Terme di Caracalla, 00100 Rome, Italy

WFP is a joint UN-FAO effort to stimulate economic and social development through food aid and to provide emergency relief. It became operational in January 1963 after parallel resolutions of the UN General Assembly and the FAO Conference to establish it in late 1961.

ORGANIZATION

Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes (GFA): 30 members, 15 elected by ECOSOC and 15 by FAO.

Joint UN-FAO Administrative Unit: carries out the day-to-day activities of the WFP.

Executive Director: BERNARDO DE AZEVEDO BRITO (Brazil) (acting).

ACTIVITIES

Member governments of the United Nations and FAO make voluntary contributions of commodities, cash, and services (particularly shipping) to WFP, which uses the food for economic and social development projects in the developing countries and for emergency relief for victims of natural and man-made disasters. The food is supplied, for example, as an incentive in development self-help schemes, as part wages in labour-intensive projects of many kinds, particularly in the rural economy, but also in the industrial field, and in support of institutional feeding schemes where the emphasis is mainly on enabling the beneficiaries to have an adequate and balanced diet. One of the criteria for WFP aid to projects is that the recipient country can continue them after the aid has ceased.

The steep rise in world commodity prices forced the Programme to make severe cuts in its activities during 1973-74. Following the World Food Conference in Rome in November 1974, however, a number of countries increased their contributions. The pledging target figure for 1981/82 was set at $1,000 million, and by June 1981 72 per cent of this figure had been reached. Following a new set of priorities the Programme is giving highest priority to Least Developed and Most Seriously Affected Countries and to projects for agricultural development and for vulnerable groups.

As at June 30th, 1981, 1,070 development projects in 114 countries had been approved since the beginning of the Programme's operations at a total cost to WFP of U.S. $4,503 million. Broken down by region: in Latin America and the Caribbean, 149 projects in 29 countries; in North Africa and the Near East, 190 projects in 12 countries; in West Africa, 219 projects in 27 countries; in Mediterranean Europe and East Africa, 203 projects in 22 countries; in Asia and the Pacific, 309 projects in 24 countries. In addition, 532 emergency operations have been undertaken in 95 countries at a total cost to the Programme of $799 million.

Examples of the projects approved during the second half of 1980 include the provision of food for families being re-settled in Ethiopia owing to drought; rations for "food for work" community development projects in Madagascar; school meals in the Seychelles; rations for workers in Fiji replacing hurricane-damaged houses. Emergency operations included supplying food for refugees in Kampuchea, Pakistan, Somalia and Zimbabwe, for drought victims in Mozambique and Nepal, and for those affected by floods and caterpillar infestation in Guinea.

BUDGET

As at June 30th, 1981, the resources made available to the Programme through voluntary contributions by governments, including pledges for the period 1981-82, stood at a total of $4,109 million; $3,024 million were in commodities and $1,085 million in cash and services. A further $369 million worth of food grains was made available to the Programme by signatories of the Food Aid Convention. Contributions totalling $459 million were made available to the programme under the International Emergency Food Reserve.

WORLD FOOD COUNCIL—WFC

Via delle Terme di Caracalla, 00100 Rome, Italy

Created in December 1974, after efforts over more than thirty years to form a world authority for production and distribution of food supplies.

ORGANIZATION

COUNCIL

The Council meets annually and consists of 36 members, elected by the UN General Assembly: one-third retire each year. Membership is drawn from regional groups in the following proportions: nine from Africa, eight from Asia, seven from Latin America, four from the socialist states of Eastern Europe, and eight from Western Europe and North America. Sixth meeting: Arusha, Tanzania, June 1980.

SECRETARIAT

With the help of associated institutions, the Secretariat is to assist the Council in developing the world food strategy, and in keeping a review of the world food situation.

Executive Director: MAURICE J. WILLIAMS (U.S.A.).

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

According to the definitive resolution of the 1974 World Food Conference, the Council should provide overall, integrated and continuing attention to co-ordinate policies on food production, nutrition, food security, food trade and food aid, as well as other related matters, among the agencies of the UN.

The Council reviews problems and proposed actions, and recommends actions; it co-ordinates the activities of the UN in relation to food problems, and co-operates with regional bodies to formulate and follow up the approved policies.

A detailed strategy for food policies was agreed at the World Food Conference in Rome, November 1974.

In 1977 the Council issued a communiqué titled A Programme of Action to Eradicate Hunger and Malnutrition. Drawing attention to the many failures in the campaign against hunger since the 1974 World Food Conference, the communiqué focused attention on urgent steps necessary to end hunger.

According to the World Food Council, the highest priority actions are: (1) increasing food production in developing countries, (2) creating an international grain reserve as part of a world food security system, (3) increasing and improving food aid, (4) improving nutrition in developing countries and (5) reducing barriers to trade in food between developing and developed countries.

Increasing Food Production. Food Priority Countries (FPCs) is a term by which the World Food Council has identified countries with extraordinarily severe food problems. Since the World Food Conference in 1974, per capita food production increased in developed countries and in a number of developing countries. However, per capita food production has remained the same or actually declined since 1974 in food priority countries.

In 1977 the WFC called for an increase in internal and external investment in food priority countries to increase food production by 4 per cent per year. To accomplish this, the WFC estimated that internal investment (from the FPCs themselves) would have to be increased substantially, and external concessional aid from other countries would have to triple from $2,400 million to $6,500 million per year, out of a global estimate of $8,300 million in external resources needed annually for assistance to developing countries for food production. In 1979 a system of "food strategies" was launched, whereby individual developing countries, in collaboration with a particular developed country or institution, were to prepare overall food plans so as to enable a more co-ordinated approach and the best use of aid. By June 1980 32 developing countries had adopted such a scheme, with assistance from ten developed countries, the World Bank, the FAO, the Inter-American Development Bank and UNDP.

Food Security. At the 1980 Council meeting the long-standing issue of grain reserves was discussed: this scheme would involve reserves of 12 million tons of grain to be stored in areas of potential shortage, thereby stabilizing market fluctuations. A decision was, however, postponed until a new International Wheat Agreement with legally binding provisions for the constitution of reserves should be drawn up by the International Wheat Council. The Seventh Special Session of the UN General Assembly recommended an international emergency grain reserve of 500,000 tons. In 1978, allocations for such a reserve totalled only 348,000 tons. In July 1980 a new Food Aid Convention entered into force, increasing the guaranteed minimum level of food aid from grain-exporting countries to developing countries in need from 4.2 to 7.6 million tons a year, which was, however, still short of the 10 million minimum recommended by the WFC.

In the Council report, World Food Security in the 1980s, food security is considered in the broad context of domestic food security in developing countries, international trade and adjustment processes, international food reserves and related questions of food aid and emergency needs. It suggests specific measures to be undertaken by the international community to attack these interrelated problems, so that the 1980s become a positive turning point in the world food security situation. The report also points to the need for assistance to developing countries to achieve food security at the country, and even the local, level by the construction of storage facilities and improvement of transport networks. It further recommends that the IMF create a Food Facility to provide financial assistance to countries faced with sudden increases in the cost of their food imports, over and above food aid. The Facility would be similar to the IMF's Oil Facility. Preliminary estimates suggest that $200 million a year would be needed to finance the Facility, which is under consideration by IMF.

UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE ON TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT— UNCTAD

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 11, 31 02 11.

UNCTAD was set up as an organ of the UN General Assembly by a resolution of December 1964.

MEMBERS

162 members.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

CONFERENCE

Held every four years in different capitals of member states. Fifth session, Manila, Philippines, May-June 1979.

Secretary-General: GAMANI COREA (Sri Lanka).

TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD

Between Conferences, the continuing work of the organization is carried out by the Trade and Development Board together with its various committees and subsidiary bodies.

MAIN COMMITTEES

The Board has six main committees: on commodities, manufactures, invisibles and financing related to trade, shipping, transfer of technology, and economic co-operation among developing countries; there is also a special committee on preferences.

COMMODITY CONFERENCES

As required UNCTAD convenes commodity conferences.

AIMS

UNCTAD aims to evolve a co-ordinated set of policies, to be adopted by all its member states, designed to accelerate the economic development of the developing countries. UNCTAD's concern covers the entire spectrum of policies in both developed and developing countries which influence the external trade and payments and economic development of developing countries.

ACTIVITIES

One of UNCTAD's major endeavours continues to be the implementation of the Integrated Programme for Commodities, of which one of the main aims is to stabilize commodity prices at levels which are remunerative and just to developing countries, while also ensuring supplies in the world market. A key factor of this programme is the Common Fund, designed primarily to finance buffer stocks, which are regarded as a vital element in price stabilization. Articles of Agreement for a Common Fund were adopted in June 1980, after four years of negotiation; by June 1981 35 countries had accepted the agreement, which was to come into force after ratification by 90 countries accounting for two-thirds of directly contributed capital. Negotiations on 18 individual commodity agreements continued in 1981 with little progress.

UNCTAD has adopted an inter-related set of measures and recommendations to expand and diversify the export trade of the developing countries in manufactures and semi-manufactures.

Agreement has been reached to extend the Generalized System of Preferences beyond its original duration of 10 years, and to hold a comprehensive review of the system in 1990. A set of far-reaching principles and rules for the control of restrictive business practices that adversely affect international trade, especially that of developing countries, was adopted in April 1980, representing the climax of more than a decade of the organization's work in this field. UNCTAD has also adopted an action programme on policies and measures for structural adjustment related to trade involving both inter-industry and intra-industry specialization, to enable developing countries to secure an increase in their share of world trade in manufactures. UNCTAD will continue to review developments involving restrictions of trade, with a view to formulating appropriate recommendations concerning the general problem of protectionism. In 1981 UNCTAD drew up proposals for an international export credit guarantee facility involving capital of $800 million, of which $160 million would be paid in; it was estimated that $8,400 million worth of developing countries' export credits would be eligible for guarantees every year.

In the sector of international financial relations, UNCTAD examines the long-term evolution of development assistance, suggests measures to relieve the indebtedness of the poorest developing countries, proposes new financing techniques, and studies requirements for a reformed international monetary system consistent with the needs of development. A group of experts, set up to consider reform of the international monetary system, held its first session in August 1980.

Negotiations on the establishment of an international code of conduct on transfer of technology have continued. The negotiating conference held its third session in April-May 1980.

The economic situation of the world's poorest and weakest 30 countries—the "least developed"—is constantly reviewed by UNCTAD. The General Assembly in 1979, following the adoption of the Substantial New Programme for Action for the 1980s for the least developed countries by UNCTAD V at Manila, decided to convene a special United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries in 1981, to finalize, adopt and support this programme.

The UN Convention on International Multimodal Transport of Goods—establishing a single liability regime for the carrying of goods entailing more than one mode of transport—was adopted in May 1980 after more than seven years of negotiation. UNCTAD is investigating the implications of open-registry fleets for the merchant marines of developing countries and in June 1981 a special UNCTAD session approved a phasing-out programme for "flags of convenience".

UNITED NATIONS RESEARCH INSTITUTE FOR SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT—UNRISD

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Telephone: 98 84 00, 98 58 50.

Established in 1964 as an autonomous UN activity to conduct research into problems and policies of social development and economic development during different phases of economic growth.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

BOARD

Supervises the activities of the Institute. Members include representatives of the Secretary-General of UN, of two of the four Specialized Agencies directly concerned (ILO, UNESCO, FAO, WHO) in rotation, of the Economic Commission for Western Asia, and of the UN regional institutes for Asia, Latin America and Africa, as well as the Institute's Director and seven individuals nominated by the Commission for Social Development and elected by the Economic and Social Council.

Chairman: M. T. DIAWARA (Ivory Coast).

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Director: S. L. BARRACLOUGH (U.S.A.).

Eight full-time and five part-time research officers and assistants, three Fellows, plus various experts and consultants.

ACTIVITIES

The Institute focuses its research on the social implications of global questions that are a major concern of the United Nations and of governments and on what can be done, locally and nationally and by the international community, to speed the achievement of development goals. It believes, however, that this can be accomplished most effectively by first identifying and analysing the impact on different social groups of dominant social processes at the national and local levels. What must be analysed are the social structures and the social forces associated with these processes, the practical policy alternatives in each situation and the social forces that might sustain these alternatives. Studies need to be carried out in a wide variety of ecological and institutional settings. Only then can analyses and generalizations be attempted at inter-country levels. The task is further complicated by the fact that there are seldom simple relationships among different social systems and subsystems.

In 1981 UNRISD's research programme comprised the following long-term studies:

Food and food systems: research aiming at the improvement of food security; main projects in India and Mexico, also in the People's Republic of China, Grenada, Nicaragua and Upper Volta.

People's participation in development: studies in Latin American and Asian people's movements, e.g. the success or otherwise of peasants' and workers' organizations.

Women and socio-economic change: initial case-studies in African countries, examining the changes in women's roles and conditions that accompany agricultural modernization.

Environment and Development: three case studies, on desert reclamation in Egypt, industrial development in Mexico and desertification in India.

Improvement of development statistics: includes a field study in southern India to obtain and analyse data at the local level on the living conditions of the people; other studies aim to improve the collection of information on children (e.g. infant mortality, nutrition, and the extent of primary education) and the reliability of conclusions drawn from statistical data.

BUDGET

UNRISD income was $1,408,593 in 1979, and was expected to be $1,350,000 in 1980. Expenditure was $1,675,160 in 1979.

PUBLICATIONS

UNITED NATIONS INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING AND RESEARCH—UNITAR

801 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established 1965 as an autonomous body within the framework of the United Nations.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Composed of up to 24 members appointed by the UN Secretary-General to serve for three years. The UN Secretary-General and the Presidents of the General Assembly and ECOSOC, and the Executive Director of the Institute are ex-officio members. Specialized agencies are represented appropriately at meetings. The Board meets usually once a year and is responsible for determining basic policies of the Institute and for reviewing and adopting the annual budget.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Executive Director is appointed by the Secretary General, after consultation with the Board, and is responsible for the overall organization, direction and administration of the Institute. He is assisted by the Directors of Training, Research, and the Project on the Future, as well as by the Chief of Finance and Administration.

Executive Director: Dr. DAVIDSON S. H. W. NICOL (Sierra Leone).

AIMS

To improve, by means of training and research, the effectiveness of the United Nations, in particular the maintenance of peace and security and the promotion of economic and social development.

FUNCTIONS

TRAINING

The training programme is designed for members of permanent missions to the UN and other diplomats, staff members of the specialized agencies and for national officials of developing countries concerned with subjects related to the UN. Seminars, symposia and workshops are conducted at United Nations' headquarters in New York and in Geneva and in the field. The programme includes familiarization courses on current UN issues, seminars on the structure and organization of the UN, and training courses on some of the basic elements in multilateral diplomacy: negotiating procedures, the use of UN documentation, etc. Refresher courses in international law for developing country officials have been a long-standing part of UNITAR regional training programmes.

RESEARCH

UNITAR programme of research investigates such issues as the role of ad hoc global conferences in alleviating global problems, the changing nature of the international civil service, relations between the UN and regional organizations, the peaceful settlement of disputes and the effects on the environment of development projects; the research programme also holds regular symposia for UN officials and outside experts and provides background papers to facilitate the work of the UN.

FUTURE STUDIES

In co-operation with other institutes, UNITAR publishes periodic reports on the state of future oriented studies, especially as it relates to the United Nations' activities and international co-operation in the field of development. It also undertakes specific studies to discover the long-term trends in such fields as energy, raw materials, population, food, environment, and technology. The intention is to carry out, for the United Nations, a continuous examination of major world problems and trends that may have implications for the future of mankind and to throw light on areas in which action is considered necessary.

Institute for Research on Disarmament: Geneva; f. 1980 by UNITAR; Dir. LIVIU BOTA (Romania).

PUBLICATIONS

Over 50 titles in English and some in Arabic, French, Spanish and Russian; UNITAR News and Nouvelles de l'UNITAR (several times a year).

UNITED NATIONS DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME—UNDP

One United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Telephone: 754-1234.

Established in 1965 by the General Assembly to help the developing countries increase the wealth-producing capabilities of their natural and human resources.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

AGENCIES PARTICIPATING

The following act as executing agencies or otherwise participate in the work of the UNDP: the UN Department of Technical Co-operation for Development and 24 of the UN agencies and organizations, three regional development banks, five regional economic commissions, the International Fund for Agricultural Development and the Arab Fund for Economic and Social Development.

The UNDP is responsible to the General Assembly, to which it reports through ECOSOC.

Governing Council: representatives of 48 countries; 27 seats filled by developing countries and 21 by economically more advanced countries; the policy-making body of the UNDP. Meets annually. One-third of the membership changes each year.

President (1981): FRANK OWEN ABDULAH (Trinidad and Tobago).

Administrator: F. BRADFORD MORSE (U.S.A.).

Secretariat: composed of an international staff from over 100 countries.

REGIONAL BUREAUX

Headed by assistant administrators, the regional bureaux share the responsibility for implementing the programme with the Administrator's office. Within certain limitations, large-scale projects may be approved and funding allocated by the Administrator, and smaller-scale projects by the Resident Representatives, based in 114 countries.

The four regional bureaux, all at the Secretariat in New York, cover: Africa; Asia and the Pacific; the Arab states; and Latin America; there is also a Unit for Europe.

FIELD OFFICES

In almost every country receiving UNDP assistance there is a Country Office, headed by the UNDP Resident Representative, who advises the Government on formulating the country programme, sees that the field activities are carried out, and acts as the leader of the UN team of experts working in the country. Resident Representatives are normally designated as co-ordinators for all UN operational development activities; the field offices function as the primary presence of the UN in most developing countries.

ACTIVITIES

As the world's largest agency for channelling technical co-operation, the UNDP works with over 150 governments and 35 international agencies for faster economic growth and better standards of living throughout Asia, Africa, Latin America, the Middle East and parts of Europe. To this end, UNDP supported 5,211 projects in 1980, spending $668.6 million, an increase of 22 per cent over the previous year, in agriculture, industry, education, power production, transport, communications, health, public administration, housing, trade and related fields. Also included are activities designed to advance such important goals as the establishment of a new international economic order, technical co-operation among developing countries (TCDC) and increased involvement of women in development. Around two-thirds of UNDP's assistance goes to countries where per capita G.N.P.s are under $500.

Project work covers five main areas: locating, assessing and activating latent natural resources and other development assets; stimulating capital investment to help realize these possibilities; support for professional and vocational training; expansion of scientific research and applied technology; and strengthening of national and regional development planning.

FINANCE

The Development Programme is financed by the voluntary contributions of members of the United Nations and the Programme's participating Agencies. Pledges by governments for 1980 amounted to $703.1 million.

PUBLICATIONS*Report and Review* (annual).TCDC News (quarterly).AFFILIATED ORGANIZATIONS*REVOLVING FUND FOR NATURAL RESOURCES
EXPLORATION (RFNRE)

The RFNRE was established in 1974 to provide risk capital for natural resources (particularly minerals) exploration in developing countries. The revolving character of the Fund, which distinguishes it from most other UN system technical co-operation programmes, lies in the undertaking of contributing governments to make replenishment contributions to the Fund when the projects it finances lead to commercial production.

In 1980 some $3.8 million of loans underwrote prospecting for sea-bed phosphates, gold, zinc, lead, copper, nickel, kaolin and rare earths.

UNITED NATIONS VOLUNTEERS

The United Nations Volunteers (UNV) is an important source of urgently needed middle-level skills for the UN development system supplied at modest cost, particularly in the least developed countries. Volunteers expand the scope of UNDP project activities by supplementing the work of international and host country experts and by extending the influence of projects to local community levels. One of the most important parts of its work is the support of technical co-operation within and among the developing countries by encouraging volunteers from the countries themselves and by forming regional exchange teams made up of such volunteers. UNV is also engaged in a variety of activities to increase youth participation in development and to promote the involvement of domestic development services.

By 1981 over 1,000 volunteers, including agronomists, architects, health workers, teachers, engineers and industrial technicians, were working in 87 developing countries.

THE UNITED NATIONS SUDANO-SAHELIAN OFFICE

The United Nations Sudano-Sahelian Office (UNSO) coordinates United Nations efforts to help fifteen drought-stricken Sudano-Sahelian countries carry out their recovery and development plans. Programmes to develop agriculture and increase crop production through seed multiplication and the provision of fertilizers, pest controls, agricultural tools and irrigation systems form an important part of UNSO's work. Projects are also devoted to the rehabilitation and expansion of livestock herds, feeder roads, forest and water resources, agro-meteorological and hydrological services, fisheries, food storage facilities, vocational training and health care.

By December 1980 the Office had mobilized $646 million of bilateral and multilateral financing for 88 national and 25 regional projects. UNSO has also been assigned responsibility for combating desertification.

Other special funds include the Interim Fund for Science and Technology, which by June 1981 had approved 60 project proposals submitted by governments seeking the fund's help in strengthening their scientific and technological capabilities; the Energy Account, which works with the World Bank to carry out energy sector assessments in developing countries; and the Trust Fund for Projects Financed by the Voluntary Fund for the UN Decade for Women.

UNITED NATIONS CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT FUND

c/o United Nations, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established by the UN General Assembly in December 1966, the Capital Development Fund became fully operational in 1974 following a significant increase in its resources.

ORGANIZATIONEXECUTIVE BOARD

Composed of twenty-four members, elected by the General Assembly, with equitable representation of developed and developing countries. Decides on policy matters and approves loans and grants. The Board meets at least once a year; for the time being the Governing Council of UNDP acts in its place.

MANAGING DIRECTOR

Chief executive officer; approves requests for grants and loans.

Managing Director: The Administrator of UNDP (pro tem.).

FUNCTIONS

Assists developing countries by supplementing existing sources of capital assistance by means of grants and loans on concessionary terms.

Rapid assistance is available to governments for small-scale projects directly and immediately benefiting the low-income groups who have not benefited from earlier development efforts.

Assistance may be given to any of the member states of the UN system, and is not necessarily limited to specific projects. The Fund is mainly used for the benefit of the 30 least-developed countries.

By the end of 1980 168 projects in 35 of the world's poorest countries had been financed by grants and long-term loans totalling $165.2 million. The chief areas of assistance were "self-help" activities, e.g. farm credit, agro-industry, rural and feeder roads, housing, rural schools, electrification, health and nutrition.

FINANCE

Administrative Activities: financed by the regular budget of the UNDP.

Operational Activities: financed by voluntary contributions, in cash or kind, from governments or other sources. Contributions pledged for 1980 were $28.6 million.

UNITED NATIONS INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION—
UNIDO

P.O.B. 300, 1400 Vienna, Austria

Telephone: 26 31 0.

Began operations in 1967, following a resolution of the General Assembly, to assist in the industrialization of the developing countries through direct assistance and mobilization of national and international resources. At a conference held in Vienna in March and April 1979 82 UN members adopted by consensus a Constitution under which UNIDO would become, subject to ratification, a UN Specialized Agency. By the end of 1980, 98 states had signed the Constitution and 28 had ratified it.

ORGANIZATION

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD

Composed of 45 members, 15 elected annually for three-year periods by the UN General Assembly from among the members of the UN or its related agencies. Meets annually; formulates principles and policies; co-ordinates all activities within the UN system in the field of industrial development. A subsidiary body, the Permanent Committee, holds two sessions a year.

President (1981): KANTILAL L. DALAL (India).

Secretary: ALI NEKUNAM (Iran).

SECRETARIAT

Has overall responsibility for UNIDO's programme for industrial development and co-operation. UNIDO is an executing agency of the UNDP.

Executive Director: Dr. ABD-EL RAHMAN KHANE (Algeria).

FIELD ORGANIZATION

UNIDO has expanded its network of Senior Industrial Development Field Advisers and reinforced it with Junior Professional Officers in order to facilitate procedures for consultations, contacts and methods of co-operation with governments, regional organizations and other bodies.

FUNCTIONS

Activities cover macro-economic and micro-economic aspects of industrial development. At macro-economic level, questions are considered concerning the formulation of industrial development policies, planning, programming, surveys, infrastructure and structure, and institutional services to industry. At micro-economic level, assistance is provided in problems of pre-feasibility and feasibility of industry or plant, investment and financing, production and productivity, product development and design, technology and techniques, management, marketing, quality and research.

Operational Activities

Technical assistance is provided on request to developing countries or governments, industries or other bodies. Such assistance usually consists of expert services, but can also include supply of equipment or fellowships for training, such as in management or production.

Promotional Activities

Consist mainly in action taken by the Secretariat in providing contacts between industrialized and developing countries and identifying possibilities for the solution of specific problems in developing countries. Examples of promotional activities are: investment promotion, international sub-contracting, information service and the partnership programme.

There are Investment Promotion Offices in Brussels, Cologne, New York, Paris, Tokyo, Vienna and Zürich to publicize investment opportunities and provide information to investors.

United Nations (Other Bodies)

Supporting Activities

Activities carried out by the Secretariat include research and investigation, organization of seminars, working groups, and other specialist meetings on all subjects concerning industrial and technological development of developing countries. Special attention is given to such areas where research and analysis can lead to an improved performance such as transfer and adaptation of appropriate technology.

ACTIVITIES

At the end of 1980 the value of technical assistance delivered by UNIDO to the developing countries was $76.3 million, compared with $70.5 million in 1979. Field activities involved a total of 1,330 projects and 1,406 experts worked on UNIDO projects all over the world. During the year 375 new projects, valued at $53.7 million, were approved, compared with 632, valued at $82.2 million, in 1979. Delivery of equipment and consultant services for the year was worth $27.3 million. A statistical review by project component shows that project personnel accounted for 47.4 per cent, fellowships and training 14.8 per cent and sub-contracts and equipment 35.9 per cent.

The system of consultations, introduced in 1977, is designed to help developing countries increase their share of total world production as much as possible, as recommended in the Lima Declaration and Plan of Action on Industrial Development and Co-operation (see below). Three consultation meetings were convened in 1980: a third round on the fertilizer industry, a second round on leather and a first meeting on the pharmaceutical industry. The meetings were attended by representatives of government, labour, industry, consumer interests and financial institutions from an average of 70 countries, who examined prospects and targets for the growth of production of the commodity concerned until the year 2000 in both developed and developing countries. At all meetings the need was stressed to harmonize expansion plans to maintain a reasonable balance between world demand and supply, and to make contractual arrangements for industrial co-operation among developing countries.

The United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Development (UNCSTD), convened in Vienna in August 1979, adopted the Vienna Programme of Action on Science and Technology for Development, which includes recommendations for an institutional and funding base for more determined international action. A major decision taken by UNIDO's governing body was to establish the Industrial and Technological Information Bank (INTIB), which aids technology selection prior to its acquisition and generates information on technological alternatives.

Fellowship Awards. During 1980, UNIDO awarded 992 fellowships. A total of 56 group training programmes were carried out, and training was provided for over 1,000 nationals of developing countries through fellowships, group training programmes and workshops in factories, study tours and as counterparts attached to field projects.

GENERAL CONFERENCE

The 1975 Conference adopted the Lima Declaration and Plan of Action on Industrial Development and Co-operation, based on a document drafted by the Group of 77, and called for the share of developing countries in total world industrial production to be increased to at least 25 per cent by the year 2000. Recognizing that the autonomy and functions of UNIDO should be increased and expanded substantially, the Conference recommended that the organization should be converted into a specialized agency and that an industrial development fund should be established. These recommendations were accepted by the General Assembly in September 1975 and five sessions were held in 1976-77 to draft a constitution for UNIDO as a specialized agency of the UN. The General Assembly convened a Conference of Plenipotentiaries in New York in February and March 1978, and a second conference in Vienna in March and April 1979, on the Establishment of UNIDO as a Specialized Agency. At the latter a new constitution was adopted which will come into effect when at least 80 States have deposited instruments of ratification, acceptance or approval. By September 1981 98 States had signed the constitution.

The third General Conference took place in New Delhi, India, in January and February 1980. The New Delhi Declaration and Plan of Action was adopted by the Conference but was, however, rejected by delegates from 22 developed countries. The plan included the transformation of the UNIDO system of consultations into negotiations to seek definite commitments on the redeployment of industry to developing countries; and the establishment of an inter-governmental committee to consider ways and means of increasing the developing countries' share of world trade in industrial products.

FINANCE

The sources from which UNIDO derives its finance include: the UN Regular Budget, the UN Development Programme, the Special Industrial Services Programme, trust-fund and cost-sharing arrangements, the UN Industrial Development Fund and the UN Interim Fund for Science and Technology for Development, which approved its first batch of projects in 1980. The amount for UNIDO's programme budget for 1980-81 was U.S. $75.4 million.

Regular programme of technical co-operation: The total appropriation for the biennium 1980-81 was $6.7 million, including non-convertible currencies. Training, financed under the programme, plays an important role. The scheme also includes regional advisory and special services designed to provide impetus to the industrialization of the least developed countries. A new part of the regular programme was that which deals with promoting technical and economic co-operation among developing countries.

United Nations Industrial Development Fund: In December 1976 the UN General Assembly decided to establish a United Nations Industrial Development Fund (UNIDF) to enable UNIDO to meet, more promptly and flexibly, the needs of the developing countries. The First Pledging Conference took place on October 28th, 1977, and by the end of the year 70 countries had announced contributions amounting to $7.3 million. The amount pledged for 1981 was $12.3 million. The Industrial Development Board has recommended a desirable annual funding level of $50 million.

UNITED NATIONS FUND FOR POPULATION ACTIVITIES—UNFPA

220 E. 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Telephone: 754-1234.

Created in 1967 as the Trust Fund for Population Activities. Became a Fund of the UN General Assembly in 1972 and was made a subsidiary organ of the UN General Assembly in 1979, with the UNDP Governing Council designated as its governing body.

ORGANIZATION

(September 1981)

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Executive Director, who has the rank of Under-Secretary-General of the UN, is responsible for the overall direction of the Fund, working closely with governments, United Nations bodies and agencies, regional groups, and non-governmental organizations to ensure the most effective programming and use of resources in population activities.

Executive Director: RAFAEL M. SALAS (Philippines).

EXECUTING AGENCIES

In most projects assistance is extended through member organizations of the UN system; ultimate responsibility for execution of projects lies with recipient governments, using the services of the UN organizations as required. The Fund may also call on the services of non-governmental organizations in this role and sometimes it acts as its own executing agency.

FIELD ORGANIZATION

UNFPA Co-ordinators, attached to the offices of the UNDP Resident Representatives, assist governments in formulating requests for aid and co-ordinate the work of the executing agencies in any given country or area.

FUNCTIONS

Projects supported by the Fund fall within eight categories: basic data collection; population dynamics; formulation and evaluation of population policies; implementation of policies; family planning; communication and education; special programmes; multi-sector activities. The Executive Director of the Fund was also assigned primary responsibility within the UN system for all information and education activities for the World Population Year, 1974. The World Population Conference was held in Bucharest, Romania, in August 1974, at which a World Population Plan of Action was adopted by consensus of 136 states.

ACTIVITIES

By the end of 1980 the Fund was financing over 1,831 projects, including those in over 120 countries and regional, interregional and global projects. A major priority in recent years has been the negotiation of comprehensive country agreements under which the basic requirements are provided for national population programmes and for which long-term financial commitments by the UNFPA are made for periods ranging from 3 to 5 years.

Assistance by the Fund is provided in a variety of areas:

1. collection and study of data on population trends and structure through censuses, vital statistics and civil registration and sample surveys and the analysis of their results;
2. improvement of knowledge of the implications of population trends and of the interrelationships between population and food demand and other aspects of economic and social development;
3. formulation of population policies in accordance with national development objectives;
4. direct support to national family planning activities by giving assistance with such matters as stipends for training, transport, supplies and equipment and operational studies;
5. development of information and education programmes;
6. training of personnel for research and operational activities;
7. improvement of the application of existing methods of fertility regulation and promotion of research in human reproduction, especially research which may lead to the introduction of new methods suitable for the developing countries;
8. exploration of social and economic policies and measures to accomplish population goals within the context of development;
9. study of motivation for the acceptance or otherwise of family planning, and the improvement of communication techniques and their application;
10. establishment of demonstration and pilot projects to develop the most effective organization of family planning programmes at various levels.

Africa. During 1980 the UNFPA allocated $21.4 million for 207 projects in 45 countries, as well as 32 regional projects. A major project is the African Census Programme.

Asia and the Pacific. During 1980 the UNFPA allocated $55.8 million for 369 projects in 29 countries and areas as well as 47 regional projects. Most of the projects in this geographical area support national family planning programmes.

Latin America and the Caribbean. During 1980 the UNFPA allocated $26.8 million for 148 projects in 36 countries as well as 34 regional projects. Many of these projects are in the area of maternal and child health and demographic analysis as well as in the relationship between socio-economic development and population.

Europe, the Mediterranean and the Middle East. During 1980 the UNFPA allocated $18.1 million for 179 projects in 27 countries and 30 regional projects. Many of these are in the nature of demographic studies and analysis of population data for economic and social development.

Interregional and Global. During 1980 the UNFPA allocated $28.4 million for 211 projects, including assistance for the population activities of the UN Regional Economic Commissions for Africa, Asia and the Pacific, Latin America, and Western Asia, for workers' population education programmes of the ILO, rural education and training programmes of the FAO, population education programmes of UNESCO, health and research activities of the WHO, procurement and stock-piling of contraceptives and family planning equipment by UNICEF, and for a variety of projects carried out by such non-governmental organizations as the International Statistical Institute (World Fertility Survey), International Planned Parenthood Federation, etc.

FINANCE

In 1980 contributions to UNFPA amounted to $125.4 million. The fund approved allocations for expenditure in 1980 of $150.5 million, including $25.3 million in unexpended allocations carried over from 1979.

ALLOCATIONS BY CATEGORY (1980)

	(U.S. $ million)
Family planning	62.8
Basic data collection	28.9
Communication and education	17.4
Population dynamics	17.2
Multi-sector activities	12.9
Formulation and evaluation of policies	7.5
Special programmes	2.5
Implementation of policies	1.3

OFFICE OF THE UNITED NATIONS DISASTER RELIEF CO-ORDINATOR—UNDRO

Palais des Nations, CH-1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 11.

Established in 1972 to mobilize and co-ordinate international emergency relief to disaster-stricken areas, and to co-operate in promoting disaster preparedness and prevention.

ORGANIZATION

(September 1981)

DISASTER RELIEF CO-ORDINATOR

In March 1972 a Disaster Relief Co-ordinator was appointed, at Under-Secretary-General level, to report directly to the UN Secretary-General. UNDRO is a separate entity within the UN Secretariat.

Co-ordinator: FARUK N. BERKOL (Turkey).

FIELD ORGANIZATION

UNDRO is represented in developing countries by the Resident Representatives of the UNDP. UNDRO also has a Liaison Office at UN headquarters in New York.

FUNCTIONS

The Office has three broad functions. The first is that of relief co-ordination: to ensure that, in case of natural or other disaster, the emergency relief activities of all donor sources are mobilized and co-ordinated so as to supply the needs of the disaster-stricken country in a timely and effective manner. Its second function is that of preparation: to raise the level of pre-disaster planning and preparedness, including disaster assessment and relief management capability, in disaster-prone developing countries. Thirdly, there is the function of prevention: to promote the study, prevention, control and prediction of natural disasters, including the collection and dissemination of information concerning technological developments.

ACTIVITIES

During 1980 UNDRO was directly involved in 15 major disasters which affected more than 20 countries. As a co-ordinating Office, UNDRO is not itself regarded as a principal source of relief assistance, although the Co-ordinator has the authority to make a contribution not exceeding U.S. $30,000 for any one disaster (and not exceeding in total U.S. $360,000 in one year) to meet immediate needs, e.g. for medicines, food or the transport of life-saving equipment. The Co-ordinator is also empowered to receive contributions in kind or in cash to be used for providing relief supplies. However, the greater part of the international assistance provided goes direct to the country concerned. Normally, it can be expected that the amount and nature of these contributions will be based upon the information given in UNDRO "situation reports" which are sent by telex to donor sources and other interested organizations throughout the world. In 1980 contributions for emergency relief reported to UNDRO, mobilized by it or channelled through it, exceeded $215 million. UNDRO staff members are often sent to a disaster-stricken country to assist in the tasks of assessment of damage and needs, and of local co-ordination of relief activity. During 1980 UNDRO organized or participated in 20 multi-agency disaster assessment missions, of which the most important were in Africa, the People's Republic of China and the Caribbean.

Disaster preparedness advisory missions are usually undertaken by consultants hired by UNDRO, who advise governments on the best methods of improving their organization to deal with all kinds of disasters, and not just those which arise from natural causes. The recommendations of these missions sometimes call for specific projects to be carried out, and if these cannot be funded by the government then UNDRO may be asked to seek the necessary financing from donors. Preparedness organizations naturally need trained personnel, and UNDRO arranges or takes part in many seminars for disaster managers and others concerned in relief work, in the preparation and issue of warnings, and in the application of new technologies to disaster work generally. UNDRO is also engaged in attempts to remove obstacles to the rapid delivery of international relief, and this requires willingness by donors as well as by potential recipients to streamline procedures and to waive normal legal requirements for the movement of relief goods and personnel.

In the area of disaster prevention UNDRO is engaged in development of techniques of vulnerability analysis and their application: in trying to ensure that precautions against existing hazards are observed in the planning of new development projects, and that the projects themselves should not create new hazards; and in promoting the use of legislation, land-use planning and other inexpensive methods of reducing or eliminating disaster risks.

Budget. The amount allocated to UNDRO in the regular budget of the UN for the biennium 1980-81 was U.S. $4,762,000, supplemented by a voluntary trust fund established by the General Assembly in 1974.

UNITED NATIONS ENVIRONMENT PROGRAMME—UNEP

P.O.B. 30552, Nairobi, Kenya

Telephone: 333930.

The United Nations Environment Programme was established in 1972 by the UN General Assembly following recommendations of the 1972 UN Conference on the Human Environment, in Stockholm, Sweden, to provide machinery for international co-operation in matters relating to the human environment.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

GOVERNING COUNCIL

Fifty-eight states are members (16 African, 13 Asian, 10 Latin American, 6 Eastern European and 13 Western European and other states). The main function of the Governing Council is to provide general policy guidelines for the direction and co-ordination of environmental programmes within the UN system.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat serves as a focal point for environmental action and co-ordinates all environment activities within the UN system.

Executive Director: MOSTAFA K. TOLBA (Egypt).

LIAISON AND REGIONAL OFFICES

Liaison Office: ALCOA Bldg., Room A-3630, 866 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10163, U.S.A.

Europe: Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland.

Asia and the Pacific: UN Bldg., 10th Floor, Rajadamnern Ave., Bangkok, Thailand.

Latin America: Presidente Mazaryk 29, Ap. Postal 6-718, México 5, D.F., Mexico.

West Asia: P.O.B. 4656, Ouiedat Bldg., Bir Hassan, Beirut, Lebanon.

THE ENVIRONMENT FUND

The Environment Fund, administered by the UNEP Secretariat, was established to provide voluntary additional financing for the initiatives of the Programme and co-operative projects with other bodies. By 1980 the Fund had financed over 400 projects and pledges totalled U.S. $31,859,593.

ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE ON CO-ORDINATION

Under the Chairmanship of the UN Secretary-General, the Committee, composed of heads of organizations within the UN system, strives to ensure co-operation and co-ordination among all bodies concerned in the implementation of environmental programmes.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

In co-operation with other international organizations and with governments, UNEP aims to maintain a constant watch on the changing state of the environment; to analyse the trends; to assess the problems using a wide range of data and techniques; and to promote projects leading to environmentally sound development.

Environmental assessment is carried out by three main services: the Global Environmental Monitoring System (GEMS) which works with other UN organizations on surveillance activities, particularly in the fields of pollution, climate and renewable natural resources, and aims to standardize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data; INFOTERRA, a world-wide network which assists organizations and individuals in locating sources of information on the environment, and publishes a Directory of Sources; and the International Register of Potentially Toxic Chemicals.

UNEP also provides an Information Service, an Education Unit and Regional Advisory Services; it provides material and expertise for the drafting of conventions, treaties and codes on environmental issues.

In March 1980 the World Conservation Strategy was launched jointly with the International Union for the Conservation of Natural Resources and the World Wildlife Fund. The Strategy summarizes the main requirements for sustainable development and sets up conservation priorities for the Third Development Decade.

Other activities included the development of UNEP's Regional Seas Programme and the Plan of Action to Combat Desertification, with further action plans covering climate impact, tropical forests, carbon dioxide atmospheric pollution and a global soils policy.

UNEP supervises a programme to develop the Mediterranean, reduce pollution and protect its marine environment. The programme is in three parts, the first of which is a Convention and two protocols signed in Barcelona, Spain, in 1976, which became international law in February 1978. By September 1980 it had been ratified by 16 Mediterranean states (excepting Albania and Turkey). The second part is a diagnostic investigation of the Mediterranean being carried out by 16 countries. The third part, to be carried out over the next 10 or 15 years, consists of five or six priority programmes and a long-term study of the development plans of the Mediterranean governments. In 1980 there were 84 marine laboratories working on these projects. In May 1980, at a conference in Athens, the Mediterranean countries approved a treaty for the control of pollution of inland origin (factory waste, sewage, agricultural chemicals, etc.), while in March 1981 they agreed on a three-year programme, costing about $12 million, of anti-pollution activities. Conservation programmes for the Caribbean and the West African coast were also approved in March 1981.

Budget: During its first five years, UNEP had a budget of U.S. $100 million. The budget for 1978-81 was $150 million. The proposed 1982 budget was $43 million.

CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS

We the peoples of the United Nations determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends to practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and to ensure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Accordingly, our respective Governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

CHAPTER I

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

Article 1

The Purposes of the United Nations are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace:

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion; and

4. To be a centre for harmonizing the accusations of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Article 2

The Organization and its Members, in pursuit of the Purposes stated in Article 1, shall act in accordance with the following Principles.

1. The Organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its Members.

2. All Members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfil in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present Charter.

3. All Members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered.

4. All Members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations.

5. All Members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the present Charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The Organization shall ensure that states which are not Members of the United Nations act in accordance with these Principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present Charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the Members to submit such matters to settlement under the present Charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II

MEMBERSHIP

Article 3

The original Members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco, or having previously signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1, 1942, sign the present Charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110.

Article 4

1. Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgement of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

2. The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 5

A Member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

Article 6

A Member of the United Nations which has persistently violated the Principles contained in the present Charter may be expelled from the Organization by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

CHAPTER VI
PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

Article 33

1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their disputes by such means.

Article 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 35

1. Any Member of the United Nations may bring any dispute, or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 34, to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present Charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under this Article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

Article 36

1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this Article the Security Council should also take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the Statute of the Court.

Article 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that Article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

Article 38

Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33 to 37, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a pacific settlement of the dispute.

CHAPTER VII

ACTION WITH RESPECT TO THREATS TO THE PEACE, BREACHES OF THE PEACE, AND ACTS OF AGGRESSION

Article 39

The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

Article 40

In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 39, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims, or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

Article 41

The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon the Members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

Article 42

Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea, or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade, and other operations by air, sea, or land forces of Members of the United Nations.

Article 43

1. All Members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and Members or between the Security Council and groups of Members and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

Article 44

When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a Member not represented on it to provide armed forces in fulfilment of the obligations assumed under Article 43, invite that Member, if the Member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contingents of that Member's armed forces.

Article 45

In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, Members shall hold immediately available national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement and agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 46

Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 47

1. There shall be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Security Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, the regulation of armaments, and possible disarmament.

2. The Military Staff Committee shall consist of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any Member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the Committee shall be invited by the Committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the Committee's responsibilities requires the participation of that Member in its work.

3. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible under the Security Council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be worked out subsequently.

4. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorization of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional sub-committees.

Article 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the Members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the Members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

Article 49

The Members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

Article 50

If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a Member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

Article 51

Nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defence if an armed attack occurs against a Member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by Members in the exercise of this right of self-defence shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII REGIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

Article 52

1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

2. The Members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council shall encourage the development of pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This Article in no way impairs the application of Articles 34 and 35.

Article 53

1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as defined in paragraph 2 of this Article, provided for pursuant to Article 107 or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the Organization may, on request of the Governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term enemy state as used in paragraph 1 of this Article applies to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present Charter.

Article 54

The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL
CO-OPERATION*Article 55*

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the United Nations shall promote:

- higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;
- solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational co-operation; and
- universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

Article 56

All Members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in co-operation with the Organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 57

1. The various specialized agencies, established by intergovernmental agreement and having wide international responsibilities, as defined in their basic instruments, in economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related fields, shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of Article 63.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

2. Such agencies thus brought into relationship with the United Nations are hereinafter referred to as specialized agencies.

Article 58

The Organization shall make recommendations for the co-ordination of the policies and activities of the specialized agencies.

Article 59

The Organization shall, where appropriate, initiate negotiations among the states concerned for the creation of any new specialized agencies required for the accomplishment of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 60

Responsibility for the discharge of the functions of the Organization set forth in this Chapter shall be vested in the General Assembly and, under the authority of the General Assembly, in the Economic and Social Council, which shall have for this purpose the powers set forth in Chapter X.

CHAPTER X

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Composition

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of eighteen Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, six members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be chosen. The term of office of six members so chosen shall expire at the end of one year, and of six other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 62

1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the Members of the United Nations, and to the specialized agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

Article 63

1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into agreements with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements shall be subject to approval by the General Assembly.

United Nations (Charter)

2. It may co-ordinate the activities of the specialized agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly and to the Members of the United Nations.

Article 64

1. The Economic and Social Council may take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the specialized agencies. It may make arrangements with the Members of the United Nations and with specialized agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and to recommendations on matters falling within its competence made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observations on these reports to the General Assembly.

Article 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

Article 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies.

3. It shall perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter or as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

Voting

Article 67

1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 68

The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

Article 69

The Economic and Social Council shall invite any Member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that Member.

Article 70

The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialized agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

Article 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the Member of the United Nations concerned.

Article 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI

NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

Article 73

Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present Charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and, to this end:

- (a) to ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses;
- (b) to develop self-government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;
- (c) to further international peace and security;
- (d) to promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to co-operate with one another and, when and where appropriate, with specialized international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic, and scientific purposes set forth in this Article; and
- (e) to transmit regularly to the Secretary-General for information purposes, subject to such limitations as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information, of a technical nature relating to economic, social, and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII apply.

Article 74

Members of the United Nations also agree that their policy in respect of the territories to which this Chapter applies, no less than in respect of their metropolitan areas, must be based on the general principles of good-neighbourliness, due account being taken of the interests and well-being of the rest of the world, in social, economic, and commercial matters.

CHAPTER XII

INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

Article 75

The United Nations shall establish under its authority an international trusteeship system for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are hereinafter referred to as trust territories.

Article 76

The basic objectives of the trusteeship system, in accordance with the Purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article 1 of the present Charter, shall be:

- (a) to further international peace and security;

- (b) to promote the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the trust territories, and their progressive development towards self-government or independence as may be appropriate to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement;
- (c) to encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world; and
- (d) to ensure equal treatment in social, economic, and commercial matters for all Members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives and subject to the provisions of Article 80.

Article 77

1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements:

- (a) territories now held under mandate;
- (b) territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the Second World War; and
- (c) territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement as to which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms.

Article 78

The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become Members of the United Nations, relationship among which shall be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

Article 79

The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed under the trusteeship system, including any alteration or amendment, shall be agreed upon by the states directly concerned, including the mandatory power in the case of territories held under mandate by a Member of the United Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

Article 80

1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeship agreements, made under Articles 77, 79, and 81, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this Chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which Members of the United Nations may respectively be parties.

2. Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as provided for in Article 77.

Article 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which will exercise the administration of the trust territory. Such authority, hereinafter called the administering authority, may be one or more states or the Organization itself.

Article 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

Article 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the trusteeship system relating to political, economic, social, and educational matters in the strategic areas.

Article 84

It shall be the duty of the administering authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the administering authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations towards the Security Council undertaken in this regard by the administering authority, as well as for local defence and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

Article 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, operating under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

CompositionArticle 86

1. The Trusteeship Council shall consist of the following Members of the United Nations:

- (a) those Members administering trust territories;
- (b) such of those Members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories; and
- (c) as many other Members elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members of the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those Members of the United Nations which administer trust territories and those which do not.

2. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall designate one specially qualified person to represent it therein.

Functions and PowersArticle 87

The General Assembly and, under its authority, the Trusteeship Council, in carrying out their functions, may:

- (a) consider reports submitted by the administering authority;
- (b) accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the administering authority;

- (c) provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon with the administering authority; and
- (d) take these and other actions in conformity with the terms of the trusteeship agreements.

Article 88

The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the administering authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire.

VotingArticle 89

1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

ProcedureArticle 90

1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

Article 91

The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council and of the specialized agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned.

CHAPTER XIV

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Article 92

The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It shall function in accordance with the annexed Statute, which is based upon the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice and forms an integral part of the present Charter.

Article 93

1. All Members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may become a party to the Statute of the International Court of Justice on condition to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 94

1. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the Court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgment.

Article 95

Nothing in the present Charter shall prevent Members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future.

Article 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and specialized agencies, which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the Court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV THE SECRETARIAT

Article 97

The Secretariat shall comprise a Secretary-General and such staff as the Organization may require. The Secretary-General shall be appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the Organization.

Article 98

The Secretary-General shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council, and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The Secretary-General shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the Organization.

Article 99

The Secretary-General may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 100

1. In the performance of their duties the Secretary-General and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the Organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the Organization.

2. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the Secretary-General and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

Article 101

1. The staff shall be appointed by the Secretary-General under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staffs shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and, as required, to other organs of the United Nations. These staffs shall form a part of the Secretariat.

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence, and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 102

1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any Member of the United Nations after the present Charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

2. No party to any such treaty or international agreement which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article may invoke that treaty or agreement before any organ of the United Nations.

Article 103

In the event of a conflict between the obligations of the Members of the United Nations under the present Charter and their obligations under any other international agreement, their obligations under the present Charter shall prevail.

Article 104

The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfilment of its purposes.

Article 105

1. The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfilment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the Members of the United Nations and officials of the Organization shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the Organization.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article or may propose conventions to the Members of the United Nations for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII TRANSITIONAL SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS

Article 106

Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43 as in the opinion of the Security Council enable it to begin the exercise of its responsibilities under Article 42, the parties to the Four-Nation Declaration signed at Moscow, October 30, 1943, and France, shall, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 5 of that Declaration, consult with one another and as occasion requires with other Members of the United Nations with a view to such joint action on behalf of the Organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

Article 107

Nothing in the present Charter shall invalidate or preclude action, in relation to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present Charter, taken or authorized as a result of that war by the Governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII AMENDMENTS

Article 108

Amendments to the present Charter shall come into force for all Members of the United Nations when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

United Nations (Charter)

2. Any alteration of the present Charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the coming into force of the present Charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX RATIFICATION AND SIGNATURE

Article 110

1. The present Charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. The ratifications shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the Secretary-General of the Organization when he has been appointed.

3. The present Charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, and by a majority of the other signatory states. A protocol of the ratifications deposited shall thereupon be drawn up by the Government of the United States of America which shall communicate copies thereof to all the signatory states.

4. The states signatory to the present Charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become original Members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications.

Article 111

The present Charter, of which the Chinese, French, Russian, English, and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatory states.

IN FAITH WHEREOF the representatives of the Governments of the United Nations have signed the present Charter.

DONE at the city of San Francisco the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

AMENDMENTS

The following amendments to Articles 23 and 27 of the Charter came into force in August 1965.

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect ten other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members after the increase of the membership of the Security Council from eleven to fifteen, two of the four additional members shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

The following amendments to Article 61 of the Charter came into force in September 1973.

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of fifty-four Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election after the increase in the membership of the Economic and Social Council from twenty-seven to fifty-four members, in addition to the members elected in place of the nine members whose term of office expires at the end of that year, twenty-seven additional members shall be elected. Of these twenty-seven additional members, the term of office of nine members so elected shall expire at the end of one year, and of nine other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

The following amendment to Paragraph 1 of Article 109 of the Charter came into force in June 1968.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any nine members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The highest policy-making body of the Bank. Each member country nominates one Governor, usually its Minister of Finance and Economic Affairs, and an alternate Governor. The Board meets once a year.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Consists of nine members elected by the Board of Governors for a term of three years; responsible for the general operations of the Bank. Holds ordinary meetings once a month.

PRESIDENT

Responsible for the organization and the day-to-day operations of the Bank under guidance of the Board of Directors, by whom he is elected for a five-year term and whom he serves as chairman. He is assisted by at least one Vice-President elected by the Board of Directors on his recommendation for a three-year term.

Executive President and Chairman of Board of Directors:

WILLA D. MUNG'OMBA (Zambia).

Vice-Presidents: BABACAR N'DIAYE (Senegal), DONATIEN

BIHUTE (Burundi), SAMUEL ADEKUNLE OGUNLEYE.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The Bank uses a unit of account (UA) which is equivalent to one United States dollar before the devaluation of 1971 (approximately $1.3177 at December 1980).

In contrast with practice in the other regional development banks, where countries outside the region participate, the capital stock of the Bank was at first exclusively open for subscription by African countries. Each member subscribes to its initial shares consisting of an equal number of paid-up and callable shares.

However, at the 14th Annual Meeting of the Board of Governors of the ADB, held in Libreville, Gabon, in 1978, the Governors agreed to open the capital stock of the Bank to subscription by non-regional States on the basis of nine principles aimed at maintaining the African character of the institution. At the May 1979 Annual Meeting, the Governors adopted the resolution for the admission of non-African States in the ADB, and by March 1981 enough member states' votes had been obtained to ratify the decision. It was expected that arrangements for effective participation would be worked out by the end of 1982, and that the 22 states already contributing to the ADF (see next page) would be likely to take part.

Payments of amounts subscribed to the paid-up capital are made in gold or convertible currency.

The authorized capital stock of the Bank was initially UA 250 million.

At December 31st, 1980, the position of subscriptions to the capital stock was as follows:

Authorized capital stock	UA 1,220,050,000
Subscribed capital	UA 1,200,963,000
Paid-up capital	UA 300,242,000

The admission of non-African states was expected to lead to an increase in capital stock to a level of UA 5,250 million.

ASSOCIATED INSTITUTIONS

The Bank has set up five associated institutions through which public and private capital is channelled. These are the African Development Fund, the Nigeria Trust Fund, the African Reinsurance Corporation (AFRICARE), SIFIDA (Société Internationale Financière pour les Investissements et le Développement en Afrique) and the Association of African Development Finance Institutions (AADFI). An agreement establishing the African Industrial Development Fund (AIDF) was drawn up in October 1979, to come into force after signature by 12 members. In 1980 the Bank pledged UA 10,000,000 to Shelter Africa, a proposed pan-African organization for the construction of low-income housing, due to commence operations in 1982.

ACTIVITIES

AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

Loans approved in 1980 amounted to U.S. $306.67 million. The year's performance was 11.9 per cent higher than the 1979 level of $273.95 million.

The Bank financed 28 projects in 19 countries in 1980, compared with 35 projects in 24 countries in the previous year.

By December 1980 total loan approvals amounted to $1,400.89 million. Cumulative disbursements as at December 1979 amounted to $439.89 million. Disbursements for 1979, at $107.65 million, were the highest since the Bank started its lending operations.

AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT FUND (ADF)

The African Development Fund was established by the Bank in July 1972 as a multinational fund to which the Bank and 22 non-African capital-exporting countries currently subscribe. The Fund commenced operations in August 1973.

The Fund grants interest-free loans to African countries for projects with repayment over 50 years (including a 10-year grace period) and with a service charge of .75 per cent per annum. Loans for project feasibility studies carry a similar service charge and a repayment period of 10 years (after a 3-year grace period).

The participating non-African states are Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Japan, Republic of Korea, Kuwait, Netherlands, Norway, Saudi Arabia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, U.S.A. and Yugoslavia. In February 1981 India announced its intention of joining the Fund.

Loans approved by the ADF in 1980 amounted to $280.652 million, compared with $228.36 million in 1979, an increase of 18.7 per cent. Total cumulative lending amounted to $1,095 million by the end of 1980, covering 173 projects.

NIGERIA TRUST FUND (NTF)

The Agreement establishing the Nigeria Trust Fund was signed in February 1976 by the Bank and the Government of Nigeria. It came into force in April. The Fund is administered by the Bank and its loans are granted for up to 25 years, including grace periods of up to five years, subject to certain interest charges. The loans are intended to provide financing for projects in co-operation with other lending institutions.

The initial resources of the Fund were 50 million naira ($80 million), increased by another 50 million naira in 1980. Cumulative loans amounted to $86.14 million on December 31st, 1980.

The NTF loan commitments during 1980 amounted to only $1.3 million, compared with $17.7 million in 1979, due to the exhausting of the Fund's initial resources.

SIFIDA (Société internationale financière pour les investissements et le développement en Afrique)

Established in November 1970 on the initiative of, and with participation by, the Bank; Headquarters is in Geneva, Switzerland. SIFIDA is a holding company which aims to promote the establishment and growth of productive enterprises in Africa. It encourages the active participation of local capital, and fosters co-operation between experts from industrialized countries and Africans. Its shareholders include the IFC, and about 100 financial, industrial and commercial institutions in the U.S.A., Europe and Asia. Initial authorized share capital was U.S. $50 million, subscribed capital $10.5 million.

AFRICA REINSURANCE CORPORATION

The Agreement establishing the Africa Reinsurance Corporation (AFRICARE) was signed in February 1976 and came into force in January 1977. The Corporation was formally inaugurated in March and started operations in 1978. Its purpose is to foster the development of the insurance and reinsurance industry in Africa and to promote the growth of national and regional underwriting capacities. The headquarters of the Corporation is in Lagos, Nigeria.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The Corporation has an authorized capital of U.S. $15 million, of which the African Development Bank holds 10 per cent. There are nine Directors, one appointed by the Bank.

ANDEAN RESERVE FUND

(Fondo Andina de Reserva)

Established in January 1977 by representatives of the five governments as a Common Reserve Fund, it began operations in July 1978. It is administered by an Assembly, a Board of Directors and an Executive Presidency. The Assembly is formed by the Ministers of Economy or Finance of each member country; the Board by the Governors of the Central Banks and the Executive President.

The Executive Presidency is the permanent technical organ of the Fund and may undertake studies, present plans and maintain contact with the Central Banks for the furtherance of the Fund's aims. The headquarters is in Bogotá, Colombia.

The Fund is authorized to invest in the Andean Development Corporation, take over foreign debts of companies in the member countries and issue guaranteed securities and credits to third parties. It is intended to help harmonize the exchange, monetary and financial policies of the Group countries.

The initial capital of the Fund is U.S. $240 million, of which Colombia, Peru and Venezuela have subscribed $60 million each and Bolivia and Ecuador $30 million each.

Executive President: FERNANDO GAVIRIA (Colombia).

ANDEAN DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Corporación Andina de Fomento, Avda. Luis Roche esq. Segunda Transversal Los Palos Grandes, Edif. Torre Central 5°-10°, Urb. Altamira, P.O.B. 69011 y 69012, Caracas, Venezuela.

Founded 1968; provides loans and technical assistance as the development-financing arm of the Andean Group. Aims to increase integration between the member countries; the priority is on industrial development and secondly on the construction of basic services; other activities: assistance in the formation of commercial enterprises; export trade financing; share subscription and other corporate investment; bonds, endorsements and guarantees; financial services; and capital acquisition.

Authorized capital (1976): U.S. $400 million; total lending and other operations, cumulative to June 1980: U.S. $313.0 million.

Executive President (1976-81): Ing. JULIO SANJINÉS GOITIA (Bolivia).

Executive Vice-President: Dr. CÉSAR SALAZAR CUERVO (Venezuela).

ACTIVITIES

At a three-day summit meeting held at Cartagena, Colombia, in May 1979, the Presidents of the five member countries signed the "Mandate of Cartagena", which called for greater economic and political co-operation in the 1980s, the establishment of more sub-regional development programmes (especially in industry), the promotion of the goals of the Latin American Economic System, the establishment of an Andean Judicial Tribunal to resolve problems arising from Andean Group decisions, and the holding of regular summit meetings in future, the next to be held in Caracas in 1980. In June it was announced that the Judicial Tribunal would be located in Quito and would comprise five judges, one from each country, with a term of office of six years. The founding meeting of a Latin American regional parliament, established by the members of the Group, was held in December 1979.

The operations of the Group have frequently been hindered by political problems: Bolivia threatened to withdraw in September 1980 following criticism of its Government by other members of the group, while Ecuador also suspended its membership temporarily at the beginning of 1981, following border disputes with Peru. At the Commission meeting in September 1981 the Group's failings were acknowledged and a 90-day "re-launching" period was declared, during which the specific problems to be discussed included tariff barriers and the floundering industrial co-operation schemes.

Intra-Andean trade: Trade between members amounted to U.S. $1,400 million in 1980, or about 4.5 per cent of their foreign trade, compared with $111 million (2.5 per cent) between the same countries in 1970. Tariff reduction on manufactured goods traded between Colombia, Peru and Venezuela was almost complete by 1980, although agreement on a common external tariff had not yet been made.

Joint Programmes: negotiations began in 1970 for the formulation of joint industrial programmes. The deadline for conclusion of all the programmes was put forward to 1977, but negotiations during 1977 ran into difficulties over the allocation of products. The petrochemical and metal-working programmes were approved in 1970 and 1975 respectively. The others include motor vehicles, fertilizer industry, steel, chemicals, glass, electronics, pharmaceuticals and pulp and paper. The motor vehicle programme is regarded as the most important of the series. An agreement for sharing the market for motor vehicles among the five countries was signed at Quito, Ecuador, in September 1977. The Andean Automotive Industrial Development Programme, formulated there, came into operation in all member countries during 1978, but disagreements have occurred over the allocation of different plants and the choice of foreign manufacturers for co-operation.

Foreign Capital and the Multinationals: since 1971, in accordance with a Commission directive (Decision 24), foreign investors are required to transfer 51 per cent of their shares to local investors, in order to qualify for the preferential trade arrangements. Transfers were to be completed by 1989 for Colombia, Peru and Venezuela, and by 1994 for Bolivia and Ecuador. Foreign-owned companies were not to repatriate dividends of more than 14 per cent (later raised to 20 per cent), except with approval of the Commission, on pain of disqualification from preferential tariffs.

Agriculture: The Andean Agricultural Development Programme was formulated at a meeting of the Ministers of Agriculture held in Quito, Ecuador, in 1976. Twenty-two resolutions aimed at integrating the Andean agricultural sector were approved there. In 1977 a plan was prepared as the main instrument for co-ordinating national plans under a standard regional policy. Advances were made in the fields of reciprocal co-operation, agricultural statistics, integration projects on the production of seeds, wheat, maize, sorghum, oil-producing plants, meat and milk, the prevention of coffee rust, support for Bolivian agriculture and marketing of food products. At a meeting in Bogotá, Colombia, in December 1977, the Ministers of Agriculture approved 13 further resolutions, including one to start an Andean Agricultural Planning System to co-ordinate national development plans and prepare medium-term regional plans.

ANZUS

c/o Department of Foreign Affairs, Canberra, A.C.T. 2600, Australia

The ANZUS Security Treaty was signed in San Francisco in September 1951 and ratified in April 1952 to co-ordinate defence as the first step to a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific. This system was developed further in 1954 by the South-East Asia Collective Defence Treaty (the Manila Treaty).

ORGANIZATION

ANZUS COUNCIL

The ANZUS Council is the main consultative organ of the ANZUS Treaty, consisting of the Foreign Ministers, or their deputies, of the three signatory powers. Meetings are held annually, rotating between the three capitals. The 30th meeting was held in Wellington in June 1981. Talks between officials, and other forms of practical co-operation, are held more frequently.

At the 30th meeting of the Council, members agreed that the Soviet invasion and continuing occupation of Afghanistan was a direct violation of the fundamental principles governing international relations, that it remained totally unacceptable to the international community and constituted a serious threat to global and regional stability and to the independence of all states. The Council members also reaffirmed their belief that Poland should be left to settle its own affairs without outside intervention; stressed their continued firm commitment to the goal of arms limitation through negotiations which could lead to effective, balanced and verifiable agreements (while noting that this could not be a substitute for the necessary efforts which the West had to undertake to redress the adverse trend in the military balance); emphasized the need to sustain efforts to prevent the further spread of nuclear weapons, reaffirmed their commitment to strengthen the international non-proliferation regime; and reaffirmed their support for the United Nations General Assembly Resolution 35/6 on Kampuchea.

The organization has no permanent staff or secretariat, and costs are borne by the Government in whose territory the meeting is held.

The instruments of ratification are deposited with the Government of Australia in Canberra.

MILITARY REPRESENTATIVES

The Council meetings are attended also by a military officer representing each country. These officers also meet separately, and it is their function to advise the Council on military co-operation.

SECURITY TREATY

The treaty itself is brief, containing only 11 articles. Like the NATO treaty upon which it was based, the ANZUS Treaty is largely a declaratory, constitutional document which is not drafted in precise and detailed legal terms.

In the words of the preamble to the treaty, the purposes of the signatory powers are: "to strengthen the fabric of peace in the Pacific Area"; "to declare publicly and formally their sense of unity, so that no potential aggressor could be under the illusion that any of them stand alone in the Pacific Area"; "to co-ordinate further their efforts for collective defence for the preservation of peace and security pending the development of a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific Area".

The Parties to the treaty undertake to "consult together whenever in the opinion of any of them, the territorial integrity, political independence or security of any of the parties is threatened in the Pacific" (Article 3). Each Party is bound to act to meet the common danger according to its constitutional processes, since each Party recognizes that an armed attack on any of the Parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety (Article 4).

An armed attack in the terms of the treaty includes an armed attack on the metropolitan territory of any of the Parties, or on the island territories under its jurisdiction in the Pacific, or on its armed forces, public vessels or aircraft in the Pacific.

Any armed attack and all measures taken as a result thereof shall be immediately reported to the Security Council of the UN. These measures are to be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security (Article 4).

ARAB BANK FOR ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT IN AFRICA—BADEA

(Banque Arabe pour le développement économique en Afrique)

Sayed Abdel Rahman El-Mahdi Ave., P.O.B. 2640, Khartoum, Sudan

Created by the Arab League at the Sixth Arab Summit Conference in Algiers, November 1973. Operations began in early 1975. The purpose of the Bank is to contribute to Africa's economic development by providing all or part of the financing required for development projects and by supplying technical assistance to African countries.

MEMBERS

Subscribing countries: all members of the Arab League except Djibouti, Somalia, the Yemen Arab Republic and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen. Egypt's membership was suspended in April 1979.

Recipient countries: all member countries of the Organization of African Unity except the member countries of the Arab League. A total of 41 countries are eligible for BADEA aid.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Highest authority of the Bank, composed of Finance Ministers of Arab League member states; meets annually; examines the Bank's activities in the past year and provides the resources required for the tasks assigned to it in the coming year. Only the Board of Governors has the power to increase the Bank's capital.

Chairman: MOHAMED YALLA (Algeria).

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Meets three times a year to make recommendations concerning policy to the Board of Governors and supervises the implementation of their decisions; performs all the executive functions of the Bank. The Board comprises a Chairman, appointed by the Board of Governors for a five-year term, and eleven other members. Countries with 200 or more shares each have a permanent seat on the Board (Algeria, Iraq, Kuwait, Libya, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates); appointments to the remaining four seats are made by the Governors for a four-year term.

President of the Bank and Chairman: Dr. CHEDLY AYARI (Tunisia).

SPECIAL ARAB ASSISTANCE FUND FOR AFRICA—SAAFA

Established by a resolution of a meeting of Arab Oil Ministers in January 1972 under the title Arab Loan Fund for Africa. Objective: to provide urgent aid to African countries suffering from serious balance of payments deficits. Came to be referred to erroneously as the Oil Fund. Acts in response to emergency situations in Africa, such as natural disasters, as well as difficulties caused by the increase in petroleum prices since 1973. Assistance was also provided to newly independent African countries.

The Fund was integrated with BADEA, and subscriptions to the capital stock of the two organizations were merged, in accordance with a resolution at an extraordinary session of the Board of Governors of BADEA in November 1976.

By the end of 1977 the Fund had disbursed aid to the total of U.S. $221,744,000 to 33 African countries. Since that time all aid has been disbursed through BADEA.

ACTIVITIES

BADEA aid consists mainly of loans on concessional terms for development projects, not exceeding $10 million or 40 per cent of the total cost of each project. Technical assistance is also provided, and Arab investment in Africa is encouraged.

The Declaration on Afro-Arab Economic and Financial Co-operation, adopted at the first summit conference of Arab and African Heads of State at Cairo, Egypt, in March 1977, sought to promote Arab investment in Africa by a system of guarantees for investment and co-ordination of aid provided by Arab financial institutions. A Standing Commission of 24 Arab and African Foreign Ministers, set up to implement this programme, entrusted BADEA and the African Development Bank with the task of carrying out preliminary investigations of the projects submitted for Arab aid. Subsequently, BADEA was to forward such projects to the Arab development agencies. In April 1977 the agencies asked BADEA to co-ordinate Arab aid to Africa. Accordingly, the Bank drew up a programme of 410 African development projects awaiting finance for consideration by the Arab agencies. Of the 410 projects, there were 346 national and 13 regional development plans and 51 projects for technical co-operation.

By July 1981 BADEA had approved loans and grants amounting to U.S. $419,656,000 involving 59 projects, two lines of credit, four feasibility studies, one seminar and an emergency aid programme for a total of 37 African countries. BADEA was instrumental in the participation of other Arab agencies whose contributions were worth $639,870,000. The most active year for operations was the first, 1975, when $71.6 million was approved for 10 projects. In 1976 $61.9 million was approved for nine projects, in 1977 $66.24 million for nine projects, in 1978 $67.87 million for 14 projects, in 1979 $44.07 million for eight projects, in 1980 $71.95 million for nine projects and in 1981 (up to June) $36.026 million for seven projects.

In regional terms, U.S. $239,229,000 of total aid (up to June 1981) went to West Africa and $178,818,000 to East Africa. Viewed against the total commitments of the Bank, participation was as in the Table below.

In terms of aid per caput these commitments represent a roughly even balance between the two regions.

The sectoral distribution of aid is determined by development priorities adopted by the African countries themselves. The average distribution has been weighted in favour of projects for infrastructural development, which received 47.3 per cent of total aid up to June 1981. Commitment in this sector, however, declined between 1975 (when 58.7 per cent of aid financed infrastructure) and 1978 when its share was 25.9 per cent. The commitments to agriculture, industrial and energy development projects have been 24 per cent, 18.5 per cent and 10.3 per cent respectively.

The projects for which loans were approved in 1980 were: construction of an international airport at Gaborone, Botswana; a sugar cultivation and processing complex in Burundi; part of the Douala-Yaoundé highway in Cameroon; an extension for Mutsamudu port in the Comoros; a sawmill and wood manufacturing complex in Mozambique; chemical production units in Senegal; electric power development in Seychelles; agricultural development in Sierra Leone; and road-building in Tanzania.

ARAB FUND FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT—AFESD

P.O.B. 21923, Kuwait City, Kuwait

Telephone: 431870.

Established in 1968 by the Economic Council of the Arab League, the Fund began its operations in 1972.

MEMBERSHIP

21 countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization (see table of subscriptions below)

FUNCTIONS

The Fund participates in the financing of economic and social development projects in the Arab states and countries by:

1. Financing economic projects of an investment character by means of loans granted on easy terms to governments, and to public or private organizations and institutions, giving preference to economic projects of interest specifically to Arab peoples, and to joint Arab projects.

2. Encouraging, directly or indirectly, the investment of public and private capital in such a manner as to ensure the development and growth of the Arab economy.
3. Providing technical expertise and assistance in the various fields of economic development.

In November 1980 it was suggested at the summit conference of the Arab League (q.v.) that AFESD should administer the fund set up to aid the least-developed Arab countries.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The Board of Governors consists of a Governor and an Alternate Governor appointed by each member of the Fund. The Board of Governors is considered as the General Assembly of the Fund, and has all powers.

Director-General and Chairman of the Board of Directors:
Dr. MOHAMMAD IMADY (Syria).

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The Board of Directors is composed of six full-time Directors elected by the Board of Governors from among Arab citizens of recognized experience and competence. They are elected for a renewable term of two years.

The Board of Directors is charged with all the activities of the Fund in a general manner, and exercises the powers delegated to it by the Board of Governors.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The authorized capital at commencement of operations in April 1973 was 100 million Kuwaiti dinars. In 1975 the capital was increased to KD 400 million, divided into 40,000 shares having a value of 10,000 Kuwaiti dinars each (one Kuwaiti dinar being equal to 2.48828 grammes of gold). In April 1981 it was announced that the capital would be further increased, to KD 800 million.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

Khairaldin Basha Street, Tunis, Tunisia

The League of Arab States is a voluntary association of sovereign Arab states designed to strengthen the close ties linking them and to co-ordinate their policies and activities and direct them towards the common good of all the Arab countries. It was founded in March 1945.

MEMBERS

Algeria	Kuwait	Palestine (see below)	Tunisia
Bahrain	Lebanon	Qatar	United Arab Emirates
Djibouti	Libya	Saudi Arabia	Yemen Arab Republic
Egypt (see below)	Mauritania	Somalia	Yemen, People's Democratic Republic
Iraq	Morocco	Sudan
Jordan	Oman	Syria

MEMBERSHIP AND FUNCTIONS

While it is a prerequisite that members must be Arab states that are fully independent, the activities of the League also often include Arab countries which are not independent. Palestine is considered an independent state, as explained in the Charter Annex on Palestine, and therefore a full member of the League.

The status of Palestine as a full member of the League was confirmed at a meeting of the Arab League Council in September 1976.

In March 1979 Egypt's membership of the Arab League was suspended, and it was decided to make Tunis the temporary headquarters of the League, its Secretariat and its permanent committees.

The Arab League itself is an international body with its own independent statutory powers and general objectives.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

COUNCIL

The supreme organ of the Arab League. Consists of representatives of the twenty-one member states, each of which has one vote, and a representative for Palestine. Unanimous decisions of the Council shall be binding upon all member states of the League; majority decisions shall be binding only on those states which have accepted them.

The Council may, if necessary, hold an extraordinary session at the request of two member states. Invitations to all sessions are extended by the Secretary-General. The ordinary sessions are presided over by representatives of the member states in turn.

Sixteen committees are attached to the Council:

Political Committee: studies political questions and reports to the Council meetings concerned with them. All member states are members of the Committee. It represents the Council in dealing with critical political matters when the Council is meeting. Usually composed of the Foreign Ministers.

Cultural Committee: in charge of following up the activities of the Cultural Department and the cultural affairs within the scope of the secretariat; co-ordinates the activities of the general secretariat and the various cultural bodies in member states.

Economic Committee: complemented by the Economic Council since 1953.

Communications Committee: supervises land, sea and air communications, together with weather forecasts and postal matters.

Social Committee: supports co-operation in such matters as family and child welfare.

Legal Committee: an extension of the Nationality and Passports Committee abolished in 1947; studies and legally formulates draft agreements, bills, regulations and official documents.

Arab Oil Experts Committee: for study of oil affairs; also investigates methods to prevent the smuggling of Arab oil into Israel; and for co-ordination of oil policies in general.

Information Committee: studies information projects, suggests plans and carries out the policies decided by the Council of Information Ministers.

Health Committee: for co-operation in health affairs.

Human Rights Committee: studies subjects concerning human rights, particularly violations by Israel; collaborates with the Information and Cultural Committees.

Permanent Committee for Administrative and Financial Affairs.

Permanent Committee for Meteorology.

Committee of Arab Experts on Co-operation.

Arab Women's Committee.

Organization of Youth Welfare.

Conference of Liaison Officers: co-ordinates trade activities among commercial attachés of various Arab embassies abroad.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

The administrative and financial offices of the League. The Secretariat carries out the decisions of the Council, and provides financial and administrative services for the personnel of the League. There are a number of departments: economic, political, legal, cultural, social and labour affairs, petroleum, finance, Palestine, health, information, communications, protocol. The most recently formed department deals with African affairs.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The Secretary-General is appointed by the League Council by a two-thirds majority of the member states. He appoints the Assistant Secretaries and principal officials, with the approval of the Council. He has the rank of Ambassador, and the Assistant Secretaries have the rank of Ministers Plenipotentiary.

Secretary-General: CHEDLI KLIBI (Tunisia).

Assistant Secretaries-General: ASSAAD EL ASSAAD (Lebanon), ADNAN OMNAN (Syria), DR. ABD EL HASSAN ZALZALAH (Iraq), MOHAMED BIN SALAMAH (Tunisia), OTHMAN AL-AHMAD (Saudi Arabia).

DEFENCE AND ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

Groups established under the Treaty of Joint Defence and Economic Co-operation, concluded in 1950 to complement the Charter of the League:

Arab Unified Military Command: f. 1964 to co-ordinate military policies for the liberation of Palestine.

Economic Council: to compare and co-ordinate the economic policies of the member states; the Council is composed of Ministers of Economic Affairs or their deputies. Decisions are taken by majority vote. The first meeting was held in 1953.

Joint Defence Council: supervises implementation of those aspects of the treaty concerned with common defence. Composed of Foreign and Defence Ministers; decisions by a two-thirds majority vote of members are binding on all.

Permanent Military Commission: Established 1950; composed of representatives of army General Staffs; main purpose: to draw up plans of joint defence for submission to the Joint Defence Council.

ARAB DETERRENT FORCE

Set up in June 1976 by the Arab League Council to supervise successive attempts to cease hostilities in Lebanon, and afterwards to maintain the peace. - 1977 Tripoli Declaration, December. Decision of Algeria, Iraq, Libya and Yemen P.D.R. to boycott League meetings in Egypt in response to President Sadat's visit to Israel.
- 1978 69th meeting of Arab League Council in Cairo, March, boycotted by "rejectionist" states. Resolutions calling for an emergency summit to settle differences within the League and for the establishment of an Arab Solidarity Committee to be chaired by President Nimeri of Sudan. All members except Egypt were present at a Council meeting in Baghdad in November. A number of resolutions were adopted to be taken should Egypt sign a peace treaty with Israel of which the three principal ones were: diplomatic rupture with Egypt, transfer of the League's headquarters from Cairo, and the economic boycott of Sadat's government.
- 1979 Council meeting in Baghdad, March: various resolutions were adopted of which the main points were: to withdraw Arab ambassadors from Egypt; to recommend severance of political and diplomatic relations with Egypt; to suspend Egypt's membership of the League on the date of the signing of the peace treaty with Israel; to make the city of Tunis the temporary HQ of the League, its Secretariat, ministerial councils and permanent technical committees; to condemn United States' policy regarding its role in concluding the Camp David agreements and the peace treaty; to halt all bank loans, deposits, guarantees or facilities, as well as all financial or technical contributions and aid to Egypt; to prohibit trade exchanges with the Egyptian state and with private establishments dealing with Israel.
- 1980 Meeting of Arab Foreign and Economic Ministers (as the Arab Economic and Social Council), Amman, July. An Iraqi plan for investment of at least $10,000 million over ten years, to aid development in poorer Arab states (particularly Djibouti, Mauritania, Somalia, Sudan and the two Yemens), was discussed. The November summit conference in Amman was boycotted by the Palestine Liberation Organization, Algeria, Lebanon, Libya, Syria and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen, maintaining that the conference should have been postponed because of the serious differences in the Arab world over the Iran-Iraq war and the approach to negotiations on Israel. The summit conference agreed to set up a $5,000 million fund for the benefit of poorer Arab states, with Iraq, Kuwait, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates as donors: assistance was to take the form of 20-year development loans, and the fund was to be administered by the Arab Fund for Social and Economic Development (q.v.). The conference also approved a wider "Strategy for Joint Arab Economic Action", covering pan-Arab development planning up to the year 2000.
- 1981 In March the Council of ministers set up a conciliation mission to try to improve relations between Morocco and Mauritania.
- Extraordinary meeting of Arab Foreign Ministers in May (on Lebanon), and June (following the Israeli attack on an Iraqi nuclear reactor).
- A renewal of the "Euro-Arab Dialogue" was due to take place in November when foreign ministers of the Arab League and the European Community were to meet.
- Twelfth summit conference, Fez, Morocco, November.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The Board of Governors is the highest authority of the Arab Monetary Fund. It formulates policies on Arab economic integration and liberalization of trade among member states. With certain exceptions, it may delegate to the Board of Executive Directors any of its powers. The Board of Governors is composed of a Governor and a Deputy Governor appointed by each member state for a term of five years. It meets at least once a year; meetings may also be convened at the request of half the members, or of members holding half of the total voting power, or of the Board of Executive Directors. Each member country has 75 votes regardless of the number of shares it holds and, in addition, one vote for each share held.

Chairman: MUHAMMAD ALI ABDUL-KHAIL (Saudi Arabia).

BOARD OF EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS

The Board of Executive Directors exercises all powers vested in it by the Board of Governors and may delegate therefrom to the President such powers as it deems fit. It is composed of the President and eight resident Directors elected by the Board of Governors. Each Director holds office for three years and may be re-elected.

Algeria and Saudi Arabia are each represented by a Director, while the other members are grouped into six groups each represented by one Director. In 1981 the six directors were nationals of Bahrain, Iraq, Syria, Tunisia, the United Arab Emirates and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen.

THE PRESIDENT

The President of the Fund is appointed by the Board of Governors for a renewable five-year term. He serves as Chairman of the Board of Executive Directors and as Managing Director of the Fund.

He is to set up a Committee on Loans and a Committee on Investments to make recommendations on loan and investment policies to the Board of Executive Directors. He is required to submit an Annual Report to the Board of Governors.

President (1977-82): Dr. JAWAD HASHIM (Iraq).

FINANCE

The authorized capital of the Fund is 263 million Arab dinars. The Arab dinar (AD) is a unit of account equivalent to 3 IMF Special Drawing Rights (SDR 1 = U.S. $1.1446 at September 30th, 1981). The capital stock comprises 5,260 shares, each having the value of AD 50,000.

Each member paid, in convertible currencies, 5 per cent of the value of its shares at the time of its ratification of the Agreement and another 20 per cent when the Agreement entered into force. In addition, each member paid 2 per cent of the value of its shares in its national currency regardless of whether it is convertible. The second 25 per cent of the capital was to be subscribed by the end of September 1979, bringing the total paid-in capital in convertible currencies to AD 131.5 million (SDR 394.5 million).

The Board of Governors, by a special majority and subject to prescribed conditions, may increase the capital of the Fund. The Articles of Agreement provide for the establishment of a general reserve fund and, if necessary, special reserve funds.

AIMS AND LENDING POLICIES

The creation of the Arab Monetary Fund was seen as a step towards the goal of Arab economic integration. Like the IMF, it assists member states in balance of payments difficulties but it has a broader range of aims.

The Articles of Agreement define the Fund's aims as follows:

- (a) to correct disequilibria in the balance of payments of member states;
- (b) to promote the stability of exchange rates among Arab currencies, the realization of their mutual convertibility, and the removal of restrictions on current payments between member states;
- (c) to establish policies and modes of monetary co-operation to speed up Arab economic integration and economic development in the member states;
- (d) to tender advice on the investment of member states' financial resources in foreign markets, whenever called upon to do so;
- (e) to promote the development of Arab financial markets;
- (f) to promote the use of the Arab dinar as a unit of account and to pave the way for the creation of a unified Arab currency;
- (g) to co-ordinate the dealings of member states with international monetary and economic problems; and
- (h) to provide a mechanism for the settlement of current payments between member states in order to promote trade among them.

The Arab Monetary Fund functions both as a fund and a bank. It is empowered:

- (a) to provide short- and medium-term loans to finance balance of payments deficits of member states;
- (b) to issue guarantees to member states to strengthen their borrowing capabilities;
- (c) to act as intermediary in the issuance of loans in Arab and international markets for the account of member states and under their guarantees;

- (d) to co-ordinate the monetary policies of member states;
- (e) to manage any funds placed under its charge by member states;
- (f) to hold periodic consultations with member states on their economic conditions; and
- (g) to provide technical assistance to monetary institutions in member states.

Loans are intended to finance an overall balance of payments deficit and a member may draw up to 75 per cent of its paid-up capital, in convertible currencies, for this purpose unconditionally (automatic loans). A member may, however, obtain loans in excess of this limit subject to agreement with the Fund on a programme aimed at reducing its balance of payments deficit (ordinary and extended loans). In April 1981 the maximum permitted borrowing was raised from 300 per cent of each member's paid-up contribution to 400 per cent. In addition, a member has the right to borrow up to 100 per cent of its paid-up capital in order to cope with an unexpected deficit in its balance of payments resulting from a decrease in its exports of goods and services or a large increase in its imports of agricultural products following a poor harvest (compensatory loans). Such a loan was made to Sudan in November 1980 to compensate for a poor cotton crop.

Automatic and compensatory loans are repayable within three years, while ordinary and extended loans are repayable within five and seven years respectively.

Loans are granted at concessionary and uniform rates of interest which increase with the length of the period of the loan.

The Fund has granted loans to Egypt, Mauritania, Morocco, Somalia, Sudan, Syria and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen. At the end of August 1981 total approved loans amounted to AD 107.9 million, of which AD 23.9 million were automatic, AD 55.8 million were extended, AD 13.3 million were ordinary and AD 14.8 million were compensatory.

2330 Roxas Boulevard, Metro Manila, Philippines
P.O.B. 789, Manila, Philippines 2800
Telephone: 80-72-51; 80-26-31.

Commenced operations in December 1966. Members: 30 countries within the ESCAP region and 14 other countries.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

All powers of the Bank are vested in the Board which may delegate its powers to the Board of Directors except in such matters as admission of new members, changes in the Bank's authorized capital stock, election of Directors and President, amendment of the Charter. One Governor and one Alternate Governor are appointed by each member country. The Board meets at least once a year. Fourteenth Annual Meeting: Honolulu, Hawaii, April 1981.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Responsible for general direction of operations and exercises all powers delegated by the Board of Governors. Composed of twelve Directors elected by the Board of Governors, of whom eight represent member countries within the ESCAP region and four represent the rest of the member countries. Each Director serves for two years and may be re-elected. The President of the Bank, though not a Director, is Chairman of the Board.

Chairman of Board of Directors and President: TAROICHI YOSHIDA (Japan) (to November 1981).

Vice-Presidents: A. T. BAMBAWALE (India); S. STANLEY KATZ (U.S.A.).

ADMINISTRATION

Departments: Country, Agriculture and Rural Development, Infrastructure, Industry and Development Banks, Budget, Personnel and Management Systems, Controller's, Treasurer's.

Offices: President, Secretary, General Counsel, Development Policy, Central Projects Services, Administrative Services, Economic, Information, Computer Services, Internal Auditor and Post-Evaluation.

Secretary: SOESILO SARDADI (Indonesia).

General Counsel: CHUN PYO JHONG (Republic of Korea).

AIMS

1. To raise funds from private and public sources for development purposes in the region. Two priorities are: promotion of regional and sub-regional projects in which member states co-operate; and the needs of the smaller and less developed countries.

2. To assist the Asian member states in co-ordinating their policies for development, trade and general economic affairs.

3. To give technical assistance in all phases of development projects. This includes the formulation of specific proposals, and the preparation, financing and implementation of projects. One priority is to assist regional and national institutions in sectors such as agriculture, industry and public administration, and to form new institutions.

4. To co-operate with the UN and its specialized agencies and with public international organizations and other international institutions and national entities concerned with investment of development funds in the region.

SPECIAL FUNDS

The Asian Development Fund (ADF) was established in June 1974 in order to provide a systematic mechanism for mobilizing and administering resources for the Bank to lend on concessional terms. Administration of the earlier Special Funds—the Multi-Purpose Special Fund (MPSF) and the Agricultural Special Fund (ASF)—had been complicated by the fact that contributions of individual donors had been made voluntarily at the initiative of the countries concerned and were frequently tied to procurement in those countries. Under the restructuring proposals, the ASF was wound up in the first half of 1973 and its resources consolidated with those of the MPSF. By the end of 1980 all the resources of the MPSF had been transferred to the ASF.

The initial mobilization of ADF resources (ADF I) was intended to finance the Bank's concessional lending programme for the three-year period ending December 31st, 1975. Contributions to ADF I totalling $486.1 million were received from 14 countries. At the end of 1975 the

Asian Development Bank

Board of Governors authorized a replenishment of the resources of the ADF (ADF II), intended to finance the Bank's concessional lending programme over the period 1976-78. The amount initially authorized was $830 million, but this was subsequently reduced to $809 million. By the end of 1978, 15 of the Bank's developed member countries had participated in ADF II with total contributions of $701 million; in January 1981 $56.5 million of the United States contribution was still to be paid. In 1978 the ADF was replenished a second time (ADF III) to finance the Bank's concessional lending programme until 1982. The amount authorized was $2,150 million. By the end of 1980 14 countries had agreed to contribute a total of $2,011 million. Total contributed resources of the ADF stood at $2,746.6 million in December 1980.

At the end of 1979 legislation enabling the United States to deposit a qualified instrument of Contribution for the full amount of its ADF III contribution and to pay the first instalment equivalent to one-fourth of such amount was still pending. Release of second tranches of the contributions of those donor countries which had already contributed to ADF III did not therefore occur on January 1st, 1980, as envisaged by the Resolution, but was delayed until July when the first U.S. instalment was received. After allowing a margin of protection against exchange rate fluctuations, there was a balance of uncommitted resources in ADF at the end of 1979 of only about $9 million equivalent. During 1980 additional resources of $690 million became available; new concessional loans approved during the course of the year amounted to $477 million, while disbursements totalled $150.3 million. Discussions on a third ADF replenishment began in 1980, but there were fears that the programme might have to be cut owing to restricted U.S. aid.

The Bank provides technical assistance grants from its Technical Assistance Special Fund. By the end of 1980, contributions to this fund amounted to $48.1 million, of which $31.3 million had been utilized.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

SUMMIT MEETING

The highest authority of ASEAN, bringing together the Heads of Government of member countries. The first meeting was held in Bali in February 1976; the second in Kuala Lumpur in August 1977.

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCES

Composed of the Foreign Ministry of member states; meets annually in each member country in turn. Economic and other Ministers also meet frequently.

STANDING COMMITTEE

Meets when necessary between Ministerial meetings for consultations in one of the five countries in annual rotation: Philippines in 1980–81. Consists of the Foreign Minister of the host country and Ambassadors of the other four.

SECRETARIAT

A permanent secretariat was established in Jakarta, Indonesia, in 1976. A "Headquarters Agreement" was signed in September 1978. The Secretary-General serves for a two-year term.

Secretary-General: NARCISO G. REYES (Philippines).

COMMITTEES

The seats of the Committees are distributed among the ASEAN capitals, and move in rotation at 2–3 year intervals. There are nine Committees:

Trade and Tourism; Industry, Minerals and Energy; Food, Agriculture and Forestry; Transportation and Communications; Finance and Banking; Science and Technology; Social Development; Culture and Information; Budget.

These committees are serviced by a network of subsidiary technical bodies comprising sub-committees, expert groups, ad-hoc working groups, working parties, etc.

To support the conduct of relations with other countries and international organizations, ASEAN committees (composed of heads of diplomatic missions) have been established in ten foreign capitals: those of Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Japan, New Zealand, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A.

AIMS

ASEAN was established in 1967 with the signing of the ASEAN Declaration, otherwise known as the Bangkok Declaration. This set out the objectives of the organization as follows:

To accelerate economic growth, social progress and cultural development in the region through joint endeavours in the spirit of equality and partnership in order to strengthen the foundation for a prosperous and peaceful community of South East Asian nations.

To promote regional peace and stability through abiding respect for justice and the rule of law in the relationship among countries of the region and adherence to the principles of the United Nations Charter.

To promote active collaboration and mutual assistance on matters of common interest in the economic, social, cultural, technical, scientific and administrative fields.

To provide assistance to each other in the form of training and research facilities in the educational, professional, technical and administrative spheres.

To collaborate more effectively for the greater utilization of their agriculture and industries, the expansion of their trade, including the study of the problems of international commodity trade, the improvement of their transportation and communication facilities and the raising of the living standards of their people.

To promote South East Asian studies.

To maintain close and beneficial co-operation with existing international and regional organizations with similar aims and purposes, and explore all avenues for even closer co-operation among themselves.

ASEAN's first summit meeting was held at Denpasar, Bali, Indonesia, in February 1976. Two major documents were signed:

Treaty of Amity and Co-operation, laying down principles of mutual respect for the independence and sovereignty of all nations; non-interference in the internal affairs of one another; settlement of disputes by peaceful means; and effective co-operation among the five countries.

Declaration of Concord, giving guidelines for action in economic, social and cultural relations. This included co-operation in the pursuit of political stability in the region; the members would give priority to the supply of one another's needs for commodities, particularly food and energy, in any emergency. This last aim would be approached by forming industrial projects in common.

The long-term objective of a preferential trade arrangement was acknowledged; the first priority in trade, however, was to develop joint action in the international markets.

The declaration called for assistance between member states in the event of a natural disaster.

ACTIVITIES

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

GATT: The ASEAN-Geneva Committee was formed in 1973 to assist member countries in their participation in the Multilateral Trade Negotiations at the GATT Secretariat. GATT has endorsed the ASEAN Preferential Trade Agreements and this will contribute to the expansion of intra-ASEAN trade.

EEC: A Joint Study Group was set up by ASEAN and the EEC Commission in 1975 to discuss the possibilities for economic co-operation between the two regions, and to act as a forum for contacts with European officials and companies. The principal achievement in the ASEAN countries' negotiations with the EEC Commission was a reduction of duties under the EEC's Generalized System of Preferences in favour of ASEAN countries. In March 1980 a five-year co-operation agreement was signed between ASEAN and the EEC, following a joint ministerial conference. The agreement, which entered into force on October 1st, provides for the strengthening of existing trade links and increased co-operation in the scientific and agricultural spheres. A joint co-operation committee met in Manila in November; it drew up a programme of scientific and technological co-operation, approved measures to promote contracts between industrialists from the two regions, and agreed on the financing of ASEAN regional projects by the Community.

Japan: In September 1978 the Japan-ASEAN Economic Council was founded by business organizations from Japan and ASEAN as a machinery for regular consultation on mutual economic co-operation and Japan promised U.S. $1,000 million for implementing joint industrial projects, but during 1978 and 1979 Japan's attention was focused on the People's Republic of China and ASEAN increasingly turned to the EEC for trading links. In January 1981 the Japanese Prime Minister made a tour of ASEAN countries, declaring support for their opposition to the Vietnamese over Kampuchea, and announcing the approval of yen-based credits worth $870,000,000 for Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines and Thailand.

China and Indochina: The question of relations with the new communist governments in Indochina was prominent at the Bali summit in February 1976. The documents signed at the summit made clear that ASEAN countries wished to form a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality, a concept adopted by ASEAN in 1971, and would respect the independence and sovereignty of all nations. ASEAN was to be an economic and diplomatic forum, with no question of a military alliance. Diplomatic relations with the communist governments were established in 1976. In 1978 the hostilities between Viet-Nam, Kampuchea and the People's Republic of China caused both Viet-Nam and China to seek closer ties with ASEAN and to negotiate with ASEAN as a group, not in bilateral terms. Fears of Viet-Nam's military ambitions stirred by the invasion of Kampuchea in December 1978 and the severe strain placed on the ASEAN countries by the exodus of refugees from Viet-Nam, however, caused ASEAN to reassess its relations with Viet-Nam, which it accused of trying to destabilize South-East Asia, and to seek new ways of establishing peace. At the 12th meeting of Foreign Ministers in June 1979 grave concern was expressed over the deluge of displaced persons from Indochina, and the delegates deplored the fact that Viet-Nam had not taken effective measures to stop the exodus. The ASEAN Foreign Ministers also reiterated their support for the right of the Kampuchean people to self-determination; in August they called for the withdrawal of all foreign troops and the holding of general elections in Kampuchea, under UN supervision. In October 1980 a resolution sponsored by the ASEAN countries calling for an international conference to bring this about was adopted by the UN General Assembly, but the proposal was rejected by Viet-Nam. In January 1981 ASEAN Foreign Ministers gave their support to the moderate Son Sann as a possible leader for Kampuchea.

Other countries: There have been increased contacts with Australia, New Zealand and Canada. Discussions with the U.S.A. began in September 1977, with a meeting of officials in Manila, and a second meeting was held at ministerial level in Washington, D.C., in August 1978. It was agreed in September 1980 to establish an Economic Co-ordination Committee to promote trade, investment and improved economic relations between ASEAN and the U.S.A.

INTERNAL RELATIONS

Internal Security: Whilst the policy of peace and neutrality was a major feature of the Treaty of Amity and Co-operation, the ASEAN countries recognized a common problem in combating communist insurgency. It had been necessary during 1976 and 1977 for Thailand and Malaysia to co-ordinate their military activity against the communists in the area of their mutual border, and this was reflected in the section of the Declaration of Concord (see above) concerning the pursuit of political stability in the region. In 1978-80 the large numbers of refugees from Viet-Nam revived fears of destabilization in the area and placed severe strains on the internal security of the recipient countries, particularly Malaysia, Thailand and Indonesia.

Industry: The Bali summit and the joint industrial projects launched in 1976 were the first actions which gave expression to the new solidarity. A meeting of Economic Ministers in Kuala Lumpur in March 1976 agreed to set up five medium-sized industries by forming joint projects producing the following: diesel engines in Singapore, urea in Indonesia and Malaysia, superphosphates in the Philippines, and soda ash in Thailand. At the sixth meeting of ASEAN Economic Ministers in Jakarta in June 1978, the text of the Basic Agreement on ASEAN Industrial Projects was agreed. By July 1979 only the urea projects in Indonesia and Malaysia were ready to be implemented. The Indonesian project had its ASEAN company incorporated in March 1979 and was expected to be completed by 1982 to produce 500,000 tons of urea annually. The Malaysian project will have an annual production capacity of 530,000 tons of urea and 360,000 tons of ammonia, to come on stream in 1984. In April 1980 an Integrated Pulp and Paper Project in the Philippines was accepted as the fourth ASEAN industrial project, but at the end of the year it was announced that a copper fabrication plant was to take its place.

In July 1980 ASEAN representatives agreed to set up their first joint private banking institution, the ASEAN Finance Corporation, to provide financing for industrial projects of benefit to the region. The Corporation was to have an initial capital of $50 million.

Trade: Meeting in Manila in January 1977 the Economic Ministers concluded a Basic Agreement on the Establishment of ASEAN Preferential Trade Arrangements. This will not lead directly to the formation of a free trade zone. The Philippines, Thailand and Singapore have been in favour of trade liberalization, and early in 1977 they concluded bilateral agreements for 10 per cent tariff cuts on a wide range of items traded between themselves. Indonesia, on the other hand, has been opposed to trade liberalization, taking the view that its own economy is of a type that would be bound to suffer under free trade. The ASEAN agreement therefore provides for negotiations to lead to the introduction of preferences product by product.

Under the agreement, the five countries were to accord priority to buying and selling their products to each other at preferential rates during gluts or shortages, as from January 1978. At their sixth meeting in Jakarta in June, the Economic Ministers agreed that in each future round of negotiations on trade preferences, to take place every three months, each country will make offers of at least 100 items. By July 1980 4,325 items were covered by a tariff reduction of 10 per cent, and in that month it was decided that all imports with trade values of less than U.S. $50,000 (as recorded in the trade statistics for 1978) should have the existing tariff reduced by 20 per cent, bringing the number of items under the preferential trading arrangements to over 6,000. By April 1981 5,825 items were included.

In 1980 the Committee on Finance and Banking agreed in principle to the establishment of an ASEAN Bankers' Acceptance Market, as a tool to promote intra-ASEAN trade.

At the first ASEAN Agriculture Ministers' meeting in Manila an emergency grain reserve agreement was signed on August 29th, 1979. During the year an emergency reserve of 50,000 tons of rice was established, available to any member country at three days' notice. Proposals towards the creation of a common agricultural policy were also adopted.

Communications: The Malaysian and Thai national airlines have pooled some of their services. During 1979 disagreements arose between ASEAN and Australia over the volume of passenger traffic carried by ASEAN airlines between Europe and Australia. In May an agreement was reached limiting such traffic. Telecommunications networks in the region have been improved. The first section of the ASEAN Submarine Cable Network which is planned to link all the ASEAN countries by 1982, went into operation in August 1978. It runs between the Philippines and Singapore. The second section, between Indonesia and Singapore, was inaugurated in August 1980. An ASEAN Regional Satellite system was proposed in June 1978 and some member countries use the Indonesian communications satellite, purchased from the U.S.A. in 1979.

Joint research and technology: The ASEAN Committee on Science and Technology has co-ordinated projects such as the Protein Project, investigating low-cost alternative sources of protein; research in food technology and the management of food waste materials; preparation of a Climatic Atlas and Regional Compendium of Climatic Statistics; a nature conservation scheme; and non-conventional energy research.

Education: Under the ASEAN Development Education Programme five projects (financed by Australia) have been set up: Special Education; Education Management Information System; Teacher Education Reform; Work-oriented Education; Test Development. A National Agency of Development Education has been set up in each country.

Social development: Programmes include a Population Programme to promote family planning; co-operation against drug abuse; mutual assistance in natural disasters; collaboration in health and nutrition programmes; and co-operation in labour administration and vocational training.

Tourism: Visits of up to 14 days may be made to other member countries without a visa; tourists may also obtain ASEAN Common Collective Travel Documents for package tours and may use these in lieu of a passport within the member countries.

Culture: Tours by theatrical and dance groups, holding of art exhibitions and exchange of radio and television programmes, films and visual aids. A film festival and a Youth Music Workshop are held annually, and a directory of museums in the ASEAN region was being compiled in 1981. Cultural exchanges are also arranged. At the 11th ministerial meeting it was agreed to establish an ASEAN Cultural Fund to promote regional cultural development. In December 1978 Japan pledged 5,000 million yen towards the fund, the initial disbursement taking place in mid-1979.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS OF THE ECONOMIC UNION

The Committee of Ministers consists of not less than three Ministers and generally speaking the Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Foreign Trade, Economic Affairs, Agriculture, Finance and Social Affairs of the three countries. Resolutions in the Committee of Ministers must be carried unanimously, but an abstention will not be considered as a negative vote. It supervises the application of the Benelux Economic Union Treaty and ensures that the aims specified therein are pursued. The Committee may also set up Working Parties and Joint Services to which it may delegate certain of its powers.

THE CONSULTATIVE INTER-PARLIAMENTARY COUNCIL

Secretary-General: PH. DENEULIN, Palais de la Nation, Brussels 1000.

Consists of 49 members, 21 each from the Netherlands States-General and the Belgian Parliament and seven from the Luxembourg Chamber of Deputies. It was set up in 1956 as an advisory body to the three governments on issues of concern to Benelux. It receives an annual report on cultural relations, foreign policy and the standardization of laws.

THE COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC UNION

Chairmen: L. G. WANSINK (Netherlands), K. PEERENBOOM (Belgium), J. WEYLAND (Luxembourg).

Consists of one chairman from each member country, and of the presidents of Committees.

The Council is responsible for ensuring the execution of the decisions of the Committee of Ministers and for making proposals to the Committee of Ministers; and for co-ordinating the work of the committees and special committees.

COMMITTEES AND SPECIAL COMMITTEES

There are eight committees: foreign economic relations; monetary and financial; industrial and commercial; agriculture, food and fisheries; customs and taxation; transport; social; movement and establishment of persons.

There are also special committees: co-ordination of statistics; comparison of government budgets; public tenders; public health; retail trade and handicrafts; movement of persons (control at external frontiers); territorial planning; tourism; administrative and judicial co-operation; environment.

THE SECRETARIAT-GENERAL

Secretary-General: Drs. E. D. J. KRUIJTBOOSCH.

The secretary-general is always of Netherlands nationality and is assisted by one Belgian and one Luxembourg deputy secretary-general. They are appointed by the Committee of Ministers and are directly responsible to this committee.

JOINT SERVICES

Joint services have executive powers. In 1979 there were two: the Benelux Office on trademarks and brands (for the registering and protection of trademarks within the Union), and the Joint Service for the Registration of Medicaments, which issues licences to sell medicaments in the Union.

THE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL

The Arbitration Tribunal is composed of six people (two from each member country) appointed by the Committee of Ministers. Their function is to settle any disputes that may arise from the working of the Union.

COURT OF JUSTICE

President: G. GOERENS.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

HEADS OF GOVERNMENT CONFERENCE

The Conference, consisting of Prime Ministers, Premiers and Chief Ministers, is the final authority of the Community and determines policy. It is responsible for the conclusion of treaties on behalf of the Community and for entering into relationships between the Community and international organizations and states. The Conference is also responsible for making the financial arrangements to meet the expenses of the Community, but has delegated this function to the Common Market Council. Decisions of the Conference are generally taken unanimously.

COMMON MARKET COUNCIL

The principal organ of the Common Market, the Council consists of a Minister of Government designated by each member state. It is responsible for the development and smooth running of the Common Market, and for the settlement of any problems arising out of its functioning. However, the Conference may issue directives to the Council. The Council generally takes decisions unanimously.

INSTITUTIONS

There are several institutions of the Caribbean Community responsible for formulating policies and performing functions in relation to co-operation in services such as education, health, labour matters and foreign policy. Each member state is represented on each institution by a Minister of Government. These institutions are the Conference of Ministers Responsible for Health and the Standing Committees of Ministers Responsible for Education, Labour, Foreign Affairs, Finance, Agriculture, Mines, Industry and Transport.

ASSOCIATE INSTITUTIONS

Under the treaty, the following bodies are Associate Institutions of the Community:

Caribbean Development Bank
Caribbean Examinations Council
Caribbean Investment Corporation
Caribbean Meteorological Council
Council of Legal Education
Regional Shipping Council
University of Guyana
University of the West Indies
Organisation of Eastern Caribbean States (see following page).

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat is organized into five divisions: Trade, Economics and Statistics; Sectoral Policy and Planning; Functional Co-operation; Legal; and General Services and Administration.

The functions of the Secretariat are:

- (a) to service meetings of the Community and of its Institutions or Committees as may from time to time be determined by the Conference;
- (b) to take appropriate follow-up action on decisions made at such meetings;
- (c) to initiate, arrange and carry out studies on questions of economic and functional co-operation relating to the region as a whole;
- (d) to provide services to member states at their request in respect of matters relating to the achievement of the objectives of the Community;
- (e) to undertake any other duties which may be assigned to it by the Conference or any of the institutions of the Community.

Secretary-General: Dr. KURLEIGH KING.

ACTIVITIES

The Caribbean Community's main field of activity is economic integration by means of a Caribbean Common Market which replaced the former Caribbean Free Trade Association (CARIFTA). The Common Market provides for the co-ordination of development planning and the establishment of a common external tariff, an integrated system of fiscal incentives to industry and double taxation arrangements between the richer and poorer countries.

Between 1976 and July 1978 the work of the Community was halted, on the one hand, by the economic difficulties of Jamaica and Guyana, which caused those countries to impose restrictions on imports against the wishes of Barbados and Trinidad and Tobago; and, on the other, by dissatisfaction among the small Lesser Developed Countries, who claimed that, although obliged to import the large countries' inflation, they were denied an equitable share in regional economic expansion.

At a meeting of trade and foreign ministers in Kingston, Jamaica, in July 1978, hopes were revived that the Community's work would continue. The meeting renewed the Multilateral Clearing Facility, established in 1976 but never used, for assistance in case of balance of payments difficulties. It was decided to make available U.S. $60 million to a Fund, also defunct since 1976, for making emergency payments. The level of local added-value which would entitle goods to preferential duties when entering another CARICOM market was established and a regional food production programme, based on farming projects in Guyana and Belize, was planned. At the meeting Jamaica announced the release of $12.5 million in foreign exchange for the purchase of imports.

At a meeting of the Council of Ministers in June 1979, Guyana announced that its 1978 imports from Caricom members had returned to the 1976 level, and Jamaica announced the removal of all quota restrictions in respect of intra-regional trade with effect from July. The meeting also considered an application for membership from Haiti.

Other important areas of activity of the Community are the co-ordination of foreign policy and functional co-operation. One example of successful co-operation is in the area of health, co-ordinated by the Secretariat's Health Section and guided by the Conference of Ministers Responsible for Health. Work in this area includes assistance to each member state in the development of a health policy, a management development project to train all levels of health staff in basic management skills as well as to strengthen health information systems, health manpower development, environmental health strategy, and food and nutrition strategy. Other activities include disease control, a regional drug policy, health legislation, relations with health agencies, etc.

Also within the Division of Functional Co-operation there lies responsibility for regional action in education and culture, technical assistance, and a number of special projects including youth and sport, industrial relations, position of women in Caribbean society, meteorological services, postal administration, intra-regional travel, and a Regional Centre for Administrative Development.

ORGANISATION OF EASTERN CARIBBEAN STATES—OECS

The treaty establishing the OECS came into force on July 4th, 1981, signed by the seven states which formerly belonged to the West Indies Associated States grouping established in 1966: Antigua and Barbuda, Dominica, Grenada, Montserrat, St. Christopher-Nevis, Saint Lucia and Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. The OECS was to have a central secretariat in Saint Lucia. Other planned principal institutions are: the Authority of Heads of Government (the supreme policy-making body), the Foreign Affairs Committee, the Defence and Security Committee, and the Economic Affairs Committee. A "Pool of Experts" scheme was envisaged, in order to provide specialized technical and administrative skills for the region.

CENTRAL AMERICAN COMMON MARKET—CACM

(Mercado Común Centro Americano)

4a Avenida 10-25 Zona 14, Apdo. postal 1237, Guatemala City, Guatemala

Established under the aegis of the Organization of Central American States (ODECA). The main formal instrument of the CACM is the General Treaty of Central American Economic Integration (Tratado General de Integración Económica Centroamericana) signed in Managua on December 15th, 1960. It was ratified by all countries by September 1963.

MEMBERS

Costa Rica Guatemala El Salvador Honduras* Nicaragua

* Honduras still regards itself as a de jure member of the CACM, although, following a dispute with El Salvador, it re-introduced duties on imports from other CACM countries on December 31st, 1970, and thus, in effect, withdrew from full membership. Trade between El Salvador and Honduras has not yet resumed although Honduras has signed several bilateral trade agreements with Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Guatemala. Honduras continues to play a full part in the Market's institutions.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

PERMANENT SECRETARIAT

(Secretaría Permanente del Tratado General de Integración Económica Centro-americana—SIECA)

The Permanent Secretariat was set up as the administrative arm of the Economic Council and the Executive Council. It supervises the correct implementation of the legal instruments of economic integration, carries out relevant studies at the request of the Common Market authorities, and arranges the meetings of the main bodies.

Secretary-General: RAÚL SIERRA FRANCO.

TRIPARTITE COMMISSION

Composed of Ministers of Finance and Presidents of the Central Banks. Convened at irregular intervals since its foundation in 1972.

MINISTERIAL COMMISSIONS

Composed of Ministers and Deputy Ministers of Economy. Convened at irregular intervals. Replaces the Central American Economic Council and Executive Council.

ACTIVITIES

The General Treaty envisages the eventual liberalization of intra-regional trade and the establishment of a free-trade area and a customs union. By 1969, 95 per cent of customs items had been awarded free-trade status. The remaining 5 per cent consisted of goods covered by international agreements and other special arrangements. A CACM common external tariff was also created. By 1980 it covered 99 per cent of all customs sections. CACM member-countries have also increasingly pursued a common policy in respect of international trade agreements on commodities, raw materials and staples. In recent years several joint diplomatic missions and joint representations at international meetings and organizations have been set up when appropriate.

Intra-regional trade increased from U.S. $33 million in 1960 to $2,393 million (provisional figure) in 1980. By countries, expansion has been irregular, partly because of the Honduran disengagement from the Market in the early 1970s. Guatemala and El Salvador are the principal exporters providing 63.6 per cent of total exports and 52.4 per cent of total imports in 1979. Little headway has been made in industrial integration, mainly because of the continuing heavy external dependence of the region's economies.

Agriculture has received relatively low priority in the integration process and its development has been slow. However, there have been some specific initiatives such as a basic grains agreement and a food price stabilization programme.

In the short term, efforts are to be concentrated on executing joint projects and, at a meeting of the Ministers of Economy in May 1977, it was decided that a strategy based on integration projects was preferable to the previous market integration concept on general economic grounds. Since 1977 the Secretariat has been working on a new Central American tariff, based more closely on the Brussels Nomenclature. CACM countries have also intensified their efforts to restructure energy production since the 1973 oil crisis; action has been concentrated on the development of hydro-electricity.

TRATADO MARCO

In 1971 the Secretariat began work on a new integration model for the region and the proposals provided for the establishment of a new Central American Economic Community. These proposals were agreed to in principle by the Ministers of Finance and Economy and Presidents of the Central Banks in December 1972. The CAN was then set up to expand the proposals into a draft treaty (Tratado Marco) for a Central American Economic and Social Community, which was finalized on March 23rd, 1976. It is subject to legislative ratification and provides for the establishment of new top-level administrative organizations and a number of regional institutions, for a free-trade area, a customs union, and common industrial policies similar to those contained in the 1960 General Treaty. It also calls for the harmonization of fiscal and financial policies, the establishment of a monetary union and the enactment of common programmes for social and economic development.

TREATIES, AGREEMENTS AND FUNDS

TREATIES

TRATADO MULTILATERAL DE LIBRE COMERCIO E INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in Tegucigalpa in 1958 by all members of ODECA, except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. For the equalization of Customs duties between the members. All duties were removed from 237 groups of regionally produced commodities when the Treaty came into force and were to be removed from all regionally produced goods over a period of ten years.

TRATADO GENERAL DE INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in 1959 by all members of ODECA except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. In July 1962 the members signed agreements establishing uniform tariffs on more than 95 per cent of all products entering the area.

TRATADO DE ASOCIACIÓN ECONÓMICA

Signed in February 1960 by El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, and came into force in April 1960. Tariffs were then removed on 95 per cent of all goods traded between the members, and most remaining tariffs had been removed by June 1966. At a later stage restrictions on the movement of capital and labour will be removed.

TRATADO DE INTERCAMBIO PREFERENCIAL Y DE LIBRE COMERCIO

Signed by Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Panama in 1961 and ratified in 1962, to speed economic integration through tariff reductions between members.

OTHER AGREEMENTS

Convention on Integrated Industries: signed June 1958; provides that special monopoly status be given to an individual enterprise in each industry, to be established in one member country with a view to exporting to the rest. The operation of this convention has been limited and, to date, only two integration industries have been set up—a tyre factory in Guatemala and an insecticides plant in Nicaragua.

Special System of Promotion of Protected Industries: signed January 1963, this system uses tariff concessions to encourage projects requiring heavy investment, with the limitation that such projects must produce at least half the total of the regional demand.

Convention of Uniform Fiscal Incentives for Industrial Development: signed in July 1962 and becoming operative in March 1969, the Convention provides for a wide range of benefits to be applied to various categories of industries in Central America.

Agreement to establish the Central American Monetary Union: signed by the Governors of the Central Banks in 1964. The Monetary Union is not yet effective; it involves the alignment of foreign exchange and monetary policies, and the operation of a common currency (Central American peso at par with the U.S. dollar).

Treaty on Telecommunications: signed in April 1966 by Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, and by Costa Rica in January 1967.

FUNDS

Guarantee Fund: set up 1969 by the Governors of the Central American Bank for Economic Integration. Capital of $40 million subscribed entirely by members of the Bank.

Fondo Centroamericano de Estabilización Monetaria (Central American Fund for Monetary Stabilization): agreement signed on October 1st, 1969, by Presidents of the five Central American Central Banks to provide short-term financial assistance to members facing temporary balance-of-payments difficulties. Initial capital U.S. $50 million, increased to $175 million by mid-1978; financial support has been secured from the U.S.A., Venezuela and international commercial banks. Mems.: Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica.

Fondo Social Centroamericano: to finance social development plans.

CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

The highest deliberative body of the Colombo Plan, consisting of Ministers representing member governments. It meets every two years in a member country. The ministers' meeting is preceded by a meeting of senior officials who are directly concerned with the operation of the Plan in their respective countries, to identify issues for discussion by the ministers.

COLOMBO PLAN COUNCIL

The Council meets twice a year in Colombo to review the economic and social development of the region and promote co-operation among member countries. Its executive arm is the Colombo Plan Bureau.

President: THOMAS ABRAHAM (India).

COLOMBO PLAN BUREAU

The only permanent institution of the Plan, with its headquarters in Colombo, participates in Consultative Committee meetings, serves the Council, records the flow of bilateral assistance and disseminates information on the Colombo Plan as a whole. It also provides assistance to the host government for the holding of Consultative Committee Meetings. The Bureau represents the Colombo Plan at meetings where such representation is necessary.

The operating costs of the Bureau are met by equal contributions from member states.

Director: NOBORU YABATA (Japan).

Chief Economic Adviser: Dr. MAHFUZUL HUQ (Bangladesh).

Information Officer: MANIK LAL MANANDHAR (Nepal).

ACTIVITIES

CAPITAL AID

Capital aid takes the form of grants and loans for national projects mainly from six developed countries to the developing member countries of the Plan. The capital aid covers almost all aspects of social and economic development.

From 1950 to 1979 total amounts of assistance from the major donors were as follows:

	U.S. $ million
Australia	3,253.5
Canada	3,010.7
India	663.6
Japan	8,665.7
New Zealand	189.4
United Kingdom	4,100.7
U.S.A.	37,961.8

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Under the Technical Co-operation programme experts are supplied, fellowships are awarded and equipment for training and research is supplied.

From 1950 to December 1979, 146,082 trainees and students had received technical training and 40,514 experts and 1,594 volunteers and equipment to the value of U.S. $797 million had been provided.

During 1979, 7,332 trainees and students received training; 2,626 experts and 284 volunteers were sent out; value of equipment supplied was $20.5 million; total value of co-operation activities from the inception of the Plan to December 1979 was nearly $3,558 million, disbursements in 1979 totalling $298.5 million.

The United Kingdom provided about 32 per cent of the 7,332 training and students' places available in 1979.

Japan was the second largest donor, followed by Australia and the U.S.A.

India was the largest recipient of training and student awards during 1979 with 948 awards, followed by Indonesia (908), Thailand (741) and the Philippines (591).

Of the 2,626 experts provided in 1979, Japan was the major donor country, providing 1,655 assignments, i.e. 63 per cent of the total. Australia (528) was the second largest donor with 20 per cent. If experts whose assignments continued into 1979 from a previous year are also taken into account, Japan, Australia, the U.S.A., and the United Kingdom provided respectively 51.9 per cent (2,967), 15.5 per cent (884), 15.3 per cent (874), and 12.3 per cent (702) of a total of 5,716 experts financed in 1979.

Indonesia was the largest recipient of experts (655) during 1979 followed by Thailand (462) and the Philippines (304).

DRUG ADVISORY PROGRAMME

The programme was launched in 1973 to help develop co-operative schemes to eliminate the cause and ameliorate the effects of drug abuse in member states. The programme is supplementary in nature and does not duplicate the efforts of international and other agencies involved. Its activities are directed towards the promotion of effective national, regional and sub-regional efforts in tackling problems and identifying areas in which assistance and co-operation under the Colombo Plan would be useful.

Seminars are held in member countries to inform governments and the public and to help organize remedial measures. Assistance is given in training narcotics officials in all aspects of drug abuse prevention by means of exchanges, fellowships, study, training and observation. Bilateral and multilateral talks among member countries are held.

Member countries are helped in establishing narcotics control offices or boards, revising legislation on narcotics, improving law enforcement, treatment, rehabilitation and prevention education, and in improving public understanding of these matters by the use of mass media, workshops and seminars.

Drug Adviser: Pío A. ABARRO (Philippines).

STAFF COLLEGE FOR TECHNICIAN EDUCATION

Paterson Road, P.O.B. 187, Singapore 10.

Established in Singapore in 1974 as the first multilateral project of the Colombo Plan. All 26 member governments contribute to its operating costs.

The College is administered by a Governing Board consisting of a representative from each member government, the Director of the College and the Director of the Colombo Plan Bureau.

The main functions of the College are:

- (i) to undertake programmes in the development of staff and in the training of staff for technician education;
- (ii) to conduct study conferences and courses in technician education for senior administrators;
- (iii) to undertake research in any special problems in the training of technicians in the region;
- (iv) to give advice and other facilities for training of technicians within and outside the region.

Chairman of the Governing Board: HARRY E. THAYER (U.S.A.).

Director: Prof. Y. SARAN (India).

MEMBERSHIP

The Commonwealth is a free association of independent countries without a written constitution but the practice is for new members to be admitted only by the consent of all other members and the right to secession is implicit. The Commonwealth is not a federation, for there is no central government, nor are there any rigid contractual obligations such as bind the members of the United Nations. Heads of Government have, however, adopted a number of declarations. At Singapore in 1971 they unanimously approved a Declaration of Commonwealth Principles (see page 164); at their meeting in London in 1977 they approved a statement on Apartheid in Sport (which has become known as the Gleneagles Declaration); and at Lusaka in 1979 they agreed a Declaration on Racism and Racial Prejudice.

Internally self-governing states and other dependencies associated with Commonwealth members also take part in a variety of Commonwealth activities, and are also eligible for Commonwealth technical assistance.

HISTORY

The evolution of the Commonwealth began with the introduction of self-government in Canada in the 1840s; Australia, New Zealand and South Africa became independent before the first world war. At the Imperial Conference of 1926 the United Kingdom and the four Dominions, as they were then called, were described as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status", and this change was enacted into law by the Statute of Westminster, in 1931.

The modern Commonwealth began with the entry of India and Pakistan in 1947, and of Sri Lanka (then Ceylon) in 1948. In 1950 India became a republic, and the Commonwealth Heads of Government then decided that allegiance to the same monarch need not be a condition of membership. This was a precedent for a number of other members (see Heads of State and Heads of Government, below).

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

MEETINGS OF HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

Meetings are private and informal, and operate not by voting but by consensus. The emphasis is on consultation and exchange of views for co-operation. A communiqué is issued at the end of every meeting. Meetings are held every two years in different capitals in the Commonwealth. 1981 meeting: Melbourne, Australia.

OTHER CONSULTATIONS

Meetings at ministerial and official level are also held regularly. Since 1959 Finance Ministers have met in a Commonwealth country in the week prior to the annual meetings of the IMF and the World Bank. Education Ministers, Health Ministers and Law Ministers usually meet about every three years. The Commonwealth Youth Affairs Council, at ministerial level, meets every two years.

Senior officials—Cabinet Secretaries, Permanent Sec-

HEADS OF STATE AND HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

In November 1981, 21 member countries were monarchies and 25 were republics. All Commonwealth countries accept Queen Elizabeth II as the symbol of the free association of the independent member nations and as such the Head of the Commonwealth. Of the 25 republics, the offices of Head of State and Head of Government were combined in 17: Bangladesh, Botswana, Cyprus, The Gambia, Ghana, Guyana, Kenya, Kiribati, Malawi, Nauru, Nigeria, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, Uganda and Zambia. The two offices were separate in the remaining eight: Dominica, India, Malta, Singapore, Trinidad and Tobago, Vanuatu, Western Samoa and Zimbabwe.

Of the monarchies, the Queen is Head of State of the United Kingdom and of 16 others, in each of which she is represented by a Governor-General: Antigua, and Barbuda, Australia, the Bahamas, Barbados, Belize, Canada, Fiji, Grenada, Jamaica, Mauritius, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Solomon Islands and Tuvalu. Lesotho, Malaysia, Swaziland and Tonga are also monarchies, where the traditional monarch is Head of State.

The Governors-General are appointed by the Queen on the advice of the ministers of the country concerned. They are wholly independent of the Government of the United Kingdom.

HIGH COMMISSIONERS

Governments of member countries are represented in other Commonwealth countries by High Commissioners who have a status equivalent to that of Ambassadors.

WITHDRAWALS

Ireland withdrew from the Commonwealth on April 18th, 1949; South Africa withdrew on May 31st, 1961; and Pakistan withdrew on January 30th, 1972.

retaries to Heads of Government and others—meet regularly in the year between meetings of Heads of Government to provide continuity and to exchange views on various developments. Last meeting: Nicosia, Cyprus, November 1980.

COMMONWEALTH SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat, established by Commonwealth Heads of Government at their meeting in London in July 1965, operates as an international organization at the service of all Commonwealth countries, responsible to Commonwealth governments collectively and is the main agency for multilateral communication between them. It promotes consultation and disseminates information on matters of common concern to member governments, services the meetings of Commonwealth Heads of Government, Ministers and officials, and assists appropriate agencies in the fostering of Commonwealth links.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The cost of the Secretariat is borne by Commonwealth Governments in agreed shares based on the UN formula.

The Secretariat is staffed from member countries. The Secretary-General is appointed by the Heads of Government for a period of five years. He is assisted by two Deputy Secretaries-General (one with general responsibilities, the other with responsibility for economic matters) and two Assistant Secretaries-General, one with responsibility for general matters and the other being the Managing Director of the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation (CFTC).

The Secretariat budget for 1980/81 is £3.25 million.

Secretary-General (1975-85): H.E. SHRIDATH RAMPHAL, K.B., C.M.G. (Guyana).

Deputy Secretaries-General: E. C. ANYAOKU (Nigeria), C. J. SMALL (Canada).

Assistant Secretary-General (Managing Director, CFTC): D. ANDERSON (U.K.).

Assistant Secretary-General: Dr. K. MURSHID (Bangladesh).

Administration Division

Director: HENRY LYNCH-SHYLLON (Sierra Leone).

Applied Studies in Government

Director: N. P. SEN (India).

Economic Affairs

Director: Dr. BIMAL N. JALAN (India)

Education Division

Director: REX E. O. AKPOFURE (Nigeria).

Export Market Development

Director: BIDHU D. JAYAL (India).

Food Production and Rural Development

Youth Programme

Director: PETER J. BROOKS (New Zealand).

Women and Development

Adviser: DORIENCE WILSON-SMILLIE (Canada).

ACTIVITIES

The 1979 Lusaka meeting's most publicized achievement was the nine-point plan to help bring Zimbabwe Rhodesia to legal independence, worked out by a group of leaders—from Australia, Jamaica, Nigeria, Tanzania, the United Kingdom and Zambia, together with the Commonwealth Secretary-General—and endorsed at a special session of all delegation heads. The leaders issued the Lusaka Declaration on Racism and Racial Prejudice as a formal expression of their abhorrence of all forms of racist policy. A proposal for a Commonwealth Human Rights Commission was welcomed in principle and will be further studied.

A key outcome of the discussions on economic issues was a North-South Commonwealth team to study factors inhibiting structural change and sustained economic growth in both developed and developing countries. Heads of Government, acknowledging industrialization to be an essential element in development strategy and seeking to help industrial advance in Commonwealth developing countries, approved proposals for an Industrial Development Unit, which was set up within the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation (CFTC).

International issues of concern to the leaders included a solution for the Cyprus problem, and support for Belize in securing early independence while maintaining territorial integrity. The leaders endorsed a special Commonwealth programme to assist those countries which are disadvantaged by size, isolation and scarce resources; called for an increase in the resources of the Commonwealth Youth Programme; agreed to extend the mandate of the Commonwealth Foundation and to raise the target for its annual income to £1.1 million; decided that a committee of experts should study pressing communication and media problems (in a report and recommendations published under the title Communication, Society and Development); and agreed to the appointment of an adviser on women and development to the Secretary-General to help him ensure that Secretariat programmes provide for greater involvement of women and are more relevant to their needs.

DEVELOPMENT CO-OPERATION

The Commonwealth's commitment to the removal of disparities in wealth and to the achievement of a more equitable world society was expressed in the Declaration of Commonwealth Principles adopted in 1971.

Commonwealth action in support of this commitment takes two forms. The Commonwealth seeks to advance the world community towards agreement on major economic issues that divide rich and poor. It benefits from the fact that it is a substantial section of the international community, comprising both developed and developing nations, a consensus among whom can assist agreement on the wider stage.

Deliberations among Commonwealth Heads of Government have been guided by awareness of this Commonwealth potential. At their meeting in Lusaka in 1979, Commonwealth leaders held a substantive discussion on the deterioration in the world economic situation and prospects, and gave particular attention to the need to investigate factors inhibiting structural change and a sustained improvement in economic growth. They requested the Secretary-General to commission a Group of Experts to report on these issues and to identify specific measures by which countries might act to reduce or eliminate such constraints as a matter of urgency. The Group set up by the Secretary-General consisted of ten experts drawn from both developing and developed member countries, with Prof. Heinz Arndt of Australia as its chairman.

The Group's report was presented to the Secretary-General in June 1980 and was forwarded to member governments in time to assist them in their preparations for the Special Session of the UN General Assembly on a new International Development Strategy for the 1980s, which started in August 1980. The Report was also circulated to delegates to the Special Session and to officials in other international organizations.

Commonwealth countries have also sought ideas for the solution of their developmental and other economic problems through the holding of regional and inter-regional consultations. These have been of several types, ranging from meetings of Heads of Government of Asian and Pacific member countries (held most recently in India in September 1980) to those of Heads of Regional Organizations to promote economic co-operation (held most recently in Guyana in June-July 1980).

Commonwealth nations also work together to give practical support to economic and social progress in developing member countries. The latter receive the major share of bilateral development aid provided by the developed nations within the association. Several of the developing nations themselves assist others, particularly by providing expertise and educational assistance.

Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation (CFTC): c/o Secretariat; f. 1971 as the technical assistance arm of the Secretariat; all member countries contribute to the CFTC, and every Commonwealth developing country benefits from the Fund's capacity to offer Commonwealth experts and advisers, arrange training for nationals in other member countries, or provide assistance in improving export performance. In June 1980 230 experts, almost 60 per cent of them from developing Commonwealth countries were serving on long-term assignments (six months to two years) under CFTC, while 74 experts on short-term assignments (under six months), together with over 20 consultancy firms, provided their services during the financial year 1979/80. During that year, awards were made by the fund to 1,300 students and trainees. Export promotion has helped several countries to win new markets or to improve production for export. CFTC expenditure rose from £200,000 sterling in its first year (1971/72) to £11.3 million in 1978/79.

Managing Director: D. ANDERSON (U.K.).

TRADE

Intra-Commonwealth trade declined as a share of the total trade of Commonwealth countries from two-fifths in the mid-1950s to one-fifth in 1973. In 1954 the Commonwealth took 48 per cent of United Kingdom exports, but by 1979 the proportion had fallen to 12 per cent. Meanwhile, United Kingdom exports to the EEC increased, exceeding exports to the Commonwealth for the first time in 1970, and rising from 19.3 per cent in 1960 to 42 per cent in 1979.

The system of Commonwealth Preferences, under which members accorded a tariff lower than Most Favoured Nation rates to imports from Commonwealth and some other countries, was phased out, ending in January 1977.

A number of Commonwealth members are included in the African, Caribbean and Pacific group of developing countries which have associate status with the EEC under the Lomé Convention of 1975. This was renegotiated for a further five years from March 1980. Under the terms of the Convention, the EEC extends to ACP members trading preferences, guarantees on export earnings from certain commodities, financial assistance for rehabilitating production facilities for certain minerals, and technical assistance; the Convention also provides for certain joint institutions. The Commonwealth members concerned are:

SECRETARIAT SERVICES

Statistical and other economic material is compiled by the Secretariat and distributed to member governments, and papers are prepared for meetings on financial and economic problems. The Secretariat prepares annual reports on Commonwealth trade and collects and issues statistics on certain commodities.

Consultative meetings of Commonwealth delegates to the main sessions of UNCTAD and such meetings as the World Food Conference and the FAO commission on fertilizers, have been organized.

A special representative of the Secretariat in Geneva provides member countries with advice in connection with the GATT multilateral trade negotiations.

SOME COMMONWEALTH PROGRAMMES

Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan: drawn up at the 1959 Education Conference; provides opportunities for students of high intellectual promise to pursue studies in Commonwealth countries other than their own. The target figure of 1,000 award holders at any one time was met each year from 1965, and over 11,000 awards had been made by early 1978. In 1977 Education Ministers agreed that awards should be increased to 1,500 at any one time.

Book Development Programme: drawn up at the 1971 Education Conference to assist the development of national book industries, the training of national book publishing staff and to pass on information on new publications produced in the developing countries. A number of regional seminars and courses have been organized by the Secretariat under this programme.

Commonwealth Youth Programme—CYP: f. 1973; supports the efforts of governments to involve young people in activities relating to national development; provides most of its services through three regional centres serving Africa, Asia and the Pacific, and the Caribbean. Residential diploma courses in Youth and Development are conducted at each of the CYP Centres and also in Fiji, in association with the University of the South Pacific, to meet the needs of youth workers in the regions. In addition, the CYP Caribbean Centre provides a correspondence course giving basic training to youth workers throughout the region, and each of the Centres runs short training courses at national level in collaboration with governments. Other activities include advice to governments on youth policy and programmes; the provision of "seed money" for employment and community service projects initiated by young people, and travel fellowships for administrators and youth workers to study youth programmes in other parts of the Commonwealth. Publ. CYP Youth News Service.

Commonwealth Information Programme: opened 1971; the Information Division plans and conducts press arrangements for Commonwealth meetings in conjunction with host governments, issues press releases, provides a feature service for Commonwealth newspapers and magazines, and maintains close liaison with the media. Monthly radio-tape programmes are distributed to all member countries and focus on political, social, economic and cultural news and events. The basis of the information programme is its publications, which are issued free of charge. (See Publications below.)

OTHER COMMONWEALTH ORGANIZATIONS

(In England, unless otherwise stated)

AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY

Commonwealth Agricultural Bureaux: Farnham House, Farnham Royal, Slough, SL2 3BN, England; f. 1929; consists of four Institutes and ten Bureaux under the control of an Executive Council comprising representatives of the Commonwealth countries which contribute to its funds.

The functions of the CAB are to provide:

1. a world information service for agricultural scientists and other professional workers in the same and allied fields;
2. a biological control service;
3. a pest and disease identification service.

Each Institute and Bureau is concerned with its own particular branch of agricultural science and acts as an effective clearing house for the collection, collation and dissemination of information of value to research workers. The information, compiled from worldwide literature, is published in 1 primary journal, 27 abstracts and 19 specialized journals which have a monthly circulation of 30,000 in 150 countries.

Annotated bibliographies provide information on specific topics, and review articles, books, maps and monographs are also issued. Computer abstracts are also available.

In addition, Institutes of Entomology, Mycology and Helminthology provide identification and taxonomic services and the Institute of Biological Control under-

Special Commonwealth Programme for Zimbabwe: established 1966 to provide assistance for suitably qualified Zimbabweans who left their country for political reasons or in order to seek opportunities for education or training or employment not available to them in their country. Over 4,500 students were offered study places, scholarships and employment in Commonwealth countries.

Commonwealth Zimbabwe Scholarship Trust Fund: begun in 1972 with finance from Canada, and later from Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom, to enable young Zimbabweans to take up places in Commonwealth developing countries. The Programme is now being "wound down" and no new awards have been provided since the 1979 Lancaster House agreement on legal independence for Zimbabwe. Support will continue to be provided until 1983/84, when the last of the 520 students on course will complete their studies. During the period 1972-79, a total of 718 students were given awards at 110 institutions in 25 Commonwealth developing countries.

Commonwealth Programme of Applied Studies in Government: set up in 1975 with the primary objective of providing senior administrators with opportunities for study and exchange of experience related to the practicalities of modern public administration within the framework of Commonwealth relations. Its recent activities have included meetings on problems facing public service commissions and the management of public enterprises.

takes field work in biological control throughout the world.

ORGANIZATIONS NOT AFFILIATED TO THE COMMONWEALTH AGRICULTURAL BUREAUX

Commonwealth Forestry Association: c/o Commonwealth Forestry Institute, South Park Rd., Oxford, OX1 3RB; f. 1921; collects and circulates information relating to forestry and the commercial utilization of forest products and provides a means of communications in the Commonwealth and other interested countries; mems.: 1,200; Chair. D. R. JOHNSTON; Publ. Commonwealth Forestry Review.

Standing Committee on Commonwealth Forestry: 231 Corstorphine Rd., Edinburgh, EH12 7AT, Scotland; f. 1923 to provide continuity between one Conference and another, and to provide a forum for discussion on any forestry matters of common interest to member governments which may be brought to the Committee's notice by any member country or organization; mems. about 50; Sec. A. WILSON. Publs. reports and papers.

COMMONWEALTH STUDIES

Institute of Commonwealth Studies: 27 Russell Square, London, WC1B 5DS, England; f. 1949 to promote advanced study of the Commonwealth; provides a library and meeting place for postgraduate students and academic staff engaged in research in this field. Dir. Prof. W. H. MORRIS-JONES, B.Sc. (ECON.); Sec. P. H. LYON, B.Sc. (ECON.), Ph.D.; publs. Annual Report, Commonwealth Papers (series), Collected Seminar Papers.

Institute of Commonwealth Studies: University of Oxford; Queen Elizabeth House, 21 St. Giles, Oxford; a research and senior teaching centre for administrators and foreign service officers from developing countries and for postgraduate students of Oxford University. Undertakes studies of new states.

COMMUNICATIONS

Commonwealth Telecommunications Bureau: Haymarket House, 28 Haymarket, London SW1Y 4SR; f. 1968; composed of the Commonwealth Telecommunications Council, which meets at least once a year, and the Commonwealth Telecommunications Conference, which meets every 3 years. The Bureau acts as a clearing house for financial arrangements and prepares and disseminates information; Gen. Sec. A. SQUIRE.

Commonwealth Air Transport Council: 1 Victoria St., London, SW1H 0ET; f. 1945 to keep under review the development of Commonwealth civil air transport.

Meetings generally every three years. Mems.: governments of Commonwealth Countries and British Dependent Territories; Sec. J. F. LANGLEY, M.B.E.

Conferences of Commonwealth Postal Administrations: c/o Directorate-General of Posts, Postal Services Dept., Kuala Lumpur 01-34, Malaysia; Five Conferences have been held so far (fifth Conference: Arusha, Tanzania, 1981). Their purpose is to discuss international postal matters of common concern, especially those which touch upon the activities of the Universal Postal Union.

EDUCATION

Association of Commonwealth Universities: John Foster House, 36 Gordon Square, London, WC1H 0PF; f. 1913 as the Universities Bureau of the British Empire; holds quinquennial Congresses and other meetings in the intervening years; publishes factual information about universities and access to them; acts as a general information centre and provides an advisory service for the filling of university teaching staff appointments overseas; supplies secretariats for the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the United Kingdom, the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission and the Kennedy Memorial Trust; mems.: 236 Universities in 28 countries; Sec.-Gen. Dr. A. CHRISTODOULOU; publs. include Commonwealth Universities Yearbook, Higher Education in the United Kingdom: A Handbook for Students from Overseas (jointly with the British Council), A.C.U. Bulletin of Current Documentation, and various other reference publications.

Commonwealth Association of Science and Mathematics Educators (CASME): Education Division, Commonwealth Secretariat, Marlborough House, Pall Mall, London, SW1Y 5HX; f. October 1974; special emphasis is given to the social significance of education in these subjects. Hon. Sec. E. APIA.

Commonwealth Education Conference: held about every three years; the first was in Oxford in 1959. Ministers and senior officials discuss educational issues of common concern, review Commonwealth Co-operation activities in their field and recommend areas of study and action by the Secretariat. Eighth Conference: 1980, Sri Lanka. Organized by the Commonwealth Secretariat.

Commonwealth Education Liaison Committee (CELC): f. 1959; all member governments represented; reviews developments and provides continuity between the Commonwealth Education Conferences. Provides advice on policy matters and programmes to the Education Division of the Commonwealth Secretariat.

League for the Exchange of Commonwealth Teachers: Seymour Mews House, 26-37 Seymour Mews, London W1H 9PE; f. 1901; promotes educational exchanges for a period of one year between teachers in Australia, the Bahamas, Barbados, Canada, India, Jamaica, Kenya, New Zealand, Singapore and Trinidad and Tobago; Exec. Sec. PATRICIA SWAIN. Publ. Exchange Teacher (annual).

HEALTH

Commonwealth Medical Association: c/o BMA House, Tavistock Sq., London WC1H 9JP; f. 1962 to promote within the Commonwealth the interests of the medical and allied sciences; meetings of its Council are held every two years; mems.: Medical Associations in 31 countries; Dir. J. A. BYRNE (U.K.).

Commonwealth Health Ministers' Meeting: Delegations are normally headed by Ministers of Health. Mutual assistance in medical education, the planning and development of health services, the training of ancillary staff, the supply of medical equipment and the provision of research facilities are among the chief subjects discussed. Conferences are held about every three years; last meeting: Arusha, Tanzania, 1980.

Commonwealth Caribbean Health Ministers' Conference: seeks to harmonize health policies and hospital maintenance, and improve disaster preparedness. Organized by the Caribbean Community Secretariat.

Commonwealth Regional Health Secretariat for East, Central and Southern Africa: P.O.B. 1009, Arusha, Tanzania; f. 1974 to co-ordinate inter-governmental health activities; to implement decisions of the Commonwealth Medical Conference and the Health Ministers' Regional Conference; to collaborate with WHO and other international agencies; to help establish training programmes and pool resources for medical work; Regional Sec. DECLARATION OF COMMONWEALTH PRINCIPLES Agreed by the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting at Singapore, January 22nd, 1971.

The Commonwealth of Nations is a voluntary association of independent sovereign states, each responsible for its own policies, consulting and co-operating in the common interests of their peoples and in the promotion of international understanding and world peace.

Members of the Commonwealth come from territories in the six continents and five oceans, include peoples of different races, languages and religions, and display every stage of economic development from poor developing nations to wealthy industrialized nations. They encompass a rich variety of cultures, traditions and institutions.

Membership of the Commonwealth is compatible with the freedom of member-governments to be non-aligned or to belong to any other grouping, association or alliance. Within this diversity all members of the Commonwealth hold certain principles in common. It is by pursuing these principles that the Commonwealth can continue to influence international society for the benefit of mankind.

We believe that international peace and order are essential to the security and prosperity of mankind; we therefore support the United Nations and seek to strengthen its influence for peace in the world, and its efforts to remove the causes of tension between nations.

We believe in the liberty of the individual, in equal rights for all citizens regardless of race, colour, creed or political belief, and in their inalienable right to participate by means of free and democratic political processes in framing the society in which they live. We therefore strive to promote in each of our countries those representative institutions and guarantees for personal freedom under the law that are our common heritage.

We recognize racial prejudice as a dangerous sickness threatening the healthy development of the human race and racial discrimination as an unmitigated evil of society. Each of us will vigorously combat this evil within our own nation.

No country will afford to regimes which practice racial discrimination assistance which in its own judgment directly contributes to the pursuit or consolidation of this evil policy. We oppose all forms of colonial domination and racial oppression and are committed to the principles of human dignity and equality.

We will therefore use all our efforts to foster human equality and dignity everywhere, and to further the principles of self-determination and non-racialism.

We believe that the wide disparities in wealth now existing between different sections of mankind are too great to be tolerated. They also create world tensions. Our aim is their progressive removal. We therefore seek to use our efforts to overcome poverty, ignorance and disease, in raising standards of life and achieving a more equitable international society.

To this end our aim is to achieve the freest possible flow of international trade on terms fair and equitable to all, taking into account the special requirements of the developing countries, and to encourage the flow of adequate resources, including governmental and private resources, to the developing countries, bearing in mind the importance of doing this in a true spirit of partnership and of establishing for this purpose in the developing countries conditions which are conducive to sustained investment and growth.

We believe that international co-operation is essential to remove the causes of war, promote tolerance, combat injustice, and secure development among the peoples of the world. We are convinced that the Commonwealth is one of the most fruitful associations for these purposes.

In pursuing these principles the members of the Commonwealth believe that they can provide a constructive example of the multi-national approach which is vital to peace and progress in the modern world. The association is based on consultation, discussion and co-operation.

In rejecting coercion as an instrument of policy they recognize that the security of each member state from external aggression is a matter of concern to all members. It provides many channels for continuing exchanges of knowledge and views on professional, cultural, economic, legal and political issues among member states.

These relationships we intend to foster and extend, for we believe that our multi-national association can expand human understanding and understanding among nations, assist in the elimination of discrimination based on differences of race, colour or creed, maintain and strengthen personal liberty, contribute to the enrichment of life for all, and provide a powerful influence for peace among nations.

LUSAKA DECLARATION ON RACISM AND RACIAL PREJUDICE

Agreed by the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting at Lusaka, Zambia, August 1979.

We, the Commonwealth Heads of Government, recalling the Declaration of Commonwealth Principles made at Singapore on 22 January 1971 and the statement on Apartheid in Sport, issued in London on 15 June 1977, have decided to proclaim our desire to work jointly as well as severally for the eradication of all forms of racism and racial prejudice.

The Commonwealth is an institution devoted to the promotion of international understanding and world peace, and to the achievement of equal rights for all citizens regardless of race, colour, sex, creed or political belief, and is committed to the eradication of the dangerous evils of racism and racial prejudice.

We now, therefore, proclaim this Lusaka Declaration of the Commonwealth on Racism and Racial Prejudice.

United in our desire to rid the world of the evils of racism and racial prejudice, we proclaim our faith in the inherent dignity and worth of the human person and declare that:

- (i) the peoples of the Commonwealth have the right to live freely in dignity and equality, without any distinction or exclusion based on race, colour, sex, descent, or national or ethnic origin;
- (ii) while everyone is free to retain diversity in his or her culture and lifestyle, this diversity does not justify the perpetuation of racial prejudice or racially discriminatory practices;
- (iii) everyone has the right to equality before the law and equal justice under the law;
- (iv) everyone has the right to effective remedies and protection against any form of discrimination based on the grounds of race, colour, sex, descent, or national or ethnic origin.

We reject as inhuman and intolerable all policies designed to perpetuate apartheid, racial segregation or other policies based on theories that racial groups are or may be inherently superior or inferior.

We reaffirm that it is the duty of all the peoples of the Commonwealth to work together for the total eradication of the infamous policy of apartheid which is internationally recognized as a crime against the conscience and dignity of mankind and the very existence of which is an affront to humanity.

We agree that everyone has the right to protection against acts of incitement to racial hatred and discrimination, whether committed by individuals, groups or other organizations.

We affirm that there should be no discrimination based on race, colour, sex, descent or national or ethnic origin in the acquisition or exercise of the right to vote; in the field of civil rights or access to citizenship; or in the economic, social or cultural fields, particularly education, health, employment, occupation, housing, social security and cultural life.

We attach particular importance to ensuring that children shall be protected from practices which may foster racism or racial prejudice. Children have the right to be brought up and educated in a spirit of tolerance and understanding so as to be able to contribute fully to the building of future societies based on justice and friendship.

We believe that those groups in societies who may be especially disadvantaged because of residual racist attitudes are entitled to the fullest protection of the law. We recognize that the history of the Commonwealth and its diversity require that special attention should be paid to the problems of indigenous minorities. We recognize that the same special attention should be paid to the problems of immigrants, immigrant workers and refugees.

We agree that special measures may in particular circumstances be required to advance the development of disadvantaged groups in society. We recognize that the effects of colonialism or racism in the past may make desirable special provisions for the social and economic enhancement of indigenous populations.

Inspired by the principles of freedom and equality which characterize our association, we accept the solemn duty of working together to eliminate racism and racial prejudice. This duty involves the acceptance of the principle that positive measures may be required to advance the elimination of racism, including assistance to those struggling to rid themselves and their environment of the practice.

Being aware that legislation alone cannot eliminate racism and racial prejudice, we endorse the need to initiate public information and education policies designed to promote understanding, tolerance, respect and friendship among peoples and racial groups.

We are particularly conscious of the importance of the contribution the media can make to human rights and the eradication of racism and racial prejudice by helping to eliminate ignorance and misunderstanding between people and by drawing attention to the evils which afflict humanity. We affirm the importance of truthful presentation of facts in order to ensure that the public are fully informed of the dangers presented by racism and racial prejudice.

In accordance with established principles of International Law and, in particular, the provisions of the International Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Racial Discrimination, we affirm that everyone is, at all times and in all places, entitled to be protected in the enjoyment of the right to be free of racism and racial prejudice.

We believe that the existence in the world of apartheid and racial discrimination is a matter of concern to all human beings. We recognize that we share an international Between 1974 and 1979 budget provisions for the community quadrupled to 3,231.5 million francs CFA and capital investment increased five-fold. Up until 1976 Senegal and the Ivory Coast were responsible for almost 99 per cent of goods exported within the Community, whereas Mali accounted for almost one third of all imports.

The Community also makes contributions to development projects of members. In 1977 loans of 412 million Mali francs were made to Mali, 206 million francs CFA to Upper Volta for water supply and customs control, and funds were approved for dairy construction in Mauritania.

An agreement of non-aggression and mutual co-operation was signed by the member countries and Togo at the Third Conference of Heads of State in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, in June 1977. An agreement to exchange information on economic development, co-ordinate general studies and finance joint development projects was signed with the Conseil de l'Entente (page 169) in January 1978. In August 1980 a co-operation agreement was signed with the Mano River Union (page 296).

At the fourth Conference of Heads of State at Bamako, Mali, in 1978, an agreement regarding free circulation and the right to establish residence was signed by the six member states. Plans were announced to create a regional solar energy research centre, a commercial fisheries organization, a centre for higher training in the fishing industry, a college of geology and mining, a centre for further studies in management and a rural waterworks programme for drought-stricken areas. The total cost of these six projects was estimated at over 40,000 million francs CFA. In October 1980 agreements were concluded with financial supporters (the West African Development Bank, the African Development Bank, the Kuwaiti Fund, the Arab Bank for African Economic Development and France) for the adoption of the rural water scheme, due to begin in December 1981 and provide some 2,600 village wells and boreholes at a cost of 11,359 million francs CFA. Financial negotiations for the other projects were still going on.

At the 1980 Conference of Heads of State an austerity budget was adopted, owing to the economic difficulties of most member states. It was announced that priority would be given to further lifting of trade barriers between members, leading to a full customs union by 1986.

CONSEIL DE L'ENTENTE

(Entente Council)

Headquarters: Mutual Aid and Guarantee Fund, B.P. 20824, Abidjan, Ivory Coast

A political and economic association of four states which were formerly part of French West Africa, and Togo, which joined in June 1966. The organization was founded in May 1959. In recent years it has given priority to economic co-ordination in member states.

MEMBERS

Benin Ivory Coast Niger Togo Upper Volta

ORGANIZATION

THE COUNCIL

The Council consists of the Heads of State and the ministers concerned with the items on the agenda of particular meetings.

The Council meets annually, the place rotating each year between the member states, and is chaired by the President of the host country. Secretariat services are provided by the Secretariat of the Mutual Aid and Guarantee Fund. Extraordinary meetings may be held at the request of two or more members.

MUTUAL AID AND LOAN GUARANTEE FUND

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Has the same membership as the Council above. Administrative and financial matters are delegated to a Management Committee which meets twice a year.

Chairman of the Management Committee: KPEGIGO KWASSI (Togo).

SECRETARIAT

A small group of professional advisers assists development institutions in the preparation of projects, in analysis and presentation of requests for aid.

Administrative Secretary: PAUL KAYA.

FINANCE

Consists of annual contributions from member states, subsidies and grants, and investment returns and commissions from its guarantee operations. In 1977 the capital of the Fund amounted to 7,250 million francs CFA. The 1981 budget amounted to 1,131,343,750 francs CFA.

ACTIVITIES

The Entente Council, through the Mutual Aid and Loan Guarantee Fund, aims to promote economic development in the region; to assist in preparing specific projects and to mobilize funds from other sources; to act as a guarantee fund to encourage investments in the region; and to encourage trade and investment between the member states.

Since 1974 it has been empowered to finance the reduction of interest rates and the extension of maturity periods of foreign loans to member countries.

In 1978 the Council was implementing a rural development programme comprising 19 projects in stockbreeding, food production and water supply. The cost, 8,000 million francs CFA, was being met by the member countries, the U.S.A., France, and the Netherlands. At the meeting of the Council in Lomé in January 1978, a new five-year programme was implemented to supply water to villages.

A regional telecommunications network is being planned in co-operation with the West African Development Bank, CEAO and ECOWAS.

In 1980 a loan of 387 million francs CFA and a grant of 175 million were made to Togo for rural development projects, while a loan guarantee was agreed to for 2,300 million francs CFA, lent by the European Investment Bank for the re-opening of a gold mine in Upper Volta. A further loan guarantee of 2,024 million francs CFA was made to the Togo Cement Company.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

The Constitution of the Council provides for the establishment of the following bodies:

SUPREME COUNCIL

The Supreme Council comprises the heads of member states, meeting twice a year in ordinary session, and in emergency session if demanded by two or more members. The Presidency of the Council is undertaken by each state in turn, in alphabetical order. The Supreme Council draws up the overall policy of the organization and the basic lines it will follow; it discusses recommendations and laws presented to it by the Ministerial Council and the Secretariat General in preparation for endorsement. A body for resolving disputes is also to be attached to and formed by the Supreme Council.

MINISTERIAL COUNCIL

The Ministerial Council consists of the Foreign Ministers of member states, meeting every two months, and in emergency session if demanded by two or more members. It prepares for the meetings of the Supreme Council, and draws up policies, recommendations, studies and projects aimed at developing co-operation and co-ordination among member states in various spheres.

SECRETARIAT GENERAL

The Secretariat is to be established in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, to implement recommendations by the Supreme and Ministerial Councils, prepare reports and studies, budgets and accounts.

Secretary-General: ABDULLAH YACOB BISHARA (Kuwait).

ACTIVITIES

The Council was set up following a series of meetings of Foreign Ministers of the states concerned, culminating in an agreement on the basic details of its constitution on March 10th, 1981. Although all the countries concerned belong to the Arab League, and were criticized by Iraq for setting up a separate organization, the formation of the Council was apparently prompted by a feeling that the Arab League was proving ineffective. A desire to emulate the European Community was frequently expressed by spokesmen for the Council from its outset. The constitution describes the organization as providing "the means for realizing co-ordination, integration and closer relations": rules are to be drawn up covering economic affairs, finance, education, culture, social affairs, health, communications, information, nationality laws, travel, transport, trade, customs, haulage and legislative affairs. No mention was made of defence and security matters.

In May 1981 it was announced that a $6,000 million joint fund was to be set up for investment in joint-venture projects in the Gulf region.

COUNCIL FOR MUTUAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE —CMEA (COMECON)

Prospekt Kalinina 54, Moscow 121205, U.S.S.R.

The Council was founded in 1949 to assist the economic development of its member states through joint utilization and co-ordination of efforts. The Mongolian People's Republic was admitted in 1962, the Republic of Cuba in 1972 and the Socialist Republic of Viet-Nam in 1978.

Albania ceased to participate in the activities of the Council at the end of 1961.

OBSERVERS

In accordance with Article XI of the Charter, the Council may invite participation of non-member countries in the work of its organs, or in spheres agreed by arrangement with the relevant countries. Delegations from Afghanistan, Angola, Ethiopia, Laos, Mozambique and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen were invited to send observers to the session of the Council held in Sofia in July 1981.

In 1964 an agreement was concluded whereby Yugoslavia can participate in certain defined spheres of the Council's activity, where a mutual interest with member countries prevails. The agreement also envisaged Yugoslavia attending meetings of the Council's standing commissions and other organs where matters of mutual interest are discussed.

CO-OPERATING COUNTRIES

The CMEA has co-operation agreements with Finland (signed May 1973), Iraq (July 1975) and Mexico (August 1975).

AIMS

To unite and co-ordinate the efforts of the member countries in order to improve the development of socialist economic integration; to promote planned economic development; to achieve more rapid economic and technical progress in these countries, and particularly a higher level of industrialization in countries where this is lacking; to achieve a steady growth of labour productivity; to work gradually towards a balanced level of development in the different regions; and a steady increase in standards of living in the member states.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

COUNCIL

Supreme organ of CMEA. Meets at least once yearly, in the capital of each member state in turn, all members being represented. Discusses fundamental matters of economic, scientific and technical co-operation and determines the main directions of the activities of the Council; examines the report of the Executive Committee; fulfils other functions necessary for the achievement of the aims of the Council.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Created at the 16th (Extraordinary) Session of the Council held in Moscow in June 1962 to take the place of the Conference of Members' Representatives and to form the chief executive organ of CMEA. Composed of the representatives of the member states at the level of Deputy Prime Minister. Meets at least once every three months to examine proposals from member states, the Permanent Commissions and the Secretariat. Guides all co-ordinating work linked with the resolution of problems before the Council, in agreement with the decisions of the Session of the Council. The Chair is taken in turn by representatives of each country.

- 1981 Sofia Review of the first ten years of the Complex Programme, noting that CMEA industrial production had increased by 84 per cent during the period, and trade among members by over 300 per cent. A plan for 1981-85 was adopted, with emphasis on energy-saving technology and electronics.

CMEA TRADE

Foreign trade is one of the most important forms of economic co-operation between member states of CMEA. Trade between member states was planned by yearly agreements until 1951 and thereafter by long-term bilateral and multilateral trade agreements linked to the development plans of the member countries. In 1956 the standing Commission for Foreign Trade was set up. Trade between member countries comprises about 60 per cent of their foreign trade which is wholly conducted through state monopolies. Long-term trade agreements were concluded with Yugoslavia. The amount of trade between member countries and Yugoslavia increased by almost 700 per cent during the period 1964-80.

ORGANIZATION

(September 1981)

COUNCIL

The Council consists of representatives of member states, usually ministers of economy, finance and trade. It meets twice a year; meetings are chaired by the representative of each country for one year.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Entrusted with the implementation and follow-up of the Council's decisions and with proposing work plans, including efforts to encourage participation by member states in the Arab Economic Unity Agreement. The Secretariat also conducts and follows up studies on Arab economic problems and on the effects of major world economic trends.

Secretary-General: Dr. FAKHRI KADDORI.

Assistant Secretaries-General: MOHAMMAD AL-SHARIF, NASOUH BARGHOUTI.

ACTIVITIES

A five-year work plan for the General Secretariat in 1981-85 was approved in November 1980. It includes the co-ordination of the development plans of individual Arab countries; formulation of measures leading to a customs union subject to a unified administration; market and commodity studies; unification of statistical terminology and methods of data collection; studies for the formation of new joint Arab companies and federations; formulation of specific programmes for agricultural and industrial co-ordination and for improving road and railway networks.

ARAB COMMON MARKET

Members: Iraq, Jordan, Libya, Mauritania and Syria.

Based on a resolution passed by the Council in August 1964; its implementation is supervised by the Council and does not constitute a separate organization. Customs duties and other taxes on trade between the four member countries were eliminated in annual stages, the process being completed in 1971. The second stage is to be the adoption of a full customs union, and ultimately all restrictions on trade between the member countries, including quotas, and residence, employment and transport restrictions, are to be abolished. In June 1979 the Council decided to standardize customs tariffs for raw materials.

Between 1978 and 1981, the following measures were undertaken by the Council for the development of the Arab Common Market:

Introduction of flexible membership conditions for the least developed Arab states (Mauritania, Somalia, Sudan, People's Democratic Republic of Yemen, Yemen Arab Republic).

Approval in principle of a fund to compensate the least developed countries for financial losses incurred as a result of joining the Arab Common Market.

Approval of legal, technical and administrative preparations for unification of tariffs levied on products imported from non-member countries.

Formation of a committee of ministerial deputies to deal with problems in the application of market rulings and to promote the organization's activities.

MULTILATERAL AGREEMENTS

The Council has initiated the following multilateral agreements aimed at achieving economic unity:

Agreement on Basic Levels of Social Insurance.

Agreement on Reciprocity in Social Insurance Systems.

Agreement on Labour Mobility.

Agreement on Organization of Transit Trade.

Agreement on Avoidance of Double Taxation and Elimination of Tax Evasion.

Agreement on Co-operation in Collection of Taxes.

Agreement on Capital Investment and Mobility.

Agreement on Settlement of Investment Disputes between Host Arab Countries and Citizens of Other Countries.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

JOINT VENTURES

A number of multilateral organizations in industry and agriculture have been formed on the principle that faster development and economies of scale may be achieved by combining the efforts of member states. In industries that are new to the member countries, Arab Joint Companies are formed; existing industries are to be co-ordinated by the setting up of Arab Specialized Unions. The unions are for closer co-operation on problems of production and marketing, and to help companies deal as a group in international markets. The companies are intended to be self-supporting on a purely commercial basis; they may issue shares to citizens of the participating countries. The joint ventures are:

Arab Joint Companies (cap.=capital; figures in Kuwaiti dinars unless otherwise stated):

Arab Company for Drug Industries and Medical Appliances: P.O. Box 925161, Amman, Jordan; cap. 60 million.

Arab Company for Industrial Investment: P.O. Box 2154, Baghdad, Iraq; cap. 150 million.

Arab Company for Livestock Development: P.O. Box 5305, Damascus, Syria; cap. 60 million.

Arab Mining Company: P.O. Box 20198, Amman, Jordan; cap. 120 million.

Council of Arab Economic Unity

Specialized Arab Unions and Federations:

Arab Federation for Cement and Building Materials: P.O. Box 9015, Damascus, Syria.

Arab Federation of Chemical Fertilizers Producers: P.O. Box 23696, Kuwait.

Arab Federation of Engineering Industries: P.O. Box 509, Baghdad, Iraq.

*The Turkish delegation was banned from the Assembly in May 1981, following the suspension of the Turkish National Assembly in September 1980.

The Assembly meets in ordinary session once a year for not more than a month. The session is usually divided into three parts held in January–February, April–May and September–October. The Assembly may submit recommendations to the Committee of Ministers, pass resolutions, discuss reports and any matters of common European interest.

Standing Committee: Represents the Assembly when it is not in session. Consists of the President, Vice-Presidents, Chairmen of the Ordinary Committees and a number of ordinary members. Meets at least three times a year.

Ordinary Committees: political, economic and development, social and health, legal, education and culture, science and technology, regional planning and local authorities, rules of procedure, agriculture, European non-member countries, parliamentary and public relations, population and refugees, budget and intergovernmental work programme.

ACTIVITIES

In an effort to harmonize national laws, to put the citizens of member countries on an equal footing and to pool certain resources and facilities, the Council has concluded a number of Conventions and Agreements covering particular aspects of European co-operation. By 1981 a total of 85 treaties had been concluded, of which 15 had not yet come into force.

HUMAN RIGHTS

The European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms was signed in 1950. By 1980 about 9,000 human rights applications had been lodged.

Secretary: HANS-CHRISTIAN KRÜGER (Federal Republic of Germany).

The commission is competent to examine complaints made either by a contracting party, or in certain cases, by an individual, non-governmental organization or group of individuals, that the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms has been violated by one or more of the contracting parties. If the commission decides to admit the application, it then ascertains the full facts of the case and places itself at the disposal of the parties in order to try and reach a friendly settlement. If no settlement is reached, the commission sends a report to the Committee of Ministers in which it states an opinion as to whether there has been a violation of the Convention. It is then for the Committee of Ministers or, if the case is referred to it, the Court of decide whether or not a violation has taken place.

EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS

Judges:

GÉRARD J. WIARDA, President (Netherlands)
 ROLF RYSSDAL, Vice-President (Norway)

 RONALD McDONALD (Liechtenstein)
 MAX SORENSEN (Denmark)
 CARLO RUSSO (Italy)
 RUDOLF BERNHARDT (Federal Republic of Germany)

Registrar: MARC-ANDRÉ EISSEN (France).

The Court may deal with a case only after the Commission has acknowledged the failure of efforts for a friendly settlement within the prescribed period. The following may bring a case before the Court, provided that the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned have accepted its compulsory jurisdiction or, failing that, with the consent of the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned: the Commission, a High Contracting Party whose national is alleged to be a victim, a High Contracting Party which referred the case to the Commission, and a High Contracting Party against which the complaint has been lodged. In the event of dispute as to whether the Court has jurisdiction, the matter is settled by the decision of the Court. The judgment of the Court is final. The Court may, in certain circumstances, give advisory opinions at the request of the Committee of Ministers.

SOCIAL WELFARE

European Social Charter: in force since 1965, now applying in Austria, Cyprus, Denmark, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom; lays down the rights and principles which are the basis of the Council's social policy, and guarantees a number of social and economic rights to the citizen, including the right to work, the right to form workers' organizations, the right to social security and social assistance, the right of the family to protection and the right of migrant workers to protection and assistance.

European Code of Social Security: covers medical care and the following benefits: sickness, old-age, unemployment, employment injury, family, maternity, invalidity and survivor's benefit.

European Convention on Social Security: in force since 1977 for Austria, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Turkey; most of the provisions apply automatically; others are subject to the conclusion of additional multilateral or bilateral agreements. The Convention is concerned with establishing equality of treatment for nationals of member states and with ensuring the granting and maintenance of social security rights by such means as the adding together of insurance periods completed in more than one state; two interim agreements are also in force, which will progressively be superseded by the Convention.

Recommendations to Governments: A number of resolutions passed by the Committee of Ministers give guidance for intergovernmental action on particular aspects of social policy, welfare or labour law.

Partial agreement: Eight states are co-operating in drawing up common standards on the protection of safety and health at work.

Fellowships: The Council of Europe operates a fellowships scheme for the benefit of personnel in the social services drawn from the member countries, and an annual research fellowships programme, in which a group of specialists investigates a subject chosen by the Social Committee.

HEALTH

Professional Co-operation: the Council aims to increase co-operation in the field of general hygiene, blood transfusion, education and training of medical staff and the exchange of techniques between member states. A programme of medical fellowships enables members of the medical profession and personnel of public health departments to study new techniques and modern methods of treatment, and to participate in co-ordinated research programmes.

European Agreements provide for special facilities for a network of blood transfusion centres, and for common standards for the training of nurses.

Study projects: include blood transfusion methods and standards, histocompatibility, treatment of alcoholism among young people, participation of the patient in his own treatment, attitude of health profession members dealing with dying patients, drug dependence, comparison of costs of health care inside and outside hospitals and means to decrease hospital expenses, self-medication, role of school health services within the general health services, prevention of infection in hospitals, identification and motivation of population groups disregarding preventive aspects of health surveillance, and further training for nurses.

Partial Agreement: Eleven states co-operate in drawing up common standards on the proper use of pharmaceuticals, the health control of foodstuffs, the correct use of pesticides and on cosmetic products.

Study projects carried out by the said states include: congenital anomalies, epidemiological patterns and human clinical pharmacology.

European Agreement on the restriction of the use of certain detergents in washing and cleaning products: Entered into force in September 1968. There are nine parties to the Agreement.

Convention on the Elaboration of a European Pharmacopoeia: Entered into force in May 1974. Fifteen states are parties to the Convention and two observer states participate in the meetings; Vol. I published 1969, Vol. II 1971, Supplement to Vol. II 1973, Vol. III 1975, Supplement to Vol. III 1977. Publication of a second edition began in 1980.

Rehabilitation of the Disabled: Eleven states co-operate in elaborating a common conception of rehabilitation as a process of social integration by drawing up common standards with regard to medical and functional treatment, educational training, occupational and vocational work.

POPULATION

Committee for Population Studies: f. 1973 to observe population trends and their implications; studies fertility trends, age structures, migration, mortality and demography of the family.

MIGRANT WORKERS AND REFUGEES

In May 1977 the Committee of Ministers adopted the European Convention on the Legal Status of Migrant Workers. The Committee also made a number of recommendations to governments on the reunion of migrant workers' families; clandestine immigration; social and economic repercussions on migrant workers of economic recessions and crises; migrant women; integration of migrant workers returning to their countries of origin.

Language classes for migrant workers and special experimental classes for their children are sponsored. Vocational training grants are awarded to student-instructors and instructor-trainees.

Council of Europe Resettlement Fund: created in 1956 as a partial agreement to make loans for the resettlement of refugees and to help to solve problems of over-population. In 1980 nineteen countries were members of the Fund and the loans granted amounted to U.S. $219.3 million. Total loans granted since inception of the Fund amounted to over $1,105 million.

LEGAL

European Committee on Legal Co-operation: supervises the work programme for international, administrative, civil and commercial law. Most of the specialized committees of legal experts work under its direction. Its work has resulted in numerous conventions on matters which include: foreign liabilities; information on foreign law; consular functions; bearer securities; state immunity; motorists' liability; legal status of children of unmarried parents; product liability; mutual aid in administrative matters; custody of children.

Conferences of Ministers of Justice of Member States: although not formally under the Council of Europe, these meetings make proposals for the Council's work programme. The conference in Luxembourg in 1980 discussed the abolition of the death penalty, the problems of imprisoned foreigners and the simplification of legal procedures, with the reduction and harmonization of fees, the functioning of the judicial system, and the deprivation of rights as an alternative to the deprivation of liberty.

CRIME

European Committee on Crime Problems: has prepared conventions on such matters as extradition, mutual assistance in procedural matters, the international validity of criminal judgements and the transfer of proceedings, and the suppression of terrorism. A number of resolutions on various questions relating to penal law, penology and criminology have been adopted by the Committee of Ministers.

Criminological Scientific Council: composed of specialists in law, psychology, sociology and related sciences. Advises the European Committee on Crime Problems and the conferences of directors of criminological research institutes.

Penological items are examined by the Directors of Prison Administrations whose resolutions and conclusions serve as guidelines to the member States for the penal policy to be adopted.

EDUCATION AND CULTURE

Council for Cultural Co-operation (CCC): implements the educational and cultural programme which is based on the concepts of permanent education and cultural development. It administers the Cultural Fund which was established to promote and finance educational and cultural activities in accordance with the statute of the Council of Europe. Mems.: member states and other signatories of the Cultural Convention, the latter including Finland and the Vatican City. The Consultative Assembly also holds membership.

Activities include reform and development of higher education (devising post-graduate training courses; schemes for greater mobility of staff and students); pre-school and school education, including preparation for life after school; adult education; modern language learning; education of migrants; research and documentation through the development of a European system for computer exchange (EUDISED); local cultural development policies.

The Council also organizes:

Council of Europe Higher Education scholarships
Teacher training courses and bursaries
European Art Exhibitions

Standing Conference of European Ministers of Education: secretariat services are provided by the Council of Europe. Sessions are held every two years.

Conference of European Ministers responsible for Cultural Affairs: sessions are held usually every three years.

YOUTH

European Youth Centre: equipped with audio-visual workshops, reading and conference rooms; provides about 40 residential courses a year for youth leaders, on European affairs, problems of modern society, the role of youth, and techniques of leading and organizing youth movements. About 1,500 people can be accommodated annually.

European Youth Foundation: aims to provide financial assistance to European activities of non-governmental youth organizations and began operations in 1973. Since that time more than 100 organizations have received financial aid for carrying out international activities held in all member countries of the Council of Europe. The total number of young people taking part in meetings supported by the Foundation amounts to about 30,000, coming from more than 30 countries. More than 30 million French francs have been distributed.

SPORT

Committee for the Development of Sport: f. November 1977; has the same membership as the CCC and administers the Sports Fund. Its activities concentrate on the implementation of the European Sport for All Charter (1975); the role of sport in society (e.g. medical, political, educational aspects); the practice of sport (activities, special projects, etc.); the diffusion of sports information and co-ordination of sports research. The Committee is also responsible for preparing the triennial Conference of

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Council of Europe

European Ministers responsible for Sport (3rd Meeting: Spain 1981). The Conference also meets informally at Ministerial level twice a year.

ENVIRONMENT

European Committee for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources: f. 1962; prepares policy recommendations and promotes co-operation in all environmental questions; introduced a European Water Charter in 1968; and a Soil Charter in 1974; convened the European Conservation Conference in 1970.

European Convention for the protection of International Watercourses against Pollution: drawn up by a special committee.

European Ministerial Conference on the Environment: first held in Vienna, 1973; the second Conference, held in Brussels, March 1976, discussed reconciling economic development with the protection of the natural environment, the protection of wildlife and voluntary participation in nature conservation. A third Conference, held in Switzerland in September 1979, discussed the compatibility of agriculture and forestry with the conservation of the environment. Eighteen member countries, Finland and the European Community signed a Convention on the Conservation of European Wildlife and Natural Habitats.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND REGIONAL PLANNING

Conference of Local and Regional Authorities in Europe: created in 1956 as a representative assembly of regions and municipalities of the member States of the Council of Europe; since April 1976 annual sessions chiefly concerned with local government matters, regional planning, regional policy of the European Communities, protection of the environment, town planning and social and cultural affairs.

Steering Committee on Regional and Municipal Matters: f. 1970 as a forum for senior officials from ministries of local government, for the exchange of experience between national governments, and for a common approach to the development of the national structures and legislature. The committee has stressed the value of strengthening local government, and adapting it to changing requirements, as well as to the increasing contacts between all European countries. Publs. Information Bulletin, Local and Regional Study Series on local and regional authorities.

European Conference of Ministers of Regional Planning: conferences were held in 1970, 1973, 1976, 1978 and 1980.

Conference of European Ministers responsible for Local Government: Secretariat services are provided by the Council of Europe. The first conference was held in 1975 in Paris, chiefly on the reorganization of local government. The second was held in Athens in 1976, to deal mainly with trans-frontier co-operation between local authorities. The third conference was held in Stockholm in 1978, discussing citizen participation, and the fourth in Madrid in 1980, discussing immigrant participation in local public life.

MONUMENTS AND SITES

Steering Committee on Regional Planning and Architectural Heritage: helps to keep contacts between authorities in charge of historic buildings and town and country planning; it also aims to encourage public interest in architecture, working with the various authorities, the press and television, youth organizations and the like; and it carries out projects for local authorities or governments.

European Architectural Heritage Year 1975: this was part of a campaign started by the committee in 1973.

Urban Policies: the European Campaign for Urban Renaissance (1980/81) was the first step in a programme of urban policies for the period 1981/85.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Agreements providing for co-operation and exchange of documents and observers have been concluded with the United Nations and its Agencies, and with most of the European inter-governmental organizations. Particularly close relations exist with the European Communities, OECD, EFTA and Western European Union.

Israel is represented in the Consultative Assembly by observers, and certain European non-member countries have been invited to participate in or send observers to certain meetings of technical committees and specialized conferences.

Relations with non-member states, other organizations and non-governmental organizations are co-ordinated within the Secretariat by the Directorate of Political Affairs inside which an external relations division was established in 1972.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

AUTHORITY OF HEADS OF STATE AND GOVERNMENT

Meets once a year. The Chairman is drawn from the member states in turn. Sixth meeting, Freetown, Sierra Leone, May, 1981.

Chairman (1981/82): Dr. SIAKA STEVENS (Sierra Leone).

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Consists of two representatives from each country; chairman is drawn from each country in turn. The first session was held in Accra, Ghana, in July 1976. The second session was held in Lomé, Togo, and recommended the Protocols to the Authority. The third session was held in Lagos in July 1977 and approved the manpower requirements of the Secretariat, the staff regulations, the conditions of service and an interim budget for the Secretariat. The Council also appointed two Deputy Executive Secretaries and a Financial Controller. The Fourth Session, held in Dakar in November 1978, adopted a priority work programme, emphasizing activities to promote the development of intra-community trade. Subsequent sessions made decisions and recommendations relating to intra-community trade liberalization and promotion, compensation procedures for loss of revenue, regional industrial policies and agricultural development.

TRIBUNAL

To interpret the treaty and settle disputes that are referred to it.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARIAT

The Headquarters of the Executive Secretariat is in Lagos. Operations began in March 1977 with a task force, later replaced by a permanent staff, numbering 90 in 1981. The Executive Secretary is elected for a four-year term, which may be renewed once only.

Executive Secretary: Dr. ABOUBACAR DIABY-OUATTARA (Ivory Coast).

Deputy Executive Secretaries: Dr. JAMES NTI (Ghana), Dr. DAKOUM TOUMANY SAKHO (Guinea).

Financial Controller: ISAAC OLADEINDE ADEYALE (Nigeria).

SPECIALIZED COMMISSIONS

There are four commissions:

- (a) Trade, Customs, Immigration, Monetary and Payments;
- (b) Industry, Agriculture and Natural Resources;
- (c) Transport, Telecommunications and Energy;
- (d) Social and Cultural Affairs.

FUND FOR CO-OPERATION, COMPENSATION AND DEVELOPMENT

Lomé, Togo

The Fund is administered by a Board of Directors. The chief executive of the Fund is the Managing Director, who holds office for a renewable term of four years. The Fund has a staff of 50.

The authorized capital of the Fund is U.S. $500 million. In May 1981 the paid-up capital was U.S. $37 million.

Managing Director: ROBERT C. TUBMAN (Liberia).

Deputy Managing Director: SOURADJOU IBRAHIM (Benin).

AIMS

To promote co-operation and development in economic, social and cultural activity, particularly in the fields for which specialized commissions are appointed, to raise the standard of living of the people of the member countries, increase and maintain economic stability, improve relations among member countries and contribute to the progress and development of Africa.

The treaty provides for compensation for states whose import duties are reduced through trade liberalization and contains a clause permitting safeguard measures in favour of any country affected by economic disturbances through the application of the treaty.

ACTIVITIES

Customs Union: Elimination of tariffs and other obstructions to trade amongst member states, and the establishment of a common external tariff, are planned over a transitional period of 15 years. At the third Conference of Heads of State and Government, in Lagos in April 1978, it was decided that from May 28th, 1979, no member state might increase its customs tariff on goods from another member. This was regarded as the first step towards the abolition of customs duties within the Community. During the first two years import duties on intra-community trade were to be maintained, and then eliminated in phases over the next eight years. Quotas and other restrictions of equivalent effect were to be abolished in the first 10 years. In the remaining five years all differences between external customs tariffs were to be abolished.

The 1980 Conference of Heads of State decided to establish a free trade area for unprocessed agricultural products and handicrafts from May 1981, and established an eight-year timetable for liberalizing trade in industrial products. A compensation procedure for loss of revenue resulting from trade liberalization was also adopted.

Common Policies: The treaty also contains a commitment to abolish all obstacles to the free movement of people, services and capital; and to harmonization of agricultural policies; promotion of common projects in marketing, research and the agriculturally based industries; joint development of economic and industrial policies and elimination of disparities in levels of development; common monetary policies.

At the 1979 Conference of Heads of State a Protocol was signed relating to free circulation of the regions' citizens and to rights of residence and establishment. The first provision (the right of entry without a visa) came into force in July 1980, following ratification by eight members. The agreement is also intended to encourage the growth of regional trade and therefore of regional economic development. The Conference also adopted a programme for the improvement and extension of the telecommunications network, estimated to cost $35 million.

A programme for the development of regional transport was adopted by the 1980 Conference.

ECOWAS undertook a critical appraisal of economic conditions in member states in 1979, and 1980 to provide information for development planning. The Nigerian Institute of Social and Economic Research co-ordinated the survey, and other institutions and universities were called upon to take part. In September 1978 a meeting of Customs and Statistics Experts was convened in Lagos to consider the problem of different standards and measures in the region; this led to the adoption of a common customs and statistical nomenclature and a code of standards and definitions.

At the third Conference of Heads of State and Government a protocol of non-aggression was signed. Thirteen members signed a protocol on mutual defence assistance at the 1981 Conference. A mutual defence force and defence council were planned.

The 1981 Conference also agreed on a work programme for energy development, involving a regional analysis of energy use and plans for increasing efficiency and finding alternative sources.

ECOWAS sponsored the fourth West Africa Investment Forum at Dakar in December 1980, when investors for about 114 projects were sought.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

No final decision has been made on a headquarters for the Communities. Meetings of the principal organs take place in Brussels, Luxembourg and Strasbourg.

The European Coal and Steel Community was created by a treaty signed in Paris on April 18th, 1951 (effective from July 25th, 1952), to pool the coal and steel production of the six original members (see below). It was seen as a first step towards a united Europe. The European Economic Community and European Atomic Energy Community were established by separate treaties signed in Rome on March 25th, 1957 (effective from January 1st, 1958), the former to create a Common Market and to approximate economic policies, the latter to promote growth in nuclear industries. The common institutions of the three Communities were established by a treaty signed in Brussels on April 8th, 1965 (effective from July 1st, 1967). Political union is regarded as the ultimate aim of the Communities. Increasingly the three institutions are being regarded as a single entity, the European Community.

formance of their duties, the members of the Commission are forbidden to seek or accept instructions from any Government or other body, or to engage in any other paid or unpaid professional activity.

The members of the Commission are appointed by the Governments of the member states acting in common agreement for a renewable term of four years; the President and Vice-Presidents are appointed for renewable terms of two years. Any member of the Commission, if he no longer fulfils the conditions required for the performance of his duties, or if he commits a serious offence, may be declared removed from office by the Court of Justice. The Court may furthermore, on the petition of the Council of Ministers or of the Commission itself, provisionally suspend any member of the Commission from his duties.

The European Council

The Heads of State or Government of the member countries meet three times a year, in the capital of the member state which currently exercises the presidency of the Council of Ministers, or in Brussels.

Previously, summit meetings were held at rather less frequent intervals and were often required to take decisions which came to be regarded as the major guidelines for the development of the Community.

Council of Ministers of the European Communities

170 rue de la Loi, 1049 Brussels, Belgium

The Council of Ministers has the double responsibility of ensuring the co-ordination of the general economic policies of the member states and of taking the decisions necessary for carrying out the Treaties.

The Council is composed of representatives of the member states, each Government delegating to it one of its members. The office of President is exercised for a term of six months by each member of the Council in rotation according to the alphabetical order of the member states. Meetings of the Council are called by the President acting on his or her own initiative or at the request of a member or of the Commission.

The Treaty of Rome prescribed three types of voting: simple majority, qualified majority and unanimity. Where conclusions require a qualified majority, the votes of its members are weighted as follows: France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, and the United Kingdom 10, Belgium, Greece and the Netherlands 5, Denmark and Ireland 3, Luxembourg 2 (Total 63). Majorities are required for the adoption of any conclusions as follows: 45 votes in cases where the Treaty requires a previous proposal of the Commission, or 45 votes including a favourable vote by at least six members in all other cases. Abstentions by members either present or represented do not prevent the adoption by the Council of conclusions requiring unanimity. It was declared at a meeting of the Council of Ministers in January 1966 that when decisions affecting very important national interests are at stake, discussions should be continued for a reasonable length of time, so that mutually acceptable solutions can be found. The effect of this "Luxembourg compromise" has been that the Council of Ministers has seldom taken decisions by majority voting except on budgetary and agricultural management affairs. However, pressure to agree is exerted not only by the Commission but also by the presidency, which has gained in importance since the period of the "Luxembourg compromise".

In answer to the evident need for more frequent consultation at the highest level it was decided at the summit meeting in Paris in December 1974 to hold the meetings on a regular basis. The Council discusses matters relating to the Community and matters handled by the "Political Co-operation" system (under which the Foreign Ministers of the member states meet at least four times a year to co-ordinate foreign policy).

When the Council acts on a proposal of the Commission, it must, where the amendment of such a proposal is involved, act only by means of a unanimous vote; as long as the Council has not so acted, the Commission may amend its original proposal, particularly in cases where the European Parliament has been consulted. The Council may request the Commission to undertake any studies which the Council considers desirable for the achievement of the common objectives, and to submit to it any appropriate proposals.

The Councils of foreign affairs, economics and finance and agriculture normally meet once a month. About 60 Council sessions are held each year.

PERMANENT REPRESENTATIVES

Preparation and co-ordination of the Council's work is entrusted to a Committee of Permanent Representatives, meeting in Brussels, consisting of the ambassadors of the member countries to the Communities, and aided by committees of national civil servants.

OFFICERS AND MEMBERS

(October 1981)

President: SIMONE VEIL (France).

Members: 434 members elected by direct universal suffrage by the citizens of the ten member states, apportioned as follows: France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom 81 members each; the Netherlands 25; Belgium 24; Greece 24; Denmark 16; Ireland 15; Luxembourg 6. (The Greek members were nominated by their national parliament when Greece acceded to the Community on January 1st, 1981, pending elections in October.) Members sit in the Chamber in political, not national groups.

The tasks of the European Parliament are: advising on legislation, scrutinizing the Community budget and exercising a measure of democratic control over the executive organs of the European Communities, the Commission and the Council. It has powers by a vote of censure, of a two-thirds majority, to dismiss the Commission.

Parliament has an annual session, divided into about 12 one-week part-sessions, held in Strasbourg or Luxembourg. The session opens with the March part-session.

The budgetary powers of Parliament (which, with the Council, forms the Budgetary Authority of the Communities) were increased to their present status by a treaty of July 22nd, 1975. Under this treaty, it can reject the draft budget, acting by a majority of its members and two-thirds of the votes cast.

The Parliament is run by a Bureau comprising the Special Funds*(see also Statistics below)EUROPEAN SOCIAL FUND

The Fund was established under the EEC Treaty to improve opportunities for employment within the Community by covering 50 per cent of expenses incurred by a member state in retraining or resettling workers or in granting benefits to workers whose employment was temporarily reduced.

The Fund has been based on a new scheme since May 1972. Assistance is given in more general circumstances, not limited to cases of need that arise specifically from the functioning of the Common Market. The Fund can also finance studies dealing with new training methods. There are eight "priority sectors": problem regions, young people, the handicapped, migrant workers, women, adapting companies for technical progress, textiles and agriculture. Commitments by the Fund amounted to EUA 1,014.9 million in 1980.

EUROPEAN AGRICULTURAL FUND

Created in 1962, the European Agricultural Guidance and Guarantee Fund (or FEOGA as it is known after its French initials) is administered by the Commission. The Guidance Section contributes credits towards the structural reform of agriculture. The Guarantee Section, under which the bulk of the Community's budget has always been spent, intervenes to regularize the internal market, and provides export refunds which compensate for the difference between Community and world market prices. Total commitments for 1980 were EUA 11,321 million.

EUROPEAN MONETARY CO-OPERATION FUND

The Fund was created in 1973 to administer the Community's special narrow margin currency system (the "snake"), which was replaced by the European Monetary System (EMS) in March 1979. The Fund still has the function of keeping account of the short-term borrowings made by national Central Banks to support currencies. It is also intended, under the EMS, to administer the pooling of the Community's gold and dollar reserves, and eventually to become a European Monetary Fund.

EUROPEAN DEVELOPMENT FUND

This Fund administers the Community's overseas financial aid, under the terms of the two Lomé Conventions. Under the 1979 Convention, EDF funds are allotted under five headings: grants, special loans, risk capital formation aid, the Stabex scheme (guaranteeing minimum export earnings) and a special scheme for protecting mineral producers (Sysmin).

EUROPEAN REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT FUND

Payments began in autumn 1975. The Fund is intended to compensate for the unequal rate of development in different regions of the Community, by encouraging investment and improving infrastructure in "problem regions". Initially, funds were spent entirely according to a system of national quotas, but in 1979 an additional non-quota section was adopted, allowing the financing of specific Community measures to aid, for example, frontier areas or different areas affected by the same problem.

NEW COMMUNITY INSTRUMENT FOR BORROWING AND LENDING

In October 1978 a borrowing and lending instrument was set up to raise funds for financing structural investment projects to reflect the Community's priorities, particularly for energy, industrial conversion and infrastructure. The Commission is authorized to borrow up to 1,000 million ECUs; these funds are deposited with the European Investment Bank, which makes loans on the Community's behalf.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIESEuropean Economic Community

Free Movement of Goods. In accordance with the EEC treaty the Community established between 1958 and 1968 a customs union covering the exchange of all goods, the prohibition of customs duties on exports and imports between member states, and the adoption of a common external tariff in relations with third countries. Quota restrictions on internal trade were abolished by 1962, while the removal of internal tariff barriers had been achieved by July 1st, 1968. Common markets for coal and steel and for nuclear materials had been achieved by 1955 and 1959 respectively. Although tariff barriers have been removed (or in the case of the new members are being removed), the free movement of goods is in practice restricted by a great many non-tariff barriers, such as national regulations on health and safety.

Free Movement of Persons. Free movement of workers between member countries became effective on July 1st, 1968. Workers may seek employment anywhere in the Community, though governments retain the right, in some cases, to restrict free movement of labour. These provisions do not apply to employees in the public service. Nationals of member states enjoy equal treatment in every important field relating to unemployment, including matters relating to taxation, social insurance and dependants. Medical treatment on the same basis as that received by nationals is also available.

Free Movement of Services. The Right of Establishment—the right to engage in business and supply services anywhere in the Community—is provided for in the EEC treaty. Progress has been slow in this field because of inherent difficulties such as the problem of mutual recognition of differing professional qualifications, though some progress has been achieved in banking, medicine, law and insurance. Many aspects of company law also need to be harmonized.

Free Movement of Capital. This is also provided for in the EEC treaty. In practice the provisions have only been implemented in a modest way. Free movement of capital is, however, entailed by the plan to achieve full economic and monetary union.

Approximation of Fiscal Policy. A single system of Value Added Tax was applied throughout the six original member countries from January 1st, 1973, and throughout the new member countries from April 1st, 1973. Rates of VAT, however, are not uniform.

Proposals for further harmonization resulted in no decision by the Council, and the Commission revised its proposals in a programme which it issued in July 1975, calling for:

- simplification of some procedures for VAT and excise duty;
- duty free allowances;
- harmonization of corporation tax systems.

The long term plan entails uniform rates of VAT, excise duty and direct taxes.

Competition. Both the EEC and ECSC treaties make provision for action against practices which restrict or distort competition in intra-Community trading (competition within individual countries is excluded). Since 1961 the Commission has ruled on a large number of inter-company restrictive agreements and has become increasingly active in the anti-trust field.

European Atomic Energy Community (EURATOM)

The treaty setting up EURATOM came into force on January 1st, 1958. Its role is to assist the growth of nuclear industries in the Community. This includes research, access to information and the building of power reactors. It is also responsible for establishing common laws and procedures for nuclear industries.

A common market in nuclear materials was introduced in 1959, eliminating internal duties and setting a common tariff for imports from third countries. Assistance is given to the free movement of specialized labour, and there is a common insurance scheme against nuclear risks.

There is also an Agency for the supply of nuclear fuels, with rights to purchase materials within the community and a monopoly of contracts with third countries. It is the exclusive owner of special fissile materials.

An agreement which had been signed in 1973 between the IAEA and EURATOM entered into force in 1977. The agreement is designed to improve co-operation between the two agencies on nuclear safeguards and controls. It was hoped that this would contribute towards an unimpeded steady delivery of fissionable materials.

In March 1977 the Council authorized the Commission to issue loans on behalf of EURATOM amounting to 500 million EUA to finance investment projects for the industrial production of electricity in nuclear power stations and for industrial fuel cycle installations.

European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC)

The ECSC treaty, signed on April 18th, 1951, came into force on July 25th, 1952. By the end of 1954 nearly all barriers to trade in coal, coke, steel, pig-iron and scrap iron had been removed. The Community fixes prices and imposes fines on firms infringing treaty rules. The ECSC provides financial aid to resettle and retrain workers whose jobs are put at risk by technical developments in the coal and steel industries. Funds for this are raised by levies on coal and steel production, the rates for which are decided annually. The ECSC may assist investment and redevelopment programmes by granting or guaranteeing loans (see Table, page 201).

Main Developments 1979-81

Agriculture. The main features of the common policy on agriculture, adopted by stages since 1962, are:

- (a) the establishing of a common market for almost all major agricultural commodities;
- (b) support buying, through the Agricultural Fund (see p. 192), to ensure that prices do not fall below agreed levels;
- (c) a system of protective levies on agricultural imports from third countries;
- (d) the rationalization of Community agriculture.

Agricultural prices are, in theory, fixed at a common level for the community as a whole, monetary compensation amounts (MCAs) being paid for agricultural exchanges between member states to take account of fluctuations between the reference rate of exchange (the "green" currencies) and the real rate. Thus a subsidy is paid to the supplier in a country whose currency has appreciated against a reference rate of exchange, and a tax is paid by the supplier where the currency has depreciated or not appreciated as much. In practice, however, the MCA system has led to wide variations in prices within the Community, and has proved a disadvantage to any country which is a net food exporter with a weak currency: for this reason France demanded the abolition of MCAs at the end of 1978, and refused to allow the European Monetary System to come into operation at the beginning of 1979 until the effect of the EMS on farm prices and subsidies had been clarified. In March an agreement was reached by eight states (opposed by the United Kingdom) on the gradual dismantling of MCAs.

An intervention price has been established for sugar, certain cereals, dairy produce, beef, veal and (from 1980 on) sheepmeat: when market prices fall below this level, the Community intervenes, and buys a certain quantity which is then stored until prices recover. Expanding production has led to food surpluses, costly to maintain, particularly in dairy produce and sugar. A freeze on farm prices was proposed by the Commission in January 1979, to discourage excess production. Although this was applied only in the case of dairy produce, common price increases for other products were lower than in previous years. In November the Commission proposed that producers themselves should pay for disposing of excess produce and a "co-responsibility levy" was introduced for milk to meet this cost.

Regional disparities in income have also given cause for concern. Special measures were adopted in 1978 to encourage agricultural development in Mediterranean areas and in the west of Ireland.

Agriculture is the largest item on the Community budget. The 1980 budget was rejected by the European Parliament until July 1980 because it considered that too much (about 72 per cent of the total) was being allotted to agriculture at the expense of other sectors.

Fisheries. The common fisheries policy gives all EEC fishermen equal access to the waters of the member states; in the case of the United Kingdom, Ireland and Denmark special arrangements delay full implementation until 1982.

From the beginning of 1977 the Community has reserved a zone extending up to 200 nautical miles (370 km.) from the shore around all its coastlines, within which all member countries have access to fishing and other economic uses of the sea. Exclusive national zones extend for 12 nautical miles (22.2 km.). However, it subsequently proved difficult to adapt the common fisheries policy accordingly. Disputes on rules for the conservation of resources meant that by 1981 there was still no common legislation, and individual members were still applying unilateral measures to protect stocks, although in January 1980 a consensus was reached on total allowable catches for the year, and on a system for recording and notification to the Commission of catches taken. In May the Council laid down five principles forming the basis of a new policy: rational and non-discriminatory measures for management of resources; fair allocation of catches (quotas); effective controls of the conditions governing fishing; adoption of structural measures with a Community cash contribution; and long-term fisheries agreements with third countries; by September 1981 agreement had been reached on some points, but not on the question of quotas. In 1980 fishing agreements were reached with six non-member countries, including Canada, Norway and Sweden.

Nuclear Research. In 1976 the EEC and EURATOM signed an agreement with the International Atomic Energy Agency for co-operation on energy research. The Communities were expected to begin their participation with two research projects, one on nuclear safety and one on the construction of a neutron source.

A four-year programme for the Community's Joint Research Centre (JRC) up to 1983 was approved by the Council in March 1980. The cost of the programme was estimated at EUA 511 million (£318 million), and priority was to be given to nuclear security (particularly the "Super Sara" project in Italy, simulating a reactor accident caused by lack of coolant), new energy sources and environmental protection.

The Joint European Torus (JET) is an experimental thermonuclear machine which will pioneer new processes of nuclear fusion. Sweden and Switzerland are members of the JET project. Since 1974 work has been proceeding at Culham in the United Kingdom; the member states agreed in 1977 to establish the project at Culham permanently. The building phase is expected to be completed by 1983.

Energy. The creation of an effective energy policy has consistently been urged by the Commission. In June 1979 the Council agreed that oil imports between 1980 and 1985 should be limited to the 1978 import level, and an imports monitoring scheme was agreed upon. In July a second four-year energy research programme was approved, with an allocation of EUA 105 million (£65 million), covering the following main areas of research: energy conservation; improved production of indigenous fossil fuels; development of nuclear fission; development of new energy sources such as wind, solar power and fusion; coal conversion as a substitute for crude petroleum; development of substitutes for electricity as an energy vector (mainly hydrogen).

In May 1980 the Energy Council adopted a series of objectives to be achieved by 1990. These included: reduction of the ratio of energy consumption to growth in G.D.P. to 0.7 or less; reduction of petroleum consumption to 40 per cent of energy consumption; the use of coal or nuclear energy to produce at least 70 per cent of electricity; development of solar winds and energy and other renewable resources; an energy pricing policy to encourage the attainment of these objectives.

Industry. Steel, textiles and shipbuilding have been given particular attention as areas with special difficulties. "Anti-crisis" measures for the steel industry, first adopted in 1977, were renewed in December 1979, mainly consisting of minimum price rules, guide prices and arrangements with 17 major steel-exporting countries. In October 1980 the Council agreed to proclaim a state of "manifest crisis" in the steel industry, enabling compulsory production quotas to be imposed so as to maintain price levels.

In view of the world decline in shipbuilding, a "scrap and build" policy was proposed by the Commission in 1979, involving financial support for ship-owners who place new orders while sending ships to be scrapped representing twice the tonnage of the ships to be built.

The Community is the world's largest importer of textiles. In order to support the industry within member states, the 1977-81 Multi-Fibre Arrangement (re-negotiated in 1981) (see GATT, p. 37) was made, under which bilateral treaties were arranged with supplier countries, limiting imports through quotas and ceilings. In 1979 a plan to re-structure the man-made fibres industry was adopted.

In the field of new technology, a four-year programme was adopted in 1979 for the development of electronics and data processing.

Harmonization of national company law to form a common legal structure is continuing: by 1979 four Directives (concerning disclosure of information, security for creditors and shareholders, safeguards with regard to mergers, and minimum standards for company accounts) had been adopted. The Community Patent Convention, providing for the issue of a Community patent valid for all members was signed in 1975. The first European Patent was granted in 1980. Proposals for a Community Trade Mark Office were made by the Commission in November 1980.

The Business Co-operation Centre, created by the Commission in 1973, has provided businesses with information and contacts. Its work has resulted in a number of contractual links for co-operation between companies in different member countries.

Information. In February 1980 Euronet DIANE (Direct Information Access Network for Europe) was inaugurated: by the end of the year about 25 "host" computers were to be connected to the network, serving about 150 data bases and data banks. In June 1980 a third three-year plan (1981-83) for development of scientific and technical information services was drawn up.

Transport. The Community's transport policy aims to create a European infrastructure network, gradually standardizing national regulations which hinder the free movement of traffic within the Community, such as the varying safety and licensing rules, diverse restrictions on the size of lorries, and frontier-crossing formalities. In July 1980 the Commission produced a report on transport "bottlenecks" and other problems, and recommended the setting-up of a new financing scheme to help implement infrastructure projects.

Education. The postgraduate European University Institute was founded in Florence in 1972, with departments of history and civilization, economics, law, and political and social sciences; it had about 110 students in 1979. In June 1980 the Council discussed the following recommendations by the Commission: intensification of modern language teaching; promotion of the study of the European Community in schools; development of a common policy on the admission of higher-education students from other member-states; equality of education and vocational training for girls.

In September 1980 an educational information network known as EURYDICE began operations, with a central unit in Brussels and national units providing data on the widely varying systems of education within member states.

Social Policy. Persistent unemployment (7.5 per cent of the working population in 1981) has given most concern in this field. In December 1979 the Council approved a resolution on the reorganization of working time, including various forms of work-sharing. Funds were allotted to areas most affected by unemployment (such as the iron and steel industry, in which the number of employees fell from 700,000 in 1978 to 600,000 in 1980), to aid redeployment of workers and early retirement schemes. Priority has also been given to the problems of migrant workers from within and outside the Community (numbering about 6 million in 1980), women, the handicapped and the young unemployed. The European Social Fund (see p. 192) is the main channel for resources.

Consumer Protection. The Community's second five-year Consumer Protection Programme was drawn up in 1979, based on the same principles as those of the first programme (protection of health and safety, with procedures for withdrawal of goods from the market; standardization of rules for food additives and packaging; rules for machines and equipment; authorization procedures for new products). The second programme also includes measures for monitoring the quality and durability of products, improving after-sale service, legal remedies for unsatisfactory goods and services, and the encouragement of consumer associations.

Environment Policy. The second environment Action Programme (1977-81) laid down the following principles for action; reduction of pollution and nuisance, protection of natural resources, organization of relevant research and participation in international efforts to improve the environment. A progress report produced by the Commission in May 1980 gave details of measures laying down quality standards for water and controlling water and air pollution, noise levels, waste disposal and production of chemicals.

In 1980 a five-year Environment Research Programme was approved by the Commission. Some 86 per cent of the proposed funds were allotted to environment protection (including the development of "clean technology"), and the rest to climate research.

Economic and Monetary Union: the following objectives for the end of 1973 were agreed by the Council in 1971, as the first of three stages towards union:

- the narrowing of exchange rate margins to 2.25 per cent;
- creation of a medium-term pool of reserves;
- co-ordination of short- and medium-term economic and budgetary policies;
- a joint position on international monetary issues;
- harmonization of taxes;
- creation of the European Monetary Co-operation Fund;
- creation of the Regional Development Fund.

The narrowing of exchange margins (the "snake") came into effect in 1972; but Denmark, France, Ireland, Italy and the United Kingdom later floated their currencies, with only Denmark permanently returning to the arrangement. Sweden and Norway also linked their currencies to the "snake"; but Sweden withdrew from the arrangement in August 1977, and Norway withdrew in December 1978.

At a meeting of the European Council in Bremen in July 1978, Chancellor Schmidt and President Giscard d'Estaing proposed the formation of a European Monetary System (EMS), which came into force in March 1979. All the Community members except the United Kingdom joined the EMS; Greece did not join on acceding to the Community in 1981. The system works by fixing for each currency, a central rate on European Currency Units (ECUs), which are based on a "basket" of national currencies identical to those used to calculate the European unit of account (EUA). A reference rate in relation to other currencies is fixed for each currency, with established fluctuation margins (2.25 per cent for former "snake" members and France, 6 per cent for others); Central Banks of the participating states intervene when the agreed margin is likely to be exceeded. Each member places 20 per cent of its gold reserves and dollar reserves respectively into the European Monetary Co-operation Fund (EMCF), and receives a supply of ECUs to regulate Central Bank interventions. A European Monetary Fund was originally envisaged as replacing the EMCF after two years of EMS operations.

ASSOCIATION AND TRADE AGREEMENTS

Agreements in Europe. Association agreements have been signed between the Community and Greece (1962), Turkey (1964), Malta (1971) and Cyprus (1972). In 1975 Greece applied for full membership: the Treaty of Accession was signed in May 1979 and came into force on January 1st, 1981. The Turkish agreement leads to a customs union by 1992, and possible accession. The Maltese and Cyprus agreements were intended to lead to a customs union by 1981 and 1990 respectively.

The Community is developing a policy for the Mediterranean area, based on a global approach with similar arrangements of trade preferences, financial aid and technical co-operation affecting each country under a series of agreements.

Apart from the Association agreements described above, co-operation agreements within this scheme came into force with Israel in 1975, with the Maghreb countries (Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia) in July 1976 and with the Machrak countries (Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria) in March and May 1977.

Portugal and Spain applied to join the Community, in 1978 and 1979 respectively, and were expected to become members in 1984 or 1985.

Trade negotiations with the CMEA (mainly Eastern European) countries were proposed by the Community in 1974, but progress has been slow. However, co-operation agreements were signed in 1980 with Yugoslavia and Romania.

Lomé Convention (see separate section below).

Trade agreements. The Community has concluded a number of other agreements with third countries and is gradually evolving an overall policy on external trade.

Member countries of EFTA. Austria, Iceland, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland and the associate member Finland each have bilateral Free Trade Agreements with the EEC. The agreements mainly concern the industrial sector. Free trade is being introduced by elimination of tariffs in stages, while the transition period is longer for certain industries which might be disrupted by the arrangement.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

A full customs union between the Community and the EFTA countries was achieved with effect from July 1977, under the provisions of these agreements.

The agreements also guarantee equal treatment for imports from third countries; and there are provisions affecting coal and steel, removal of quotas, and practices restricting competition.

Latin America. Non-preferential trade agreements were signed with the EEC by Argentina (1971), Uruguay (1973), Brazil (1973) and Mexico (1975). A co-operation agreement was signed with Brazil in September 1980. In May 1980 negotiations began for a trade and economic co-operation agreement with the countries of the Andean Pact.

Asia. Non-preferential co-operation agreements were signed with the EEC by India (1973 and 1981), Sri Lanka (1975) and Pakistan (1976). A trade agreement was signed with the People's Republic of China in 1978, and the first EEC-China Business Week was held in Brussels in April 1981. An economic and commercial co-operation agreement was signed with the countries of the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) in 1980.

Discussions were held in 1981 on the Community's increasing trade deficit with Japan.

European Communities

Canada. A framework agreement for commercial and economic co-operation between the Community and Canada was signed in Ottawa in July 1976, the Community's first non-preferential co-operation agreement concerned not only with trade promotion but also with wide-ranging economic co-operation. It is also the Community's first economic co-operation agreement with an advanced industrial country.

Generalized Preferences. In July 1971 the Community introduced a scheme of generalized preferences to 91 developing countries, later extended to 123 states and 24 dependent countries or territories. Under the scheme exemption from customs duties is granted on manufactures and semi-manufactures imported from the developing countries. In December 1980 a revised scheme of generalized preference was adopted by the Council for the period 1981-85, the main differences being that the new scheme gives varying preferential advantages according to the degree of competitiveness of the beneficiary countries.

Overseas aid. Emergency aid in 1980 (excluding aid to the ACP countries under the Lomé Convention) amounted to 63 million EUA, of which 40 million was for Kampuchea, 10 million for Afghan refugees in Pakistan and 9 million for returning Zimbabwean refugees; in addition, about 55 million EUA worth of emergency food aid was made available, chiefly for South-East Asia and the Horn of Africa.

THE SECOND LOMÉ CONVENTION

Concluded at Lomé, Togo, in October 1979 by the European Community and 58 African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) states, the Convention applied to 61 developing countries in November 1981.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

FUNCTIONS

The First Lomé Convention (Lomé I), which came into force on April 1st, 1976, replaced the Yaoundé Conventions and the Arusha Agreement and was designed to provide a new framework of co-operation, taking into account the varying needs of developing countries. Under Lomé I, provision was made for the bulk of ACP agricultural exports to enter the EEC market duty free. The STABEX (Stabilization of Export Earnings) scheme was designed to help developing countries to withstand fluctuations in the price of their products. The Convention also provided for Community funds to help finance projects in ACP countries. The Second Lomé Convention, signed in October 1979, extended some of the provisions of Lomé I, and introduced new fields of co-operation. One of the most important innovations is a scheme, similar to STABEX, to safeguard mineral production. Other chapters concern new rules on investment protection, migrant labour, fishing, sea transport, co-operation in energy policy and agricultural development, and procedures to speed the administration of aid.

The main areas of co-operation under Lomé II are as follows:

Trade: 99.5 per cent of ACP exports can enter the Community without incurring customs duties, while certain products which compete directly with Community agriculture, such as sugar, are given preferential treatment but not free access.

Stabilization of export earnings: the "Stabex" scheme guarantees minimum export earnings to ACP countries for 44 different products, so that, even in a bad year, income is assured. The "Sysmin" scheme provides similar protection for mineral producers.

Financial and technical co-operation: aid is provided through the European Development Fund (q.v.) and the European Investment Bank (q.v.) for various development projects.

Agricultural and industrial co-operation: the Centre for Industrial Development and the Technical Centre for Agricultural and Rural Co-operation are intended to promote development by co-ordinating information and advisory services.

ACP-EEC INSTITUTIONS

Council of Ministers: one Minister from each signatory state; one Co-chairman from each of the two groups, meets annually.

Committee of Ambassadors: one Ambassador from each signatory state; Chairmanship alternates between the two groups; meets at least every six months.

Consultative Assembly: EEC and ACP are equally represented; attended by delegates of the ACP countries and members of the European Parliament; one Co-chairman from each of the two groups; meets at least once a year.

ACP INSTITUTIONS

ACP Council of Ministers.

ACP Committee of Ambassadors.

ACP Secretariat: Africa House, Brussels, Belgium; Sec.-Gen. T. OKELLO-ODONGO (Kenya).

FINANCE

"OWN RESOURCES" FINANCING

From January 1st, 1978, the Community budget was to be provided entirely by automatic payments made over by the member governments from the revenue they collect in import levies on agricultural produce and customs duties, and from a small percentage of their revenue from Value-Added Tax (VAT). The provision of the Community's "own resources" has been implemented gradually since 1975, when the original six members began to pay an increasing proportion of their contributions by these automatic payments, the rest being payable by ordinary contribution. This process was complicated by the transitional scale by which the ordinary contributions of the three new members were assessed and the mechanism for implementing the system of "own resources" financing was not ready until 1980.

Although it has advantages, the new system also imposes new restraints on budget estimates and management. The volume of revenue from own resources is less flexible than financial contributions from member states and supplementary budgeting will be extremely difficult, if not impossible. It will be even more necessary than before, therefore, to ensure accuracy in estimating revenue and in administering expenditure.

Under this system it soon became clear that an unfair proportion of the budget was being paid by certain countries, particularly since over 60 per cent is allocated to agriculture, to the disadvantage of those countries with a relatively small agricultural sector, such as the United Kingdom. Temporary rebates were made to the United Kingdom in 1980, and during 1981 discussions were held on budgetary reform: it was proposed that regular compensation should be made to the United Kingdom, to be assessed by comparing its share of the Community's G.N.P. with the proportion of agricultural financing it needs.

THE UNIT OF ACCOUNT

The European Unit of Account (EUA) was adopted throughout the Community finances from January 1st, 1978. It replaced the EUR, a budgetary unit which represented the value of the U.S. dollar before 1971 when its fixed parity was ended.

The unit is based on the sum of the value of fixed amounts in each of the currencies of the Community. This is known as basket valuation; the unit's parity against national currencies is calculated and published daily. It had been in use for the transactions of the European Development Fund since the Lomé Convention came into effect; by the European Investment Bank since the end of 1974; and in the activities of the ECSC since the beginning of 1976.

Following the introduction of the European Monetary System in March 1979, the European Currency Unit (ECU) was created. The value of the ECU at September 30th, 1981, was U.S. $1.0668.

SUMMARY OF EEC TREATY (TREATY OF ROME)

PART I. PRINCIPLES

The aim of the Community is, by establishing a Common Market and progressively approximating the economic policies of the member states, to promote throughout the Community a harmonious development of economic activities, a continuous and balanced expansion, an increased stability, an accelerated raising of the standard of living and closer relations between its member states. With these aims in view, the activities of the Community will include:

- (a) the elimination between member states of customs duties and of quantitative restrictions in regard to the importation and exportation of goods, as well as of all other measures with equivalent effect;
- (b) the establishment of a common customs tariff and a common commercial policy towards third countries;
- (c) the abolition between member states of the obstacles to the free movement of persons, services and capital;
- (d) the inauguration of a common agricultural policy;
- (e) the inauguration of a common transport policy;
- (f) the establishment of a system ensuring that competition shall not be distorted in the Common Market;
- (g) the application of procedures that will make it possible to co-ordinate the economic policies of member states and to remedy disequilibria in their balance of payments;
- (h) the approximation of their respective municipal law to the extent necessary for the functioning of the Common Market;
- (i) the creation of a European Social Fund in order to improve the possibilities of employment for workers and to contribute to the raising of their standard of living;
- (j) the establishment of a European Investment Bank intended to facilitate the economic expansion of the Community through the creation of new resources; and

- (k) the association of overseas countries and territories with the Community with a view to increasing trade and to pursuing jointly their effort toward economic and social development.

Member states, acting in close collaboration with the institutions of the Community, shall co-ordinate their respective economic policies to the extent that is necessary to attain the objectives of the Treaty; the institutions of the Community shall take care not to prejudice the internal and external financial stability of the member states. Within the field of application of the Treaty and without prejudice to certain special provisions which it contains, any discrimination on the grounds of nationality shall be hereby prohibited.

The Common Market shall be progressively established in the course of a transitional period of twelve years. This transitional period shall be divided into three stages of four years each; the length of each stage may be modified in accordance with the provisions set out below.

Transition from the first to the second stage shall be conditional upon a confirmatory statement to the effect that the essence of the objectives laid down in the Treaty for the first stage has been in fact achieved, and that all obligations have been observed. Failing a unanimous vote by the Council of Ministers at the end of the fourth year, the first stage shall be automatically extended for a period of one year. A similar procedure may be followed at the end of the sixth year if the first stage has in fact been extended. If at the end of the seventh year a unanimous vote is not forthcoming to proceed to the second stage, the Council of Ministers shall appoint an Arbitration Board whose decision shall bind both member states and Community institutions. The second and third stages may not be extended or curtailed except by a decision of the Council acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission. These provisions shall not have the effect of extending the transitional period beyond a total duration of fifteen years after the date of entry into force of the Treaty.

PART II. BASES OF THE COMMUNITY

FREE MOVEMENT OF GOODS

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new import or export customs duties, or charges with equivalent effect, and from increasing such duties or charges as they apply in their commercial relations with each other. Member states shall progressively abolish between themselves all import and export customs duties, charges with an equivalent effect, and also customs duties of a fiscal nature. Independently of these provisions, any member state may, in the course of the transitional period, suspend in whole or in part the collection of import duties applied by it to products imported from other member states, or may carry out the foreseen reductions more rapidly than laid down in the Treaty if its general economic situation and the situation of the sector so concerned permit.

A common customs tariff shall be established, which, subject to certain conditions (especially with regard to the Italian tariff), shall be at the level of the arithmetical average of the duties applied in the four customs territories (i.e. France, Germany, Italy and Benelux) covered by the Community. This customs tariff shall be applied in its entirety not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period. Member states may follow an independent accelerating process similar to that allowed for reduction of inter-Community customs duties.

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect, and existing restrictions and measures shall be abolished not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period. These provisions shall not be an obstacle to prohibitions or restrictions in respect of importation, exportation or transit which are justified on grounds of public morality, health or safety, the protection of human or animal life or health, the preservation of plant life, the protection of national treasures of artistic, historic or archaeological value or the protection of industrial and commercial property. Such prohibitions or restrictions shall not, however, constitute either a means of arbitrary discrimination or a disguised restriction on trade between member states. Member states shall progressively adjust any state monopolies of a commercial character in such a manner as will ensure the exclusion, at the end of the transitional period, of all discrimination between the nationals of member states in regard to conditions of supply and marketing of goods. These provisions shall apply to any body by means of which a member state shall de jure or de facto either directly or indirectly, control or appreciably influence importation or exportation between member states, and also to monopolies assigned by the state. In the case of a commercial monopoly which is accompanied by regulations designed to facilitate the marketing or the valorisation of agricultural products, it should be ensured that in the application of these provisions equivalent guarantees are provided in respect of the employment and standard of living of the producers concerned.

The obligations incumbent on member states shall be binding only to such extent as they are compatible with existing international agreements.

AGRICULTURE

The Common Market shall extend to agriculture and trade in agricultural products. The common agricultural policy shall have as its objectives:

- (a) the increase of agricultural productivity by developing technical progress and by ensuring the rational development of agricultural production and the optimum utilization of the factors of production, particularly labour;
- (b) the ensurance thereby of a fair standard of living for the agricultural population;
- (c) the stabilization of markets;
- (d) regular supplies;
- (e) reasonable prices in supplies to consumers.

Due account must be taken of the particular character of agricultural activities, arising from the social structure of agriculture and from structural and natural disparities between the various agricultural regions; of the need to make the appropriate adjustments gradually; and of the fact that in member states agriculture constitutes a sector which is closely linked with the economy as a whole. With a view to developing a common agricultural policy during the transitional period and the establishment of it not later than at the end of the period, a common organization of agricultural markets shall be effected.

FREE MOVEMENT OF PERSONS, SERVICES AND CAPITAL

Workers: The free movement of workers shall be ensured within the Community not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period, involving the abolition of any discrimination based on nationality between workers of the member states as regards employment, remuneration and other working conditions. This shall include the right to accept offers of employment actually made, to move about freely for this purpose within the territory of the member states, to stay in any member state in order to carry on an employment in conformity with the legislative and administrative provisions governing the employment of the workers of that state, and to live, on conditions which shall be the subject of implementing regulations laid down by the Commission, in the territory of a member state after having been employed there. (These provisions do not apply to employment in the public administration).

In the field of social security, the Council shall adopt the measures necessary to effect the free movement of workers, in particular, by introducing a system which permits an assurance to be given to migrant workers and their beneficiaries that, for the purposes of qualifying for and retaining the rights to benefits and of the calculation of these benefits, all periods taken into consideration by the respective municipal law of the countries concerned shall be added together, and that these benefits will be paid to persons resident in the territories of the member states.

Right of Establishment: Restrictions on the freedom of establishment of nationals of a member state in the territory of another member state shall be progressively abolished during the transitional period, nor may any new restrictions of a similar character be introduced. Such progressive abolition shall also extend to restrictions on the setting up of agencies, branches or subsidiaries. Freedom of establishment shall include the right to engage in and carry on non-wage-earning activities, and also to set up and manage enterprises and companies under the conditions laid down by the law of the country of establishment for its own nationals, subject to the provisions of this Treaty relating to capital.

Services: Restrictions on the free supply of services within the Community shall be progressively abolished in the course of the transitional period in respect of nationals of member states who are established in a state of the Community other than that of the person to whom the services are supplied; no new restrictions of a similar character may be introduced. The Council, acting by a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, may extend the benefit of these provisions to cover services supplied by nationals of any third country who are established within the Community.

Particular services involved are activities of an industrial or artisan character and those of the liberal professions.

Capital: Member states shall during the transitional period progressively abolish between themselves restrictions on the movement of capital belonging to persons resident in the member states, and also any discriminatory treatment based on the nationality or place of residence of the parties or on the place in which such capital is invested. Current payments connected with movements of capital between member states shall be freed from all restrictions not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period.

Member states shall endeavour to avoid introducing within the Community any new exchange restrictions which affect the movement of capital and current payments connected with such movements, and making existing rules more restrictive.

TRANSPORT

With a view to establishing a common transport policy, the Council of Ministers shall, acting on a proposal of the Commission and after consulting the Economic and Social Committee and the European Parliament, lay down common rules applicable to international transport effected from or to the territory of a member state or crossing the territory of one or more member states, conditions for the admission of non-resident carriers to national transport services within a member state and any other appropriate provisions. Until these have been enacted and unless the Council of Ministers gives its unanimous consent, no member state shall apply the various provisions governing this subject at the date of the entry into force of this Treaty in such a way as to make them less favourable, in their direct or indirect effect, for carriers of other member states by comparison with its own national carriers.

Any discrimination which consists in the application by a carrier, in respect of the same goods conveyed in the same circumstances, of transport rates and conditions which differ on the ground of the country of origin or destination of the goods carried, shall be abolished in the traffic of the Community not later than at the end of the second stage of the transitional period.

A Committee with consultative status, composed of experts appointed by the governments of the member states, shall be established and attached to the Commission, without prejudice to the competence of the transport section of the Economic and Social Committee.

PART III. POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY COMMON RULES

Enterprises: The following practices by enterprises are prohibited: the direct or indirect fixing of purchase or selling prices or of any other trading conditions; the limitation or control of production, markets, technical development of investment; market-sharing or the sharing of sources of supply; the application to parties to transactions of unequal terms in respect of equivalent supplies, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage; the subjection of the conclusion of a contract to the acceptance by a party of additional supplies which, either by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the subject of such contract. The provisions may be declared inapplicable if the agreements neither impose on the enterprises concerned any restrictions not indispensable to the attainment of improved production, distribution or technical progress, nor enable enterprises to eliminate competition in respect of a substantial proportion of the goods concerned.

Dumping: If, in the course of the transitional period, the Commission, at the request of a member state or of any other interested party, finds that dumping practices exist within the Common Market, it shall issue recommendations to the originator of such practices with a view to bringing them to an end. Where such practices continue, the Commission shall authorise the member state injured to take protective measures of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars.

Re-importation within the Community shall be free of all customs duties, quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect.

Aid granted by States: Any aid granted by a member state or granted by means of state resources which is contrary to the purposes of the treaty is forbidden. The following shall be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids of a social character granted without discrimination to individual consumers;
- (b) aids intended to remedy damage caused by natural calamities or other extraordinary events;
- (c) aids granted to the economy of certain regions of the Federal German Republic affected by the division of Germany, to the extent that they are necessary to compensate for the economic disadvantages caused by the division.

The following may be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids intended to promote the economic development of regions where the standard of living is abnormally low or where there exists serious under-employment;
- (b) aids intended to promote the execution of important projects of common European interest or to remedy a serious economic disturbance of the economy of a member state;

(c) aids intended to facilitate the development of certain activities or of certain economic regions, provided that such aids do not change trading conditions to such a degree as would be contrary to the common interest;

(d) such other categories of aids as may be specified by a decision of the Council of Ministers acting on a proposal of the Commission.

The Commission is charged to examine constantly all systems of aids existing in the member states, and may require any member state to abolish or modify any aid which it finds to be in conflict with the principles of the Common Market.

Fiscal Provisions: A member state shall not impose, directly or indirectly, on the products of other member states, any internal charges of any kind in excess of those applied directly or indirectly to like domestic products. Furthermore, a member state shall not impose on the product of other member states any internal charges of such a nature as to afford indirect protection to other productions. Member states shall, not later than at the beginning of the second stage of the transitional period, abolish or amend any provisions existing at the date of the entry into force of the Treaty which are contrary to these rules. Products exported to any member state may not benefit from any drawback on internal charges in excess of those charges imposed directly or indirectly on them. Subject to these conditions, any member states which levy a turnover tax calculated by a cumulative multi-stage system may, in the case of internal charges imposed by them on imported products or of drawbacks granted by them on exported products, establish average rates for specific products or groups of products.

Approximation of Laws: The Council, acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, shall issue directives for the approximation of such legislative and administrative provisions of the member states as have a direct incidence on the establishment or functioning of the Common Market. The European Parliament and the Economic and Social Committee shall be consulted concerning any directives whose implementation in one or more of the member states would involve amendment of legislative provisions.

ECONOMIC POLICY

Balance of Payments: Member states are charged to co-ordinate their economic policies in order that each may ensure the equilibrium of their overall balances of payments and maintain confidence in their currency, together with a high level of employment and stability of prices. In order to promote this co-ordination a Monetary Committee is established (see section on Organization, above).

Each member state engages itself to treat its policy with regard to exchange rates as a matter of common interest. Where a member state is in difficulties or seriously threatened with difficulties as regards its balance of payments as a result either of overall disequilibrium of the balance of payments or of the kinds of currency at its disposal, and where such difficulties are likely, in particular, to prejudice the functioning of the Common Market or the progressive establishment of the common commercial policy, the Commission shall examine the situation and indicate the measures which it recommends to the state concerned to adopt; if this action proves insufficient to overcome the difficulties, the Commission shall, after consulting the Monetary Committee, recommend to the Council of Ministers the granting of mutual assistance. This mutual assistance may take the form of:

(a) concerted action in regard to any other international organization to which the member states may have recourse;

(b) any measures necessary to avoid diversions of commercial traffic where the state in difficulty maintains or re-establishes quantitative restrictions with regard to third countries;

(c) the granting of limited credits by other member states, subject to their agreement.

Furthermore, during the transitional period, mutual assistance may also take the form of special reductions in customs duties or enlargements of quotas. If the mutual assistance recommended by the Commission is not granted by the Council, or if the mutual assistance granted and the measures taken prove insufficient, the Commission shall authorise the state in difficulties to take measures of safeguard, of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars. In the case of a sudden balance-of-payments crisis, any member state may take immediate provisional measures of safeguard, which must be submitted to the consideration of the Commission as soon as possible. On the basis of an opinion of the Commission and after consulting the Monetary Committee, the Council may decide that the state concerned shall amend, suspend or abolish such measures.

Commercial Policy: Member states shall co-ordinate their commercial relations with third countries in such a way as to bring about, not later than at the expiry of the transitional period, the conditions necessary to the implementation of a common policy in the matter of external trade. After the expiry of the transitional period, the common commercial policy shall be based on uniform principles, particularly in regard to tariff amendments, the conclusion of tariff or trade agreements, the alignment of measures of liberalisation, export policy and protective commercial measures, including measures to be taken in cases of dumping or subsidies. The Commission will be authorised to conduct negotiations with third countries. As from the end of the transitional period, member states shall, in respect of all matters of particular interest in regard to the Common Market, within the framework of any international organizations of an economic character, only proceed by way of common action. The Commission shall for this purpose submit to the Council of Ministers proposals concerning the scope and implementation of such common action. During the transitional period, member states shall consult with each other with a view to concerting their action and, as far as possible, adopting a uniform attitude.

SOCIAL POLICY

Social Provisions: Without prejudice to the other provisions of the Treaty and in conformity with its general objectives, it shall be the aim of the Commission to promote close collaboration between member states in the social field, particularly in matters relating to employment, labour legislation and working conditions, occupational and continuation training, social security, protection against occupational accidents and diseases, industrial hygiene, the law as to trade unions and collective bargaining between employers and workers.

Each member state shall in the course of the first stage of the transitional period ensure and subsequently maintain the application of the principle of equal pay for men and women.

The European Social Fund: See the section on Organization above.

The European Investment Bank: See the section on Organization above.

PART IV. OVERSEAS COUNTRIES AND TERRITORIES

The member states agree to bring into association with the Community the non-European countries and territories which have special relations with Belgium, France, Italy and the Netherlands in order to promote the economic and social development of these countries and territories and to establish close economic relations between them and the Community as a whole.

Member states shall, in their commercial exchanges with the countries and territories, apply the same rules which they apply among themselves pursuant to the Treaty. Each country or territory shall apply to its commercial exchanges with member states and with the other countries and territories the same rules which it applied in respect of the European state with which it has special relations. Member states shall contribute to the investments required by the progressive development of these countries and territories.

Customs duties on trade between member states and the countries and territories are to be progressively abolished according to the same timetable as for trade between the member states themselves. The countries and territories may, however, levy customs duties which correspond to the needs of their development and to the requirements of their industrialisation or which, being of a fiscal nature, have the object of contributing to their budgets.

(The Convention implementing these provisions is concluded for a period of five years only from the date of entry into force of the Treaty.)

PART V. INSTITUTIONS OF THE COMMUNITY PROVISIONS GOVERNING INSTITUTIONS

For the achievement of their aims and under the conditions provided for in the Treaty, the Council and the Commission shall adopt regulations and directives, make decisions and formulate recommendations or opinions. Regulations shall have a general application and shall be binding in every respect and directly applicable in each member state. Directives shall bind any member state to which they are addressed, as to the result to be achieved, while leaving to domestic agencies a competence as to form and means. Decisions shall be binding in every respect for the addressees named therein. Recommendations and opinions shall have no binding force.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

Estimates shall be drawn up for each financial year for all revenues and expenditures of the Community and shall be shown in the budget.

European Communities

The revenues of the budget shall comprise the financial contributions of member states assessed by reference to a fixed scale. The decision of April 21st, 1970, on the replacement of the financial contributions of member states by the Community's own resources, applicable from January 1st, 1975, determined the scale for the six original members as follows:

Belgium	6.8
France	32.6
Federal Republic of Germany	32.9
Italy	20.2
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.3

The scale for the three new members was determined by the Treaty of Accession, by which the contributions of the original members were reckoned to comprise 77.6 per cent of the new scale and the remainder apportioned as follows:

Denmark	2.46
Ireland	0.61
United Kingdom	19.32

The resulting scale for all members is as follows:

Belgium	5.2775
Denmark	2.4600
France	25.3007
Federal Republic of Germany	25.5337
Ireland	0.6100
Italy	15.6772
Luxembourg	0.1552
Netherlands	5.6655
United Kingdom	19.3200

The Commission shall implement the budget on its own responsibility and within the limits of the appropriations made. The Council of Ministers shall:

- lay down the financial regulations specifying, in particular, the procedure to be adopted for establishing and implementing the budget, and for rendering and auditing accounts;
- determine the methods and procedure whereby the contributions by member states shall be made available to the Commission; and
- establish rules concerning the responsibility of pay-commissioners and accountants and arrange for the relevant supervision.

PART VI. GENERAL AND FINAL PROVISIONS

Member states shall, in so far as is necessary, engage in negotiations with each other with a view to ensuring for the benefit of their nationals:

- the protection of persons as well as the enjoyment and protections of rights under the conditions granted by each state to its own nationals;
- the elimination of double taxation within the Community;
- the mutual recognition of companies, the maintenance of their legal personality in cases where the registered office is transferred from one country to another, and the possibility for companies subject to the municipal law of different member states to form mergers; and

- (d) the simplification of the formalities governing the reciprocal recognition and execution of judicial decisions and arbitral awards.

Within a period of three years after the date of the entry into force of the Treaty, member states shall treat nationals of other member states in the same manner, as regards financial participation by such nationals in the capital of companies, as they treat their own nationals, without prejudice to the application of the other provisions of the Treaty.

The Treaty shall in no way prejudice the system existing in member states in respect of property.

The provisions of the Treaty shall not detract from the following rules:

- (a) no member state shall be obliged to supply information the disclosure of which it considers contrary to the essential interests of its security;
- (b) any member state may take the measures which it considers necessary for the protection of the essential interests of its security, and which are connected with the production of or the trade in arms, ammunition and war material; such measures shall not, however, prejudice conditions of competition in the Common Market in respect of products not intended for specifically military purposes.

The list of products to which (b) applies shall be determined by the Council in the course of the first year after the date of entry into force of the Treaty. The list may be subsequently amended by the unanimous vote of the Council on a proposal of the Commission.

Member states shall consult one another for the purpose of enacting in common the necessary provisions to prevent the functioning of the Common Market from being affected by measures which a member state may be called upon to take in case of serious internal disturbances affecting public order, in case of war or serious international tension constituting a threat of war or in order to carry out undertakings into which it has entered for the purpose of maintaining peace and international security.

In the course of the transitional period, where there are serious difficulties which are likely to persist in any sector of economic activity or difficulties which may seriously impair the economic situation in any region, any member state may ask for authorization to take measures of safeguard in order to restore the situation and adapt the sector concerned to the Common Market economy.

The provisions of the Treaty shall not affect those of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community, nor those of the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Community; nor shall they be an obstacle to the existence or completion of regional unions between Belgium and Luxembourg, and between Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, in so far as the objectives of these regional unions are not achieved by the application of this Treaty.

The government of any member state of the Commission may submit to the Council proposals for the revision of the Treaty.

Any European state may apply to become a member of the Community.

The Community may conclude with a third country, a union of states or an international organization agreements creating an association embodying reciprocal rights and obligations, joint actions and special procedures.

The Treaty is concluded for an unlimited period.

OTHER TREATIES

The following additional treaties have been signed by the members of the European Communities:

Treaty Instituting a Single Council and a Single Commission of the European Communities: signed in Brussels on April 8th, 1965, by the six original members.

Treaty Modifying Certain Budgetary Arrangements of the European Communities and of the Treaty Instituting a Single Council and a Single Commission of the European Communities: signed in Luxembourg on April 22nd, 1970, by the six original members.

Treaty Concerning the Accession of the Kingdom of Denmark, Ireland, the Kingdom of Norway and the United Kingdom of Great Britain to the European Economic Community and the European Atomic Energy Community: signed in Brussels on January 22nd, 1972, by the six original members of the European Communities and the four (then) acceding states.

The Accession of the new members to the European Coal and Steel Community was enacted, in accordance with the treaty of that Community, by a Decision of the Council of the European Communities.

Annexed to the Treaty of Accession and the Decision of the Council was an Act Concerning the Conditions of Accession and the Adjustments to the Treaties, consisting of 161 articles and dealing mainly with the transitional measures to be adopted.

Amendments necessitated by the non-accession of Norway were made on January 1st, 1973, when the Treaty of Accession, the Decision of the Council and the annexed Act took effect.

The Treaty of Accession between Greece and the European Communities was signed on May 28th, 1979.

ORGANIZATION

(September 1981)

COUNCIL

Council delegations are led by Ministers (normally twice a year) or by the Permanent Official Heads of Delegations (usually every other week). The Chair is held for six months by each country in turn.

The Council is empowered to make decisions about a wide range of issues, including tariffs. Each country has one vote, and decisions must be unanimous where new obligations are involved, though on many issues a majority suffices.

A summit meeting was held in Vienna in May 1977. The Heads of Government of the member countries adopted a Declaration laying down the framework for the activities of the Association for the years to come. This was to mark the achievement in July 1977 of a free trade system covering all the EFTA countries and the EEC.

Heads of Permanent Delegations:

Austria: E. NETTEL.
Iceland: H. JONSSON.
Norway: J. CAPPELEN.
Portugal: A. DE CARVALHO.
Sweden: H. V. EWERLOF.
Switzerland: F. A. BLANKART.

EFTA STANDING COMMITTEES

Customs Committee.
Committee of Trade Experts.
Budget Committee.
Committee on Agriculture and Fisheries.
Economic Development Committee.
Economic Committee.

CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

Meets a few weeks before each Ministerial Council Meeting. The Chairman reports to the EFTA Council after each meeting. Members: representatives of industry, employers, trades unions and other bodies, all appointed by member countries. Maximum number of members: five from each country. Subjects for discussion: any within EFTA'S sphere of activity.

COMMITTEE OF MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT OF THE EFTA COUNTRIES

Meets at least once a year. Serves as a consultative body and channel of information between the Association and Parliaments of EFTA countries.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: PER KLEPPE (Norway).

Deputy Secretary-General: NORBERT FASTENHAMMER (Austria) (from April 1982).

FINLAND-EFTA JOINT COUNCIL

Consists of the Heads of National Delegations, when meeting at official level, and a Finnish representative. The Joint Council is empowered to make decisions about a wide range of issues, including tariffs. Each country has one vote, and decisions must be unanimous where new obligations are involved. In practice, almost all meetings of the EFTA Council and the Joint Council are now held simultaneously.

Head of Finnish Permanent Delegation: PAAVO KAARLEHTO.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT FUND FOR PORTUGAL

Established April 1976 to help develop Portuguese industry, concentrating on the modernization or creation of small and medium-sized industries. Authorized capital: SDR 84,604,516. Contributions are being made in five annual instalments. The Fund is to operate for 25 years.

In its fourth year of operations, which ended on January 31st, 1981, the Fund approved loans amounting to 1,202 million Portuguese escudos ($21.7 million) for 41 projects.

TARIFFS AND QUOTAS

Import duties on industrial goods within EFTA were removed in eight stages up to the end of 1966, and between EFTA and Finland by 1967. All import quotas were removed by the end of 1966, whilst export quotas had been eliminated by the end of 1961.

FINLAND-EFTA ASSOCIATION AGREEMENT

Entered into force June 1961. The main principle of the Agreement is to establish a free trade area where Finland will have the same rights and obligations towards EFTA members as they have among themselves.

FREE TRADE AGREEMENTS

Entered into force on the enlargement of the EEC. These are bilateral agreements between each of the EFTA countries, the EEC and ECSC (see page 196.)

OTHER EFTA ACTIVITIES

In recent years EFTA's work has been increasingly devoted to the problems of non-tariff barriers to trade. Part of this work has been based explicitly on particular articles in the Convention, especially those relating to the conditions of competition.

Work is also being done on non-tariff barriers which are not specifically mentioned in the Convention. On these, EFTA's aim is to contribute to international agreements covering a wider area than that of the Association and, in the meantime, to seek in EFTA solutions to non-tariff barrier problems which will facilitate trade without limiting possibilities of finding wider agreements. Its work in this field has led to a number of international arrangements, now independent of EFTA, to facilitate trade in pharmaceutical products, pressure vessels, ships' equipment, gas appliances, agricultural machines and tractors, and lifts and cranes.

BUDGET

Net budget for 1981/82: 9.9 million Swiss francs. The basis for contributions, determined by reference to the G.N.P. at factor cost of the EFTA countries, is as follows: Austria 16.34 per cent, Finland 10.38, Iceland 1.53, Norway 11.76, Portugal 5.19, Sweden 28.24, Switzerland 26.56.

THE FRANC ZONE

MEMBERS

Benin	Comoros	Ivory Coast	Senegal
Cameroon	Congo	Mali	Togo
Central African Republic	*French Republic	Niger	Upper Volta
Chad	Gabon

* Metropolitan France, Mayotte and the Overseas Departments and Territories.

The Franc Zone embraces all those countries and groups of countries whose currencies are linked with the French franc at a fixed rate of exchange and who agree to hold their reserves mainly in the form of French francs and to effect their exchange on the Paris market. Each of these countries or groups of countries has its own central issuing Bank and its currency is freely convertible into French francs. This monetary union is based on agreements concluded between France and each country or group of countries.

Apart from Guinea and Mauritania, all of the countries that formerly comprised French West and Equatorial Africa are members of the Franc Zone. Besides these, Cameroon, Togo and the Comoros are members. The former West and Equatorial African territories are still grouped within the currency areas that existed before independence, each group having its own currency issued by a central bank.

Union monétaire ouest-africaine—UMOA (West African Monetary Union): comprises Benin, Ivory Coast, Niger, Senegal, Upper Volta (all parts of former French West Africa) and Togo. Established by Treaty of November 1973, entered into force 1974.

Banque centrale des états de l'Afrique de l'ouest: ave. du Barachois, B.P. 3108, Dakar, Senegal; f. 1955 under the title "Institut d'émission de l'AOF et du Togo" and re-created under present title by a treaty between the West African states and a convention with France in 1962, both of which were modified in 1973; central issuing bank for the members of the West African Monetary Union; Gov. ABDOULAYE FADIGA (Ivory Coast); Deputy Gov. CHARLES BILA KABORE (Upper Volta); publs. Annual Report, Notes d'Information et Statistiques (monthly).

Union douanière et économique de l'Afrique centrale—UDEAC (Customs and Economic Union of Central Africa): B.P. 969, Bangui, Central African Republic; comprises: Cameroon, Central African Republic, Congo and Gabon.

Chad has observer status. UDEAC was established by the Brazzaville Treaty in 1964 (revised in 1974). As well as forming a customs union, with free trade between members and a common external tariff for imports from other countries, UDEAC has a common code for investment policy and a Solidarity Fund to counteract regional disparities of wealth and economic development. Plans for four community industrial projects were drawn up in 1977: a petrochemicals complex in Gabon, a chemical complex in Congo, a pharmaceuticals laboratory and watchmaking factory in the Central African Republic, and an aluminium plant in Cameroon.

Secretary-General: VINCENT EFON (Cameroon).

Banque des états de l'Afrique centrale: B.P. 1917, Yaoundé, Cameroon; f. 1973 as the central bank of issue of the member states and Chad; Gov. CASIMIR OYÉ MBA (Gabon). Publs. Rapport annuel, Etudes et statistiques (monthly).

Banque de développement des états de l'Afrique centrale: Brazzaville, Congo; f. 1976; Dir.-Gen. DÉRAND ENOCH LAKOUÉ.

Mali withdrew from the Franc Zone in 1962, setting up its own currency, the Mali franc, and its own issuing Bank. The Mali franc returned to the Franc Zone and to full convertibility with the French franc in March 1968, and agreement was reached on the establishment of a central issuing bank, to be jointly administered by France and Mali.

The Comoros, formerly a French Overseas Territory, did not join the Franc Zone on achieving independence in 1975. However, francs CFA were used as the currency of the new state and the Institut d'émission des Comores continued to function as a Franc Zone organization. In 1976 the Comoros formally assumed membership.

A number of states left the Franc Zone during the period 1958-73: Guinea, Tunisia, Morocco, Algeria, Mauritania and Madagascar.

CURRENCIES OF THE FRANC ZONE

French franc (= 100 centimes): used in Metropolitan France, in the Overseas Departments of Guadeloupe, French Guiana, Martinique, Réunion, St. Pierre and Miquelon, and in Mayotte.

1 franc CFA=2 French centimes. CFA stands for Communauté financière africaine in the West African area and for Coopération financière en Afrique centrale in the Central African area. Used in the monetary areas of West and Central Africa. It is also used in the Comoros.

1 Mali franc=1 French centime. Used in Mali, where it replaced the franc CFA in 1962.

1 CFP (Comptoirs français du Pacifique) franc=3.5 French centimes. Used in New Caledonia, French Polynesia and the Wallis and Futuna Islands.

EXCHANGE REGULATION

The franc CFA is freely convertible into the French franc at a fixed rate, through "Operations Accounts" established by agreements concluded between the French Treasury and the individual issuing Banks. It is backed fully by the French Treasury, which also provides the Banks with overdraft facilities.

The monetary reserves of the CFA countries are normally held in French francs in the French Treasury. However, the Banque centrale des états de l'Afrique de l'ouest and the Banque des états de l'Afrique centrale are authorized to hold up to 35 per cent of their foreign exchange holdings in currencies other than the franc. Exchange is effected on the Paris market. Part of the reserves earned by richer members can be used to offset the deficits incurred by poorer countries.

New regulations drawn up in 1967 provided for the free convertibility of currency with that of countries outside the Franc Zone. Restrictions were removed on the import and export of CFA banknotes, although some capital transfers are subject to approval by the governments concerned.

When the French Government instituted exchange control to protect the French franc following the May 1968 crisis, other Franc Zone countries were obliged to take similar action in order to maintain free convertibility within the Franc Zone. The franc CFA was devalued following devaluation of the French franc in August 1969.

ECONOMIC AID

France's ties with the African Franc Zone countries involve not only monetary arrangements, but also include comprehensive French assistance in the forms of budget support, foreign aid, technical assistance and subsidies on commodity exports.

Official French financial aid and technical assistance to developing countries is administered by the following agencies:

Fonds d'aide et de coopération—FAC: 20 rue Monsieur, 75007 Paris. In 1959 FAC took over from FIDES (Fonds d'Investissement pour le Développement Economique et Social) the administration of subsidies and loans from the French Government to the former French African States. FAC is administered by the Ministry of Co-operation and Development, which allocates budgetary funds to it.

Caisse centrale de coopération économique—CCCE: 233 boulevard Saint-Germain, 75007 Paris. Founded in 1941, and given present name in 1958. French Development Bank which lends money to member states and former member states of the Franc Zone and several other states. Executes the financial operations of the FAC. Dir.-Gen. YVES ROLAND-BILLECART.

Bureau de liaison des agents de coopération technique: 19 rue Barbet de Jouy, 75007 Paris.

INTER-AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK—IDB

808 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20577, U.S.A.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

All the powers of the Bank are vested in a Board of Governors, consisting of one Governor and one alternate appointed by each member country.

ACTIVITIES

ORDINARY CAPITAL RESOURCES

Loans are made to governments, and to public and private bodies for specific economic projects. They are repayable in the currencies lent and their terms range from 10 to 25 years.

The authorized capital stock, including both the ordinary capital and the inter-regional capital, totals $15,144 million, of which $1,665 million is paid-in and $13,479 million is callable. The callable capital constitutes, in effect, a guarantee of the securities which the Bank issues in the capital markets in order to increase its resources available for lending.

FUND FOR SPECIAL OPERATIONS

The Fund enables the Bank to make loans for economic and social projects where circumstances call for special treatment, such as lower interest rates and longer repayment terms than those applied to loans from the ordinary resources, and possibility of repayments in whole or in part in local currency.

Authorized subscribed resources at December 31st, 1980: $7,669,297,000.

OTHER FUNDS

Several donor countries have placed sums under the Bank's administration for assistance to Latin America, outside the framework of the Ordinary Resources and the Bank's Special Operations.

The largest of these was the Social Progress Trust Fund of the United States, set up in 1961 under the Alliance for Progress programme. This amounted to $525 million.

In the same year a fund of nearly DM33 million was given by the Federal Republic of Germany, to improve Bolivia's tin mines.

In 1964 the Bank began administering a fund created by the Canadian government in the amount of 74 million Canadian dollars. Canada has been contributing the repayments of loans made under this fund to the Fund for Special Operations since 1972.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Britain set up a fund with the Bank in 1966, which now amounts to more than $9 million, and in 1971 and 1972 an equal additional amount was contributed. Also in 1966 the government of Sweden placed a fund under Bank administration in the amount of $5 million. The Vatican City donated a Populorum Progressio fund of $1 million in 1969, for land reform and assistance to the poorest areas.

Norway gave a fund of $2 million in the following year, and in 1973 Switzerland gave 30 million Swiss francs. The Canadians began a new fund of 9 million Canadian dollars in 1974, for project preparation.

In 1975 the Venezuelan Investment Fund established a fund to be administered by the Bank in the amount of

Inter-American Development Bank

$500 million dollars ($400 million and 430 million Venezuelan bolivars).

Argentinian aid for its neighbouring countries is also transferred by this method with a fund equivalent to $23.2 million.

The equivalent of $1,180 million had been lent from all these other funds at June 30th, 1980.

BOND ISSUES AND LOANS

To increase its lendable ordinary resources the Bank has borrowed in the markets of 15 countries and has sold short-term bonds to Central Banks in Latin America and non-regional member countries.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Co-operation may be provided in conjunction with a development loan, or arranged independently. The Bank pays for a certain number of trained personnel who may be needed in various phases of a project and provides professional training enabling local people to carry out the development of their own countries.

The Bank had committed a total of $723 million on technical co-operation up to December 31st, 1980, $427 million in loans and $296 million in grants or on a contingent recovery basis. Most of the loans have been to set up pre-investment funds in the national development institutions.

COUNCIL

The Council of the Bank is the highest authority and consists of representatives of all the member countries. Each member country, irrespective of the amount of its quota, has one vote in the Council. Major decisions require a unanimous vote. The Council meets as often as necessary but not less than twice a year.

BOARD

The Board is the executive body of the Bank and consists of a Chairman and three Deputies appointed by the Council. Its task is to supervise the Bank's activities in accordance with the Agreement, the Statutes of the Bank and the decisions of the Council.

Chairman: ALBERT N. BELICHENKO (U.S.S.R.).

FUNCTIONS

1. Under Article II of the Agreement on the Establishment of the International Investment Bank the fundamental task of the Bank is to grant long-term and medium-term credits for projects connected with the international socialist division of labour, specialization and co-operation of production, expenditure for expansion of raw materials and fuel resources in the members' collective interest, for the construction of enterprises of mutual concern to member countries in other branches of the economy, for the construction of projects for the development of the national economies of member countries and for other purposes established by the Council.

2. Credits may be granted to:

- (i) banks, economic organizations and enterprises of member countries;
- (ii) international economic organizations and enterprises of member countries;
- (iii) banks and economic organizations of other countries.

3. The Bank may:

- (i) form reserve capital and create its own special funds;

- (ii) attract funds in collective currency (transferable roubles), in national currencies of interested countries and in convertible currency;
- (iii) issue interest-bearing bond loans placed on international capital markets;
- (iv) place surplus funds with other banks, buy and sell currency, gold and securities, grant guarantees and conduct other banking operations;
- (v) co-operate with the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, the International Bank for Economic Co-operation and other economic organizations of the member countries of the Bank;
- (vi) make contact and establish business relations with international and other financial and credit institutions as well as with banks;
- (vii) conclude international agreements and the like, as well as making business transactions within its competence.

In 1974, a Special Fund was formed for financing programmes of economic and technical assistance to developing countries.

ALEXANDRU SIPERCO (Romania)

VIRGILIO DE LEÓN (Panama)

ASHWINI KUMAR (India)

Prince ALEXANDRE DE MÉRODE (Belgium)

Director: MONIQUE BERLIOUX (France)

OBJECTIVES

According to Rule 1 of the Olympic Charter, the aims of the Olympic movement are:

to promote the development of those physical and moral qualities which are the basis of sport, to educate young people through sport in a spirit of better understanding between each other and of friendship, thereby helping to build a better and more peaceful world, to spread the Olympic principles throughout the world, thereby creating international goodwill, to bring together the athletes of the world in the great four-yearly sport festival, the Olympic Games.

Motto: The Olympic motto is Citius, Altius, Fortius, which means Swifter, Higher, Stronger.

Flame: In ancient Greece, during the Olympic Games, a sacred flame burned at the altar of Zeus, in whose honour the Games were held. At the opening ceremony of the modern Olympic Games, the Olympic flame is lighted. It burns in a conspicuous place in the main stadium throughout the Games. The torch to light the flame is lit by the sun at Olympia and carried by runners from a distant point to the Olympic stadium.

THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS—ICRC*

LEAGUE OF RED CROSS SOCIETIES—LRCS*

COMMON ORGANS

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF THE RED CROSS

The supreme deliberative body of the International Red Cross. Composed of delegations of National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, of the States Parties to the Geneva Conventions and of the International Committee of the Red Cross and of the League of Red Cross Societies. The Conference's function is to secure unity of effort between the National Societies, the International Committee and the League. It usually meets every four years. (Last Conference: Manila, Philippines, October-November 1981.)

STANDING COMMISSION

Chairman: Sir EVELYN SHUCKBURGH, G.C.M.G., C.B. (United Kingdom).

The Commission meets twice a year in ordinary session. Its functions are to prepare the International Conference and to settle any differences that may arise between the International Committee and the League. It consists of two members each from the ICRC and the League, and five members elected by the Conference.

MEETINGS OF THE THREE PRESIDENTS

The Chairman of the Standing Commission, the President of the International Committee of the Red Cross and the President of the General Assembly of the League meet once between Standing Commission meetings and whenever one of them shall so request. They present a report at the following session of the Standing Commission.

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS—ICRC

17 avenue de la Paix, 1211 Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 01.

Founded in 1863; assumed present title in 1867. It serves as a neutral intermediary between parties to armed conflicts. It is the guardian of the principles of the Red Cross and promotes international humanitarian law.

PRINCIPLES OF THE RED CROSS

Humanity.

Impartiality.

Neutrality.

Independence.

Voluntary Service. The Red Cross is a voluntary organization not prompted in any way by desire for gain.

Unity. There can be only one Red Cross Society in any one country. It must be open to all. It must carry out its work throughout the whole territory.

Universality.

GENEVA CONVENTIONS

The first Geneva Convention (Geneva Convention for the Amelioration of the Condition of the Wounded and Sick) was signed in 1864 by twelve countries. In 1929 a Convention concerning the treatment of prisoners of war was approved.

Under the following 4 Conventions agreed in 1949, protection is bestowed upon:

1. The wounded and sick in the armed forces, doctors and medical personnel, chaplains.
2. The wounded and sick and medical personnel at sea; the shipwrecked.
3. Prisoners of war.
4. Civilians.

In 1977 two Protocols additional to the Geneva Conventions were approved by the States, in order to improve the protection of civilians during armed conflicts.

* ICRC was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1917 and 1944 and jointly with the League of Red Cross Societies in 1963.

ORGANIZATION

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE

President: ALEXANDRE HAY.

Vice-Presidents: HARALD HUBER, RICHARD PESTALOZZI.

The ICRC is an independent institution of a private character, neutral as regards politics, ideology and religion. It is exclusively composed of Swiss nationals. Members are co-opted, and their total number may not exceed 25. The international character of the ICRC is based on its mission and not on its composition.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

President: ALEXANDRE HAY.

Members: RICHARD PESTALOZZI, JAKOB BURCKHARDT, ATHOS GALLINO, RUDOLF JÄCKLI, ANDRÉE WEITZEL.

FINANCE

The ICRC's work is financed by a voluntary annual grant from governments parties to the Geneva Conventions, voluntary contributions from National Red Cross Societies and by gifts and legacies from private people.

ACTIVITIES

As well as providing medical aid and emergency food supplies in many countries, the ICRC plays an important part in inspecting prison conditions and in tracing missing persons. Examples of its activities during the first half of 1981 include the following:

Africa: assistance for refugees and displaced people in Angola, Ethiopia, Sudan and Uganda; food and medical aid in Chad, where the ICRC was the only humanitarian organization active at the beginning of the year.

Latin America: relief action in El Salvador, together with a campaign to disseminate the principles of the Red Cross in an attempt to protect non-combatants from violence; visits to detainees in Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Haiti and Nicaragua.

Asia: phasing-out of medical assistance in Kampuchea and Thailand, although medical supplies continued to be provided; visits to detainees in Indonesia and the Philippines; dealing with enquiries about missing relatives among refugees from Viet-Nam; medical assistance programme for Afghan refugees in Pakistan.

Middle East: emergency action in Lebanon, providing medical supplies and evacuating the wounded and refugees; visits to prisoner-of-war camps in Iran and Iraq.

PERIODICALS AND PUBLICATIONS

International Review of the Red Cross (every two months): French, English and Spanish editions; short edition Extracts in German.

ICRC Bulletin (monthly): French, English, Spanish and German editions.

Annual Report (editions in Arabic, English, French, German and Spanish).

The Geneva Conventions: texts and commentaries.

The Protocols Additional.

Various publications on humanitarian law and subjects of Red Cross interest.

LEAGUE OF RED CROSS SOCIETIES—LRCS

17 Chemin des Grêts, Petit-Saconnex, Case Postale 276, 1211 Geneva 19, Switzerland

Telephone: (022) 34 55'80.

Founded in 1919, by the American, British, French, Italian and Japanese Red Cross Societies to be a permanent organ of liaison between National Societies.

MEMBERS

National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies in 126 countries in September 1981, with an aggregate youth and adult membership of over 230 million.

AIM AND FUNCTIONS

The general aim of the League is to inspire, encourage, facilitate and promote at all times all forms of humanitarian activities by the National Societies, with a view to the prevention and alleviation of human suffering, and thereby contribute to the maintenance and promotion of peace in the world. The functions of the organization include:

1. acting as the permanent body of liaison, co-ordination and study between the National Societies;

2. encouraging and promoting in every country the establishment and development of an independent and duly recognized National Red Cross Society;

3. organizing international emergency relief actions and assisting National Societies in preparing for relief measures;

4. encouraging the participation of National Societies in activities for safeguarding public health and the promotion of social welfare;

5. officially representing the member Societies in the international field.

FINANCE

The permanent secretariat of the League of Red Cross

Societies is financed by the contributions of Member Societies on a pro-rata basis. Each relief action is financed by contributions specified for that action and development programme projects are also financed on a voluntary basis by National Societies.

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

President: The Hon. Mr. Justice J. A. ADEFARASIN (Nigeria).

The General Assembly is the highest authority of the League and meets every two years. It is composed of representatives from all National Societies members of the League.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Council, which meets every six months, is composed of the President of the League, nine Vice-Presidents and 16 National Societies elected by the Assembly. Its functions include the implementation of decisions of the General Assembly; it also has emergency powers to act between meetings of the Assembly.

ADVISORY COMMITTEES AND FINANCE COMMISSION

Development Programme Advisory Committee.
Disaster Relief Advisory Committee.
Health and Social Service Advisory Committee.

Youth Advisory Committee.
Nursing Advisory Committee.
Finance Commission

The Advisory Committees meet, in principle, once every two years. Members are elected by the Assembly and number between 10 and 16. The Finance Commission, which has seven members, meets twice a year.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: HENRIK BEER (Sweden).

Treasurer-General: EUSTASIO VILLANUEVA VADILLO (Spain).

Deputy Secretary-General: BERTIL PETTERSON (Mexico).

ACTIVITIES

Relief Sector: Assumes the statutory responsibilities of the League in the field of relief to victims of natural disasters, refugees and civilian populations who may be displaced or exposed to abnormal hardship. This activity has three main aspects under the responsibility of three Bureaux:

- (i) Relief Operations: for the co-ordination of relief operations on the international level and execution by the National Society of the stricken country or by the League itself;
- (ii) Supply, Logistics and Warehouses: for the co-ordination and purchase, transport and warehousing of relief supplies;
- (iii) Relief Preparedness: for co-ordination of assistance to National Societies situated in disaster-prone areas in the study and execution of practical measures calculated to prevent disasters and diminish their effects.

Services to National Societies Sector: Promotes and co-ordinates assistance to National Societies in developing their basic structure and their services to the community. Two Bureaux are included in this sector:

- (i) Regional Services: for the implementation of the League's Red Cross Development Programme aiming at co-ordinating assistance to National Societies, with the advice and co-operation of the Technical Services Section, in the fields of health, social welfare, nursing, first aid and training;
- (ii) Youth: Promotes the establishment and development of educational and service programmes for children and youth.

The League maintains close relations with many inter-governmental organizations, the United Nations and its Specialized Agencies, as well as with non-governmental organizations.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY UNION

SECRETARIAT OF THE UNION

Maintains contacts with the National Inter-Parliamentary Groups, organizes meetings held under the auspices of the Union, carries out study programmes and issues publications.

Secretary-General: PIO-CARLO TERENCE (Italy).

Deputy Secretary-General: PIERRE CORNILLON (France).

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The Union promotes personal contacts among members of all Parliaments constituted into National Groups with a view to establishing and developing firm democratic institutions and to advancing international peace and co-operation.

The Union organizes conferences bringing together parliamentarians of different nationalities and ideologies to study objectively political, economic, social and cultural problems of international significance; for example, four Inter-Parliamentary Conferences on European Co-operation and Security (1973-80); the Inter-Parliamentary Symposium on Environment in Europe (1979), dealing with trans-boundary air and water pollution; the international Conference of Parliamentarians on Population and Development (1979).

BUDGET

Contributions from National Groups are the main source of revenue. These are paid annually on a scale fixed by the Council. The Union's budget for 1981 was about 2,900,000 Swiss francs.

The Union operates an International Centre for Parliamentary Documentation (CIDP) which collects and circulates material on the structure and functioning of legislative assemblies throughout the world, and also organizes symposia on questions of parliamentary interest.

The Union has general consultative status, Category 1, with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations (ECOSOC). It has entered into consultative arrangements with UNESCO and also maintains regular contacts with other UN specialized agencies. Co-operation also exists with various regional organizations of a parliamentary nature.

PUBLICATIONS

Inter-Parliamentary Bulletin, Constitutional and Parliamentary Information, Chronicles of Parliamentary Elections, Conference Proceedings, Parliaments of the World: A Reference Compendium, Verbatim records of international symposia.

ISLAMIC DEVELOPMENT BANK

P.O.B. 5925, Jeddah, Saudi Arabia

An international financial institution established in pursuance of the Declaration of Intent issued by a Conference of Finance Ministers of member countries of the Organization of the Islamic Conference, held in Jeddah in December 1973. The Bank formally opened in October 1975.

MEMBERS

There are 40 members (see table of subscriptions below).

AIMS

To encourage economic development and social progress of member countries and Muslim communities, in accordance with the principles of the Islamic Shariah (Sacred law).

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Each member country is represented by a Governor, usually its Finance Minister or his alternate. The Board of Governors is the Supreme Authority of the Bank, and meets annually.

President of the Bank and Chairman of the Board of Executive Directors: Dr. AHMAD MOHAMED ALI (Saudi Arabia).

EXECUTIVE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Consists of 10 members, four of whom are appointed by the four largest subscribers to the capital stock of the Bank; the remaining six are elected by Governors representing the other subscribers. Members of the Executive Board of Directors are elected for three-year terms. Responsible for the direction of the general operations of the Bank.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The authorized capital of the Bank is 2,000 million Islamic Dinars divided into 200,000 shares having a value of 100,000 Islamic Dinars each. The Islamic Dinar is the Bank's unit of account and is equivalent to the value of one Special Drawing Right of the IMF.

The subscribed capital stood at 790 million Islamic Dinars in December 1980.

In January 1981 paid-up capital was 750.5 million Islamic Dinars (U.S. $948.7 million). Saudi Arabia, at the summit meeting of the Organization of the Islamic Conference in January, proposed that this sum should be increased to 2,252 million Islamic Dinars, and itself pledged some 790 million.

ACTIVITIES

During 1975/76 the Islamic Development Bank concentrated on setting up its organization and formulating its policies; financial operations began in 1976. The Bank, which adheres to the Koranic principle forbidding usury, does not grant loans or credits for interest, preferring to help development projects by taking up equity participation in them, or by giving interest-free loans with a charge to cover administrative expenses. Funds not immediately needed for projects are used for foreign trade financing.

particularly for importing commodities to be used in development (such as fertilizers and raw materials) rather than consumer goods. Priority is given to the import of goods from other member countries. By November 1980 total approvals by the Bank had reached 1,245 million Islamic Dinars (U.S. $1,575 million), of which 445 million was for project financing (covering 95 projects in 36 countries) and 799 million was for foreign trade financing (80 operations in 22 countries).

LATIN AMERICAN INTEGRATION ASSOCIATION

(ASOCIACIÓN LATINO-AMERICANA DE INTEGRACIÓN—ALADI)

Cebollati 1552, Casilla de Correo 577, Montevideo, Uruguay

The Latin American Integration Association was established in August 1980 to replace the Latin American Free Trade Association, set up in February 1960.

MEMBERS

Argentina	Colombia	Peru
Bolivia	Ecuador	Uruguay
Brazil	Mexico	Venezuela
Chile	Paraguay

ORGANIZATION

It was envisaged that the Association should have three main organs: a Council of Ministers of Foreign Affairs, an Evaluation and Convergence Conference meeting every three years, and a Committee of Permanent Representatives. These organs would be served by a Secretariat.

Secretary-General: JULIO CÉSAR SCHUFF.

AIMS

The Latin American Free Trade Association (LAFTA) was an intergovernmental organization, created by the Treaty of Montevideo in February 1960 with the object of increasing trade between the Contracting Parties and of promoting regional integration, thus contributing to the economic and social development of the member countries. The treaty provided for the gradual establishment of a free trade area, which would form the basis for a Latin American Common Market. Reduction of tariff and other trade barriers was to be carried out gradually up to 1980.

This scheme, however, made little progress. By 1980 only 14 per cent of annual trade among members could be attributed to LAFTA agreements, and it was the richest states which were receiving most benefit. In June 1980 it was decided that LAFTA should be replaced by a less ambitious, more flexible organization, the Latin American Integration Association (ALADI), established by the 1980 Treaty of Montevideo, which came into force in March 1981. Instead of across-the-board tariff cuts, a system of bilateral preference agreements would be set up, taking into account the different stages of development of the members, and with no definite timetable for the establishment of a full common market.

The members of ALADI were to be divided into three categories: most developed (Argentina, Brazil and Mexico); intermediate (Chile, Colombia, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela); and least developed (Bolivia, Ecuador and Paraguay). ALADI was scheduled to begin operating fully at the beginning of 1983. In 1981 talks were held on renegotiating the trade preference agreements with the countries of the Andean Group which had existed under LAFTA.

THE NOBEL FOUNDATION

Sturegatan 14, 11436 Stockholm, Sweden

The Foundation was established in 1900 under the terms of the will of ALFRED NOBEL, a Swedish chemical engineer, to distribute annual prizes for achievement in physics, chemistry, physiology or medicine, literature and promotion of peace. In 1968 the Bank of Sweden instituted an Alfred Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences and agreed to place an annual amount at the disposal of the Nobel Foundation as a basis for the prize.

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

Tyrgatan 7, Box 19506, 104 32 Stockholm 19

The Nordic Council, an advisory body, was inaugurated in 1953. Finland joined in 1955. The Council, working on the basis of the Treaty of Co-operation between Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden (Treaty of Helsinki of 1962), considers economic, social, cultural, environmental, legal and communications questions. Since 1971 it has acted as the advisory body to the Nordic Council of Ministers (see page 235).

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

COUNCIL

Consists of 78 delegates elected annually from the Parliament of each country (18 each from Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden, and 6 from Iceland) and of about 40 non-voting government representatives. Representation of political parties in each delegation reflects the composition of its national parliament.

Recommendations adopted at the annual sessions are sent to the Nordic Council of Ministers.

Twenty-ninth session, Copenhagen 1981.

PRESIDIUM

Takes charge of the Council's work between sessions. Elected by the Council each year at its plenary assembly, and consists of five members. The President is a member, normally the chairman, of the delegation of the host country.

President: KNUD ENGBAARD (Denmark).

Vice-Presidents:

GUTTORM HANSEN (Norway).
ELSI HETEMÄKI OLANDER (Finland).
LARS KORVALD (Norway).
MATTHIAS A. MATHIESEN (Iceland).
OLOF PALME (Sweden).

STANDING COMMITTEES

The Council members are distributed on five standing committees which meet during and between the Council sessions, and also hold discussions with the Nordic Council of Ministers.

The chairmen are as follows:

Economic Committee: SVANTE LUNDKVIST (Sweden).

Cultural Committee: ÁRNI GUNNARSON (Iceland).

Legal Committee: K. B. ANDERSEN (Denmark).

Social and Environment Committee: ASBJØRN HAUGSVEDT (Norway).

Communications Committee: MARJATTA VÄÄNÄNEN (Finland).

SPECIAL COMMITTEES

Information Committee, Budget Committee.

SECRETARIATS

Each delegation to the Nordic Council has a secretariat at its national parliament.

The Presidium has a secretariat in Stockholm, to which the secretaries of the five standing committees are attached.

Presidium Secretariat: Box 19506, 10432 Stockholm 19;
Sec. GUDMUND SAXRUD.

SECRETARIATS OF DELEGATIONS

Denmark: Christiansborg Ridebane 10, 1218 Copenhagen K; Sec.-Gen. AXEL GORMSEN.

Finland: Eduskuntatalo, 00102 Helsinki 10; Sec.-Gen. HÅKAN BRANDERS.

Iceland: Althinget, Reykjavík; Sec.-Gen. FRÍÐJÓN SIGURDSSON.

Norway: Stortinget, Oslo 1; Sec.-Gen. GUDVIN LÅDER VÆ.

Sweden: Box 7765, 10396 Stockholm; Sec.-Gen. CHRISTER JACOBSON.

FINANCE

The expenses of the delegations are met by the respective countries.

PUBLICATIONS

Proceedings of sessions of the Nordic Council.

Nordisk Utredningsserie (Nordic Official Reports Series) published jointly by the Nordic Council and the Nordic Council of Ministers; reports on studies by the committees, conference reports, treaties, Yearbook of Statistics.

Nordisk Kontakt (fortnightly during the sessions of parliament) containing political information from the member countries.

Pamphlets and other information material.

THE NORDIC COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

St. Olavs gate 29, Oslo 1, Norway

Telephone: (01) 11 47 11.

The Governments of Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden co-operate through the Nordic Council of Ministers. This co-operation is regulated by the revised Treaty of Co-operation between Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden of 1972 and 1974 (revised Treaty of Helsinki) and the Treaty between Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden concerning cultural co-operation of 1971. Unanimous decisions taken by the Nordic Council of Ministers are binding on the member states, when not subject to parliamentary approval in the national assemblies. The Prime Ministers and the Ministers of Defence and Foreign Affairs do not meet within the Nordic Council of Ministers.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

The Nordic Council of Ministers holds formal and informal meetings and is attended by ministers with responsibility for the subject under discussion. Each member state also appoints a minister in its own cabinet as Minister for Nordic Co-operation.

Formal decisions must be taken unanimously, and are binding on the member governments, except in certain cases where ratification in the parliaments is required.

Meetings are concerned with: agreements and treaties, guidelines for national legislation, recommendations from the Nordic Council, financing joint studies, setting up Nordic institutions.

The Council of Ministers reports each year to the Nordic Council on progress in all co-operation between member states as well as on future plans.

SECRETARIAT

Postboks 6753, St. Olavs-Plass, Oslo 1, Norway

There are Divisions for:

1. Co-ordination, budget and legislative questions;
2. Economic Co-operation, industry and energy policy, regional policy, co-operation in the building sector, trade and monetary policy, resources policies, transport, communications, tourism, development aid, farming, forestry and fishing;
3. Social policy and health care, labour market questions, occupational environment, protection of the environment, equality and consumer questions.

Secretary-General: HANS KÜHNE.

SECRETARIAT FOR NORDIC CULTURAL CO-OPERATION

Snaregade 10, 1205, Copenhagen, Denmark

There are Divisions for:

1. Education;

2. Research;
3. General Cultural Activities;
4. Radio and Television (a temporary Division set up in 1978 for inquiry into direct transmission via satellite of Nordic radio and television).

COMMITTEES

Committee of Ministerial Deputies: for final preparation of material for the meetings of Ministers of Nordic Co-operation.

Committees of Senior Civil Servants: prepare the meetings of the Council of Ministers and conduct research at its request. There are a number of sub-committees. The Committees of Senior Civil Servants are for: research and science; consumer questions; co-operation in the building sector; cultural co-operation; industrial and energy policy; labour market questions; legislative questions; monetary and financial questions; occupational environment; protection of the environment; regional policy; social policy and health care; trade and commerce; transport and communications; farming and forestry; foreign aid.

The Committee of Officials for Nordic Cultural Co-operation is assisted by consultative committees for education, research, and general cultural activities.

FINANCE

Joint expenses are divided according to an agreed scale in proportion to the relative national product of the member countries. A 1982 budget of 130.2 million Norwegian kroner was allocated for the Council of Ministers (112 million in 1981). A budget of nearly 200 million Norwegian kroner was allocated for Nordic development assistance projects in 1982.

Various forms of co-operation are financed directly from the national budgets.

NORDIC CO-OPERATION

ECONOMIC

Nordic Investment Bank: founded under an agreement of December 1975 to provide finance and guarantees for the implementation of investment projects and exports; authorized and subscribed capital 400 million Special Drawing Rights of the IMF; the shares of the member countries are: Sweden 45 per cent; Denmark 22 per cent; Norway and Finland 16 per cent each; Iceland one per cent.

The main sectors of the Bank's activities are energy, metal and wood-processing industries (including petroleum extraction) and manufacturing. In 1980 the Bank granted 31 loans amounting to 132 million SDRs, bringing the cumulative total to 726 million.

Chair. PENTTI UUSIVIRTA (Finland); Man. Dir. BERT LINDSTROM (Sweden).

Nordic Industrial Fund: f. 1973 with a capital of 10 million Swedish kronor, to be increased in stages to 50 million. Makes grants, subsidies and loans for industrial research and development projects of interest to more than one member country. The budget for 1982 was 27 million Norwegian kroner.

Nordic Economic Research Council: f. 1980 to promote research and analysis on Nordic economic interdependence, particularly with regard to economic stabilization policies.

NORDTEST: f. 1973 as an inter-Nordic agency for technical testing and standardization; collaborates with the Nordic Committee on Building Regulations.

NORDEL: f. 1963; common authority for electricity supply.

Energy: co-operation within the sector includes studies of energy saving, the use of coal, the introduction of new and renewable sources of energy, and the use of petroleum and gas. There is a special committee for atomic energy.

Foreign aid: the national administrations for overseas development have carried out several projects as a group, and consult with one another frequently.

Regional policy: in January 1979 a draft convention on co-operation between local authorities across frontiers became effective. In April 1979 a Programme on Regional Policy was introduced. Nordrefo is an institute for regional policy research.

Nordic Statistical Secretariat: Copenhagen; publ. Nordic Statistical Yearbook.

Trade: Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden are members of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), which encourages further economic co-operation.

The same countries each have separate treaties with the European Economic Community, providing free trade; Denmark alone is a full member.

CULTURAL

Education: Nordic co-operation in the educational field includes the objective content and means of education, the structure of the educational system and pedagogical development work.

Priority is given to:

1. Secondary education, adult education and vocational training.
2. Projects relevant for all levels of the educational system such as the teaching of Nordic languages and pedagogical research and development.

Research: Nordic co-operation in research comprises information on research activities and research findings, joint research projects, joint research institutions, the methods and means in research policy, the organizational structure of research and a co-ordination of the national research programmes.

Much of the research co-operation activities at the more permanent joint research institutions consists of establishing science contacts in the Nordic areas by means of grants, visiting lecturers, courses and symposia.

At present 18 research institutions and research bodies receive continuous financial support via the Nordic cultural budget.

In many of the cases, these joint Nordic institutions ensure a high international standard that would otherwise have been difficult to maintain at a purely national level.

Cultural activities: Cultural co-operation is concerned with artistic and other cultural exchange between the Nordic countries; activities relating to libraries, museums, radio, television, and film; promotion of activities within organizations with general cultural aims, including youth and sports organizations; the improvement of conditions for the creative and performing arts; and encouragement for artists and cultural workers.

Forty joint Nordic institutions and projects are financed by the budget for Nordic cultural co-operation (amounting to 80 million Danish kroner in 1980). They include the following:

Education:

- Nordic Popular Academy.
- Nordic School Co-operation.
- Nordic Journalist Courses.
- Nordic Domestic Science Academy.
- Nordic Institute for Studies in Urban and Regional Planning.
- Nordic Federation for Medical Instruction.
- Nordic Courses in the Educational Field.

Research:

- Nordic Council for Maritime Biology.
- Nordic Institute for Theoretical Nuclear Physics (NORDITA).
- Nordic Institute of Folklore.
- Nordic Institute of Maritime Law.
- Nordic Geographical and Geological Excursions to Iceland.
- Nordic Council for Ecology.
- Scandinavian Institute for Asian Studies.
- Nordic Council for Physical Oceanography.
- Nordic Committee for Arctic Medical Research.
- Nordic Committee for International Political Studies.
- Nordic Council for Scientific Information and Research Libraries.

Nordic Post-Graduate Courses.
 Nordic Institute of Volcanology.
 Nordic Committee for Accelerator-Based Research.
 Nordic Documentation Centre for Mass Communication Research.
 Secretariat for Nordic Languages.
 Nordic Summer University (subsidy).
 Nordic Association for Research on Latin America (subsidy).

General Cultural Activities:

Nordic Houses in Reykjavík, Iceland, and Thorshavn, Faeroe Islands.
 Nordic Theatre Co-operation (advanced training and visiting performances).
 Nordic Literature Prize.
 Nordic Music Prize.
 Nordic Co-operation in Music.
 Nordic Sami (Lap) Institute.
 Nordic Co-operation between Youth Organizations.
 Translations of Nordic Literature.
 Nordic Co-operation in Art.

The Nordic Cultural Fund: The Fund receives applications within the fields of research, education and general cultural activities. The Fund is part governmental, part parliamentary. The Fund board consists of a member of parliament and a senior civil servant from each of the member states. The Nordic Cultural Fund is located within and administrated by the Secretariat for Nordic Cultural Co-operation in Copenhagen. In 1980 it had 8 million Danish kroner at its disposal.

LEGAL

The five countries have similar legal systems and tend towards uniformity in legislation and interpretation of law. Much of the preparatory committee work within the national administrations on new legislation is carried out through consultation with the neighbour countries.

Citizens of one Nordic country working in another are in many respects given the status of nationals. In all the Nordic countries they already have the right to vote in local elections in the country of residence. The changing of citizenship from one Nordic country to another has been simplified.

There are special extradition facilities between the countries and further stages towards co-operation between the police and the courts have been recommended.

There is a permanent Council for Criminology, a Nordic Institute for Maritime Law in Oslo and a permanent committee for Penalty Law.

SOCIAL WELFARE AND HEALTH

Under the Convention on Social Security, 1955 (renewed in 1981), Nordic citizens have the same rights, benefits and obligations in each Nordic country. A review of the Convention is being made. In 1974 a new agreement was made on arrangements for sickness, pregnancy and childbirth when temporarily in another Nordic country. Uniform provisions exist concerning basic pension and supplementary pension benefits when moving from one Nordic country to another.

In 1981 an agreement was concluded for doctors, dentists, nurses and pharmacists on the standards of competence required for obtaining work in other Nordic countries.

Institutions:

Nordic School of Public Health, Gothenburg, Sweden;
 Scandinavian Institute of Dental Materials, Oslo;
 Nordic Council on Medicines, Uppsala, Sweden;
 Nordic Council on Alcohol and Drug Research, Helsinki;
 The Nordic Committee on Disability, Stockholm.

Other Permanent Bodies:

Scandiatriansplant, under Nordic Committee on Kidney Transplantation, Århus, Denmark;
 The Nordic Medico-Statistical Committee, Copenhagen;
 The Nordic Committee of Social Security Statistics, Helsinki.

LABOUR MARKET

Since 1954 a free labour market has been in force between Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden. Up to 1980 more than one million people had moved across the frontiers in Scandinavia. In Iceland, work permits are required but generally given to Nordic citizens. There is a joint centre for labour market training at Övertorneå in Sweden. The labour market agreement was being reviewed in 1981.

ENVIRONMENT

The Nordic Convention on the protection of the environment was signed in 1974, entering into force in October 1976. The member states undertake to harmonize regulations for protecting the environment, and to assess certain measures affecting neighbouring countries.

The coastal states have also signed a Convention on the Marine Environment of the Baltic, which entered into force in May 1980; special agreements have been concluded between Denmark and Sweden on pollution in the Öresund, and between Finland and Sweden on pollution in the Gulf of Bothnia. In 1978 a joint Nordic Computation Model on road traffic noise was developed.

NORDFORSK (Scandinavian Council for Applied Research) has a special secretariat for environmental research in Helsinki.

COMMUNICATIONS AND TRANSPORT

A Nordic agreement for transport and communications entered into force in 1973. The main areas of co-operation have been road research, urban transport, transport in sparsely populated areas, transport for the disabled and road safety. Earlier agreements cover co-operation in post and telecommunications. Passports are not required for travel within the Nordic region.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION— NATO

1110 Brussels, Belgium

Telephone: 241.00.40.

Founded in 1949 as an international collective defence organization linking a group of European states with the U.S.A. and Canada. France withdrew from the integrated military structure of NATO in 1966 although remaining a member of the Atlantic Alliance. Following the Turkish invasion of Cyprus in 1974, Greece also announced a partial withdrawal from the integrated military structure of NATO; it re-joined in October 1980.

NORTH ATLANTIC COUNCIL

The highest authority of the alliance, composed of representatives of the fifteen member states. It meets at the level of Ministers or Permanent Representatives. Ministerial meetings, attended by Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Defence, Finance or Economic Affairs, are held at least twice a year. At the level of Permanent Representatives it meets at least once a week.

The Secretary-General of NATO is chairman of the Council. Annually, the Foreign Minister of a member state is nominated honorary President, following the English alphabetical order of countries.

The Council also gives political guidance to the military authorities.

Decisions are taken by common consent and not by majority vote. The Council is a forum for wide consultation between member governments on major issues, including political, military, economic and other subjects.

DEFENCE PLANNING COMMITTEE (DPC)

Composed of the member countries taking part in NATO's Integrated Defence System. It is the highest forum for discussion of military policy. Like the Council it meets in both Ministerial and Permanent Representative sessions.

NUCLEAR PLANNING GROUP (NPG)

Meets regularly at the level of Permanent Representatives, and twice yearly with Defence Ministers; 12 countries participate.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES

Committee on the Challenges of Modern Society (CCMS): f. 1969 to examine methods of improving allied co-operation in creating a better environment; undertakes pilot studies of relevance to the member countries; submits reports.

There are also committees for political affairs, economics, armaments, defence review, science, infrastructure, logistics, communications, civil emergency planning, information and cultural relations, and civil and military budgets. In addition other committees deal with specialized subjects such as NATO pipelines, European air space co-ordination, etc.

INTERNATIONAL SECRETARIAT

The Secretary-General is Chairman of the North Atlantic Council, the Defence Planning Committee, the Nuclear Planning Group, and the Committee on the Challenges of Modern Society. He is the head of the International Secretariat, with staff drawn from the member countries.

He has the right to propose items for NATO consultation and is generally responsible for promoting consultation. He is empowered to offer his help informally in cases of disputes between member countries, to facilitate procedures for settlement.

Secretary-General: JOSEPH LUNS (Netherlands).

Deputy Secretary-General: ERIC DA RIN (Italy).

PRINCIPAL DIVISIONS

Division of Political Affairs: maintains political liaison with national delegations and international organizations. Prepares reports on political subjects for the Secretary-General and the Council. Asst. Sec.-Gen. Dr. HANS CHRISTIAN LANKES (Federal Republic of Germany).

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

North Atlantic Treaty Organization

Division of Defence Planning and Policy: studies all matters concerning the defence of the Alliance, especially any with political or economic effect on defence problems, and also the overall financial aspects of defence by country. Asst. Sec.-Gen. W. F. MUMFORD (United Kingdom).

Division of Defence Support: promotes the most efficient use of the Allies' resources in the production of military equipment and studies its standardization. Asst. Sec.-Gen. JOHN B. WALSH (U.S.A.).

Division of Infrastructure, Logistics and Council Operations: supervises the technical and financial aspects of the infrastructure programme. Co-ordinates the operational aspects of the Council's activities, crisis management plans and arrangements. Provides guidance co-ordination and support to the activities of all NATO committees or bodies active in the field of consumer logistics. Asst. Sec.-Gen. D. A. COLLINS (Canada).

Division of Scientific Affairs: advises the Secretary-General on scientific matters of interest to NATO. Responsible for the exchange of scientific information between the civil and military authorities of NATO and the international organizations concerned. Asst. Sec.-Gen. ROBERT CHABBAL (France).

MILITARY ORGANIZATION

MILITARY COMMITTEE (MC)

Composed of the allied Chiefs-of-Staff, or their representatives, of member countries except France; the highest military authority in NATO. Meets at least twice a year at Chiefs-of-Staff level and remains in permanent session with Permanent Military Representatives. It is responsible for making recommendations to the Council and Defence Planning Committee on military matters and for supplying guidance on military questions to Supreme Allied Commanders and subordinate military authorities.

Although France is not a member there is a French Military Mission to the Military Committee for regular consultation.

President: Gen. C. DE JAGER (Netherlands).

Chairman: Admiral ROBERT FALLS (Canada).

3. Responsible to Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic (SACLANT):

SACLANT Anti-submarine Warfare Research Centre (SACLANTGEN): La Spezia, Italy; f. 1962 for research in submarine detection and oceanographic problems.

4. Responsible to Supreme Allied Commander Europe (SACEUR):

SHAPE Technical Centre (STC): The Hague, Netherlands; f. 1960 to provide scientific and technical advice, originally on the formation of an integrated air defence system, subsequently on a broader programme covering force capability and structure; command and control; communications.

FINANCE

As NATO is an international, not a supra-national organization, its member countries decide themselves the amount to be devoted to their defence effort and the form which the latter will assume. Thus, the aim of NATO's defence planning is to develop realistic military plans for the defence of the alliance at reasonable cost. Under the annual Defence Planning Review, the political, military and economic factors are considered in relation to strategy, force requirements and available resources. The procedure for the co-ordination of military plans and defence expenditures rests on the detailed and comparative analysis of the capabilities of member countries. All installations for the use of international forces are financed under a common-funded infrastructure programme.

ORGANISATION COMMUNE AFRICAINE ET MAURICIENNE—OCAM

B.P. 965, Bangui, Central African Republic

Founded February 1965 in succession to the Union africaine et malgache de coopération économique (UAMCE), to accelerate the economic, social, technical and cultural development of member states within the framework of the OAU.

MEMBERS

Benin
Central African Republic
Ivory Coast

Mauritius

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE OF HEADS OF STATE AND OF GOVERNMENT

The supreme authority of OCAM. The Conference takes place every two years.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Composed of Foreign Ministers of member states. Meets once a year in ordinary session. Responsible for implementing certain decisions concerning technical co-operation between OCAM countries and for the supervision of the Secretariat-General as directed by the Conference of Heads of State.

SECRETARIAT-GENERAL

Responsible for the administration of OCAM. The Secretary-General is appointed by the Conference of Heads of State, upon the proposal of the Council of Ministers, for a renewable term of two years. His function is to implement the decisions taken by the Conference of Heads of State and the Council of Ministers.

Secretary-General: M. AMRI SUED (Rwanda).

Directeur de Cabinet, Conseiller Juridique: EMMANUEL SALAMBERE (Upper Volta).

Département des affaires économiques, financières et des transports: Dir. KOVANVI TIGOUÉ (Togo).

Département des affaires culturelles et sociales: Dir. (vacant).

AIMS

The objectives proposed in 1965 included customs reform, possibly leading to the establishment of an African Common Market, and common economic policies covering investment, insurance of trade and restrictions on double taxation. A stabilization fund was projected, to support commodity prices.

Since the 1974 summit at Bangui, the aims of the organization have been expressed in a new form. It was decided to leave political matters to other bodies (principally the UN and the OAU) and concentrate on strengthening African co-operation in economic, technical, cultural and social development. Instead of an all-African Common Market, the aim is more practicably to bring the economic communities of Africa within a single confederation. A solidarity and guarantee fund has been established to encourage credit from overseas and give assistance to the poorest member countries.

AGENCIES

Bureau africain et mauricien de recherches et d'études législatives: Libreville, Gabon; aims to harmonize legislation in member states and to co-ordinate research in the legal field. Dir. M. QUASHIE (Togo).

Centre africain et mauricien de perfectionnement des cadres: Abidjan, Ivory Coast; f. 1974 for training of administrative staff; Admin. JEAN SAKA (Benin).

Centre interafricain de production de films (CIPROFILM): Ouagadougou, Upper Volta; for film production and training of film makers; Dir.-Gen. INOUSSA OUSSEINI (Niger).

Consortium interafricain de distribution cinématographique (CIDC): Ouagadougou, Upper Volta; for distribution of films; Dir.-Gen. INOUSSA OUSSEINI (Niger).

Ecole inter-états d'ingénieurs de l'équipement rural: B.P. 7023, Ouagadougou, Upper Volta; f. 1968 to train rural engineers. The school is also a research centre. Chair. of Admin. Council T. K. GNROFON (Togo); Dir. GEORGES VÉRIDIQUE. Publ. Technical Bulletin.

Ecole inter-états des sciences et médecine vétérinaires: B.P. 5077, Dakar, Senegal; f. 1968; Dir. Prof. AHMADOU LAMINE NDIAYE (Senegal); Sec.-Gen. JOSEPH HEMA FEMBA (Upper Volta).

Fonds de garantie et de coopération: Cotonou, Benin; to guarantee loans made to member states; Dir.-Gen. AMADOU BOUKAR (Niger).

Institut africain d'informatique: Libreville, Gabon; f. 1971 to train computer specialists; Acting Dir. KHAR DIAKHATE (Senegal).

Institut africain et mauricien d'architecture: Lomé, Togo; Dir. G. SORI (Ivory Coast).

ORGANISATION FOR ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION AND DEVELOPMENT—OECD

2 rue André-Pascal, 75775 Paris Cedex 16, France

Telephone: 524 82-00.

Founded September 1961; replaced the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC), established in 1948.

MEMBERS

Australia	France	Japan	Spain
Austria	Federal Republic of Germany	Luxembourg	Sweden
Belgium	Greece	Netherlands	Switzerland
Canada	Iceland	New Zealand	Turkey
Denmark	Ireland	Norway	United Kingdom
Finland	Italy	Portugal	U.S.A.

Yugoslavia participates in the work of the OECD with a special status. The Commission of the European Communities generally takes part in the Organisation's work.

AIMS

To promote economic and social welfare throughout the OECD area by assisting member governments in the formulation of policies designed to this end and by co-ordinating these policies; and to stimulate and harmonize its members' efforts in favour of developing countries.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

COUNCIL

The governing body of the OECD is the Council on which each member country is represented. The Council meets regularly at official level (heads of national delegations with rank of ambassador) and from time to time (usually once a year) at ministerial level. The Council is responsible for all questions of general policy and may establish subsidiary bodies as required to achieve the aims of the Organisation. Decisions and recommendations of the Council are adopted by mutual agreement of all its members.

Chairman of Council at Ministerial level: elected annually.

Chairman of Council at Official level: The Secretary-General.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Each year the Council designates 14 of its members to form the Executive Committee which prepares the work of the Council. It is also called upon to carry out specific tasks where necessary. Apart from its regular meetings, the Committee meets occasionally in special sessions attended by senior government officials.

Chairman: A. F. MADDOCKS (United Kingdom).

AUXILIARY BODIES

The greater part of the work of the OECD is prepared and carried out in its specialized committees and working parties, which number more than 200. The main committees are:

Economic Policy Committee
Economic and Development Review Committee
Environment Committee
Development Assistance Committee
Technical Co-operation Committee
Trade Committee
Payments Committee
Committee on Capital Movements and Invisible Transactions
Committee on International Investment and Multinational Enterprises
Committee on Financial Markets
Committee on Fiscal Affairs

Committee on Restrictive Business Practices
Tourism Committee
Maritime Transport Committee
Consumer Policies Committee
Committee on Agriculture
Fisheries Committee
Committee for Scientific and Technological Policy Education Committee
Industry Committee
Steel Committee
Committee for Energy Policy
Manpower and Social Affairs Committee
Steering Committee of the Programme of Co-operation in the Field of Road Research
Steering Committee of the Programme on Educational Building
High-Level Group on Commodities

AUTONOMOUS AND SEMI-AUTONOMOUS BODIES

The International Energy Agency (see p. 248).

The Nuclear Energy Agency (NEA) (see p. 248).

The Development Centre was set up in 1962. Its purpose is to bring together the knowledge and experience available in member countries of both economic development and the formulation and execution of general policies of economic aid; to adapt such knowledge and experience to the actual needs of countries in the process of development and to put the results at the disposal of these countries by appropriate means Members: all members of the OECD except New Zealand.

President: LOUIS SABOURIN (Canada).

Centre for Educational Research and Innovation (CERI): set up in 1968 to facilitate the introduction of reforms in the educational systems of member countries. Members: all members of the OECD and Yugoslavia.

Director: J. R. GASS (United Kingdom).

SECRETARIAT

The Council, the committees and other bodies in the Organisation are assisted by an international secretariat headed by the Secretary-General.

Secretary-General: EMILE VAN LENNEP (Netherlands) (until April 1982).

Deputy Secretaries-General: JACOB M. MYERSON (U.S.A.), PAUL LEMERLE (France).

Co-ordination for Energy Policies: DR. ULF LANTZKE (Federal Republic of Germany).

Economic Advisor to the Secretary-General: STEPHEN MARRIS (United Kingdom).

Special Counsellors to the Secretary-General: TOMOHIKO KOBAYASHI (Japan), GIAN LUIGI VALENZA (Italy).

PUBLICATIONS

Activities of OECD (Secretary-General's Annual Report).

The OECD Economic Outlook (2 a year).

Economic Surveys by the OECD (annually for each country).

Development Assistance Efforts and Policies (annually).

Foreign Trade Statistics Bulletin (monthly).

Main Economic Indicators (monthly).

OECD Convention and Report of Preparatory Committee.

OECD (a general interest booklet).

News from OECD (monthly).

The OECD Observer (every two months).

Numerous specialized reports, books and statistics on economic and social subjects are also published. Besides the services of local sales agents, there are three Publications and Information Centres, in Tokyo, Japan, in Washington, D.C., U.S.A., and in Bonn, Federal Republic of Germany.

INTERNATIONAL ENERGY AGENCY2 rue André Pascal, 75775 Paris Cedex 16, France

Set up by the Council of the OECD in November 1974 to develop co-operation on energy questions among participating countries.

MEMBERS

Australia	Ireland	Portugal
Austria	Italy	Spain
Belgium	Japan	Sweden
Canada	Luxembourg	Switzerland
Denmark	Netherlands	Turkey
Federal Republic of Germany	New Zealand	United Kingdom
Greece	Norway	U.S.A.

The Commission of the European Communities is represented.

FUNCTIONS

The Agreement on an International Energy Programme was signed in November 1974 and formally entered into force in January 1976. The Programme commits the participating countries of the International Energy Agency to share oil in emergencies, to strengthen their long-term co-operation in order to reduce dependence on oil imports, to increase the availability of information on the oil market and to develop relations with the oil-producing and other oil-consuming countries.

The emergency oil-sharing plan has been established and the IEA ensures that the necessary technical information and facilities are in place so that it can be readily used in the event of a reduction in oil supplies.

The IEA Long-Term Co-operation Programme is designed to strengthen the security of energy supplies and promote stability in world energy markets. It provides for co-operative efforts to conserve energy, to accelerate the development of alternative energy sources by means of both specific and general measures, to step up research and development of new energy technologies and to remove legislative and administrative obstacles to increased energy supplies. Regular reviews of member countries' efforts in the fields of energy conservation and accelerated development of alternative energy sources assess the effectiveness of national programmes in relation to the objectives of the Agency.

The Agency has developed an extensive system of information and consultation on the oil market with a view to obtaining a better idea of probable future developments in the oil market. Another function of the Agency is to develop a long-term co-operative relationship among oil producing and consuming countries. It had observer status on the Energy Commission of the Conference on International Economic Co-operation, providing energy statistics and other technical information to the Commission.

In December 1979 IEA members agreed on national petroleum import ceilings for 1980 and 1985.

A 40-year strategy for energy research and development was launched in November 1980. It covers research on coal and nuclear power, oil conservation, development of solar, biomass and geo-thermal energy, and provides policy direction for projects.

GOVERNING BOARD

Composed of ministers or senior officials of the member governments. Decisions may be taken by a weighted majority on a number of specified subjects, which include aspects of stockpiling, oil-sharing contingency plans and relations with the oil companies; a simple weighted majority is required for procedural decisions and decisions implementing specific obligations in the agreement. Unanimity is required only if new obligations, not already specified in the agreement, are to be undertaken.

The Governing Board is assisted by four standing groups, on:

- Emergency questions;
- Long-term co-operation;
- Oil market;
- Relations with producer and other consumer countries.

There are also Coal and Gas Industry Advisory Boards.

SECRETARIAT

Chairman: HIRONICHI MIYAZAKI (Japan).

Executive Director: Dr. ULF LANTZKE (Federal Republic of Germany).

Deputy Executive Director: J. WALLACE HOPKINS (U.S.A.).

OECD NUCLEAR ENERGY AGENCY—NEA38 boulevard Suchet, 75016 Paris, France*Tel.: 524-8200.

Set up in February 1958, its functions are confined to the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. Originally a European agency, the Nuclear Energy Agency has since admitted four of the five OECD members outside Europe.

MEMBERS

All members of OECD except New Zealand.

FUNCTIONS

The main purpose of the Agency is to promote international co-operation within the OECD area for the development and application of nuclear power for peaceful purposes through international research and development projects and exchange of scientific and technical experience and information. The Agency also maintains a continual survey with the co-operation of other organizations, notably the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), of world uranium resources, production and demand, and of economic and technical aspects of the nuclear fuel cycle.

An expanding part of the Agency's work is devoted to safety and regulatory aspects of nuclear energy, including the development of uniform standards governing safety and health protection, and a uniform legislative regime for nuclear liability and insurance.

ORGANIZATION

(as at September 1980)

STEERING COMMITTEE FOR NUCLEAR ENERGY

Chairman: H. MURATA (Japan).

Vice-Chairmen: J. D. CUNNINGHAM (Ireland), V. O. ERIKSEN (Norway);

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: IAN G. K. WILLIAMS (United Kingdom).

Deputy Director-General: WILLIAM H. HANNUM (U.S.A.).

OTHER MAIN COMMITTEES

Committee for Technical and Economic Studies on Nuclear Energy Development and the Fuel Cycle;

Committee on the Safety of Nuclear Installations;

Committee on Radiation Protection and Public Health;

Radioactive Waste Management Committee;

Group of Governmental Experts on Third Party Liability in the Field of Nuclear Energy;

Co-ordinating Group on Gas-Cooled Fast Reactor Development;

NEA Nuclear Data Committee (NEANDC);

NEA Committee on Reactor Physics (NEACRP).

JOINT PROJECTS

Eurochemic (European Company for Chemical Processing of Irradiated Fuels): Mol, Belgium; international company f. 1959 to build and operate an experimental plant for reprocessing used uranium fuels from nuclear reactors. Between 1966 and 1974 it treated well over 200 tons of irradiated fuels from more than 30 reactors.

The plant ceased operation in 1974 and a waste management programme was developed for the solidification, conditioning and storage of radioactive waste. A convention signed in 1978 provides for the progressive transfer of the company's installations to the Belgian government.

The last transfer of property is scheduled for the end of 1981 and the Company is expected to go into liquidation on July 27th, 1982.

Halden Project: Halden, Norway; experimental boiling heavy water reactor, which became an OECD project in 1958. From 1964, under successive agreements with participating countries, the reactor has been used for long-term testing of water reactor fuels and for research into automatic computer-based control of nuclear power stations. Nuclear energy research institutions and authorities in ten countries are supporting the project. An extension of the Halden Agreement provides for continuation of the project until 1981.

International Project on Food Irradiation: Karlsruhe, Federal Republic of Germany; began in 1971; the project runs a joint programme of wholesomeness testing with laboratory animals of a range of irradiated food items and conducts systematic reviews of all available data from national institutes. The scheme is jointly sponsored by three international agencies—NEA, IAEA and FAO, and 25 countries are participating.

COMMON SERVICE

NEA Data Bank: Saclay, France; set up in 1978 in succession to the Computer Programme Library and the Neutron Data Compilation Centre, the Data Bank allows the 17 participating countries to share large computer programmes used in reactor calculations, and nuclear data applications. It also operates as one of a worldwide network of four nuclear data centres.

ORGANIZATION OF AFRICAN UNITY—OAU

P.O.B. 3242, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia

Telephone: 4 74 80.

The Charter of the Organization of African Unity was signed on May 25th, 1963, in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. It superseded the Charter for the "Union of African States" adopted in January 1961 at a conference in Casablanca, Morocco, which provided for a degree of political union, and the association formed at a conference in Monrovia, Liberia, which approved basic principles later incorporated into the OAU Charter but did not imply political integration. All but two of the then 32 independent black African nations signed the Charter. The remaining two, Morocco and Togo, signed later and since that time all African states have joined the OAU upon gaining independence. The aims of the OAU are:

1. To promote unity and solidarity among African states.
2. To intensify and co-ordinate efforts to improve living standards in Africa.
3. To defend sovereignty, territorial integrity and independence of African states.
4. To eradicate all forms of colonialism from Africa.
5. To promote international co-operation in keeping with the Charter of the United Nations.

1981/82: U.S. $19,515,071.

HISTORY

There were various attempts at establishing an inter-African organization before the OAU Charter was drawn up. In November 1958 Ghana and Guinea (later joined by Mali) drafted a Charter which was to form the basis of a Union of African States. In January 1961 a conference was held at Casablanca, attended by the heads of state of Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco, and representatives of Libya and of the provisional government of the Algerian Republic (GPRA). Tunisia, Nigeria, Liberia and Togo declined the invitation to attend. An African Charter was adopted and it was decided to set up an African Military Command and an African Common Market.

Between October 1960 and March 1961 three conferences were held by French-speaking African countries, at Abidjan, Brazzaville and Yaoundé. None of the twelve countries which attended these meetings had been present at the Casablanca Conference. These conferences led eventually to the signing in September 1961, at Tananarive, of a charter establishing the Union africaine et malgache, now the Organisation commune africaine et mauricienne (see page 244).

In May 1961 a conference was held at Monrovia, attended by the heads of state or representatives of nineteen countries: Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo Republic (ex-French), Dahomey, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ivory Coast, Liberia, Madagascar, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Somalia, Togo, Tunisia and Upper Volta. They met again (with the exception of Tunisia and with the addition of the ex-Belgian Congo Republic) in January 1962 at Lagos, and set up a permanent secretariat and a standing committee of Finance Ministers, and accepted a draft charter for an Organization of Inter-African and Malagasy States.

It was the Conference of Addis Ababa, held in 1963, which finally brought together African states despite the regional, political and linguistic differences which divided them. The Foreign Ministers of 32 African states attended the Preparatory Meeting held in May: Algeria, Burundi, Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Congo (Léopoldville), Dahomey, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ghana, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Liberia, Libya, Madagascar, Mali, Mauritania, Morocco, Niger, Nigeria, Rwanda, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Somalia, Sudan, Tanganyika, Togo, Tunisia, Uganda, United Arab Republic, Upper Volta.

The topics discussed by the meeting were: (1) creation of the Organization of African States; (2) co-operation among African states in the following fields: economic and social; education, culture and science; collective defence; (3) decolonization; (4) apartheid and racial discrimination; (5) effects of economic groupings on the economic development of Africa; (6) disarmament; (7) creation of a Permanent Conciliation Commission; (8) Africa and the United Nations.

The Heads of State Conference which opened on May 23rd drew up the Charter of the Organization of African Unity, which was then signed by the heads of thirty states on May 25th, 1963. The Charter was essentially functional and reflected a compromise between the concept of a loose association of states favoured by the Monrovia Group and the federal idea supported by the Casablanca Group, and in particular by Ghana.

PRINCIPAL EVENTS

1963		1974
May	Conference of Independent African States at Addis Ababa agreed to set up OAU. Co-ordinating Committee for Liberation Movements set up in Addis Ababa.	Jan.	OAU meeting with OAPEC on oil supplies and the future formation of the Arab Bank for the Economic Development of Africa (BADEA).

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

with the reorganized ANC, to seek a negotiated settlement with the Rhodesian Government.

1976

- Jan. Emergency Conference of Heads of State, Addis Ababa, to discuss the situation in Angola. Support was divided evenly between recognition of the MPLA Government in Luanda and an appeal for a government of national unity.
- Feb. On recognition by a majority of its members, the OAU recognized the MPLA Government in Luanda and admitted Angola as its 47th member.
- June–July Thirteenth Assembly of Heads of State, Port Louis, Mauritius, prohibited member states from recognizing Transkei; approved new guerrilla campaigns in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia), the earlier Dar-es-Salaam Declaration being considered invalid on account of intransigence by the Salisbury Government.

1977

- Jan.–Feb. 28th Session of Liberation Committee passed a resolution giving full support of the OAU to the Patriotic Front in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) as opposed to the other leaders of the formerly unified ANC. This resolution, however, was never endorsed by any subsequent session of the Council of Ministers.
- March Summit conference of member states of Arab League and OAU held in Cairo, Egypt. Decision on increased aid to African states.
- Aug. Mediation Committee set up to arbitrate in the Ogaden war reaffirmed the inviolability of colonial boundaries.

1978

- Feb. Thirtieth session of the Council of Ministers, Tripoli, Libya, condemned the internal agreement plans in Rhodesia.
- July Fifteenth Assembly of Heads of State, Khartoum, Sudan. Delegation from Comoros expelled from session as representatives of Government installed by mercenaries.

1979

- Feb. 32nd session of Council of Ministers, Nairobi, Kenya, reinstated Comoros delegation, expelled in July 1978, and recommended the establishment of an African Economic Community. Meeting prolonged due to disagreement over Western Sahara issue.

Organization of African Unity

- April Adoption of Convention of Pan-African News Agency (PANA).
- July Sixteenth Assembly of Heads of State, Monrovia, Liberia. Controversy over Tanzanian role in overthrow of Idi Amin in Uganda. Walk-out by delegations of Arab League states during President Sadat's defence of Camp David peace agreement with Israel. Call for special commission to revise OAU charter and create joint African defence force. On Zimbabwe, affirmation of support for the "front-line" states and the Patriotic Front.

- May First economic summit resolved to take steps towards establishment of an African Common Market by year 2000; adopted "Lagos Plan of Action" to this end.
- July Seventeenth Assembly of Heads of State, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Decision on admitting the Sahrawi Arab Democratic Republic (already recognized by 26 members) postponed and referred to ad hoc committee, after Morocco threatened to leave the OAU if admission was granted. Establishment of an OAU force in Chad recommended.
- Sept. Committee on Western Sahara announced a six-point ceasefire plan, to include a referendum organized by the OAU with assistance from the UN.

1981

- Jan. Conference on Chad and Libya condemned the proposed merger of the two countries, demanded the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Chad and decided to send an African force to maintain peace there and supervise elections. A meeting of Ministers of Justice approved an African Charter on Human and People's Rights which (subject to ratification by a majority of OAU members) would establish a Commission to investigate violations of human rights.
- Feb. Meeting of OAU foreign ministers in Addis Ababa supported proposals for an intensified guerrilla war in Namibia and mandatory economic sanctions against South Africa to persuade it to negotiate on Namibian independence.
- July Eighteenth Assembly of Heads of State, Nairobi, Kenya. Morocco agreed to hold a referendum in the Western Sahara. A ministerial committee was created to investigate the Nigerian-Cameroon border dispute.

1889-90 First International Conference of American States: Washington. Founded the International Union of American Republics and established a central office, the Commercial Bureau, the purpose of which was the "prompt collection and distribution of commercial information".

1910 Fourth Conference: Buenos Aires. Name changed to Union of American Republics. The name of its principal organ was changed from Commercial Bureau to Pan American Union.

1923 Fifth Conference: Santiago, Chile. Title confirmed as Union of Republics of the American Continent, with the Pan American Union as its permanent organ.

1928 Sixth Conference: Havana. The Governing Board and Pan American Union were prohibited from exercising political functions.

1945 Inter-American Conference on Problems of War and Peace: Mexico City.
The Act of Chapultepec established a system of Continental Security for the American States.
Reorganization of the Inter-American system leading to the declaration of the Charter.

1947 Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance: Rio de Janeiro. Set up a joint security pact for the defence of the Western Hemisphere against attack from outside and for internal security. The Treaty has been invoked sixteen times.

1948 Ninth Conference: Bogotá. Member Governments signed the Charter of the Organization of American States.

1950 OAS signed agreements with ILO and UNESCO.

1954 Tenth Conference: Caracas, Venezuela. Adopted the Declaration of Solidarity for the Preservation of the Political Integrity of the American States against the Intervention of International Communism.

1959 An Act was passed by twenty-one American States to establish the Inter-American Development Bank (see page 213).

1960 Inter-American Development Bank founded, February.

Inter-American Telecommunications network planned. Total cost U.S. $232m.
Bogotá Act signed September by members of Inter-American Economic Conference. Proposes a mutual aid plan.

Committee established to co-ordinate the activities of OAS, the Inter-American Development Bank and the Economic Commission for Latin America (ECLA).

1962 Cuba suspended from OAS at meeting of Foreign Ministers.

Protocol of Amendment to the Rio Treaty signed at conference of Plenipotentiaries, San José, Costa Rica.
- 1976 Sixth General Assembly; chief resolutions concerned human rights, the U.S. Trade Act of 1974 and transnational enterprises. It also resolved to hold a Special Assembly to review matters concerning inter-American co-operation for development. The Assembly proclaimed a Decade of Women 1976-85: Equality, Development and Peace. Honduras and El Salvador signed the Act of Managua to end a series of border incidents between them.
- 1977 The Seventh General Assembly was held in Grenada, a new member state. The delegations devoted attention to the question of human rights, adopting four resolutions on the subject and a strong resolution condemning terrorist activities in the hemisphere and in the world. The - financial problems of many of the countries, caused by the energy crisis and their less-than-satisfactory positions in international trade, was a matter of continuing concern. 1978 was declared Inter-American Rural Youth Year. Suriname became the twenty-sixth OAS member state in 1977.

- 1978 The Eighth General Assembly was held in Washington, D.C.; chief resolutions again concerned human rights. Five resolutions were adopted, among them one calling for member states to co-operate with the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights in on-site inspections, and another recommending the establishment of an Inter-American Court of Human Rights in San José, Costa Rica. In view of the U.S.A.'s announced intention to reduce its quota, the Permanent Council received a mandate to develop a new formula to finance the OAS programme budget. Funds were authorized for purchase of new OAS headquarters under construction in Washington, D.C.
- 1979 The Inter-American Court of Human Rights was formally established in San José, Costa Rica, its members installed, and the statutes governing its operation were adopted.
- 1980 The Permanent Council met in July and passed a resolution condemning the military coup in Bolivia and deploring the interruption of the return to democracy there. In November the Tenth General Assembly named Argentina, Chile, El Salvador, Haiti, Paraguay and Uruguay as countries of special concern with regard to human rights violations (but avoided condemning them outright after Argentina threatened to withdraw from the organization if this was done).

Executive Secretary: DIEGO DE FIGUEIREDO (Brazil).

Inter-American Juridical Committee: Rua Senador Vergério, 81 3º Andar, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; founded 1948 as the Inter-American Council of Jurists, charter amended 1970. Composed of eleven jurists, nationals of different member states, elected for a period of four years with the possibility of re-election once. Equitable geographical distribution is sought as far as possible, and a proportion of members are replaced each year. The Committee's purpose is to serve as an advisory body to the Organization on juridical matters; to promote the progressive development and codification of international law and to study juridical problems related to the integration of the developing countries in the hemisphere, and in so far as may appear desirable the possibility of attaining uniformity in legislation. Meetings are held at least annually for a period of up to three months. Special meetings can also be called.

Chairman: WILLIAM R. DOUGLAS (Barbados).

Inter-American Council for Education, Science and Culture: c/o General Secretariat, Washington; founded 1970. The Council is composed of one representative from each member state, appointed by their respective governments. The Secretary-General of OAS and the Executive Secretary of the Council participate without voting rights. The Council meets once a year with special meetings when necessary. Its principal purpose is to promote friendly relations and mutual understanding between the peoples of the Americas through educational, scientific and cultural co-operation and exchange between member states, in order to raise the cultural level of the peoples.

The Council has a permanent executive committee and three committees in charge of carrying out regional development programmes in the fields of education, science and technology, and culture.

Executive Secretary: JORGE L. ZELAYA CORONADO.

Inter-American Nuclear Energy Commission: c/o General Secretariat, Washington; founded 1959. The Commission is made up of one delegate from each of the member states, and the Secretary-General of OAS (who may speak but not vote). Regular meetings are held every two years.

The Chairman and Vice-Chairman are elected by and from the members and hold office until the next regular meeting.

The Commission may set up such working Committees as it considers necessary. The committees elect their own Chairman and Rapporteur from among their members. Currently there are two standing committees: the Technical Advisory Committee and the Juridical Committee.

IANEC advises and assists member states in developing and co-ordinating research and training in nuclear energy. In addition to providing direct aid to Latin American institutions for work in development and research, IANEC also sends professors and researchers, finances the development of courses and defrays the expenses of Fellows in the training centres. It also distributes information and recommends public health measures.

Since 1959 the Commission has undertaken a survey of facilities available in Latin American universities and has established an Advisory Committee to make recommendations on scientific and engineering training. In 1963 studies were undertaken on nuclear power in Latin America and on civil liability in the field of nuclear energy.

In December 1960 an agreement for co-operation was signed between IANEC and the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and in 1963 a memorandum was exchanged between the secretariats of IANEC and EURATOM establishing co-operation. Several meetings, workshops and symposia have been co-sponsored by IANEC and IAEA.

Since 1968 IANEC has organized periodic Latin American Conferences on radiochemistry, agricultural production, the use of radio-isotopes, hydrology and food irradiation. It has held a number of meetings and study groups on other topics related to nuclear energy.

IANEC is now working on a common inter-American strategy aimed at promoting utilization of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes throughout Latin America and the Caribbean, particularly in the areas of public health, agriculture, industry and technological development. During a meeting in La Paz, Bolivia, in September 1981 IANEC experts considered the possibility of establishing a regional information centre aimed at making that promotion possible.

Executive Secretary: VLADIMIR JACKOVLEV

Pan-American Highway Congresses: c/o General Secretariat, Washington; inaugurated 1925 to promote the construction of a highway to link the U.S.A. with Central and South America. Congresses are held every four years to promote road building and inform member governments, the Organization of American States and the Inter-American Economic and Social Council on matters relating to Highway planning, construction and maintenance and traffic safety.

The Permanent Executive Committee is attached to the Inter-American Economic and Social Council. Composed of specialists representing eleven of the member countries, nine elected by Congress. Its function is to implement the resolutions of Congress. It meets at least once a year.

Technical Committees of Experts are set up by Congress, as necessary. There are three Permanent Committees: Planning, Highway Studies and Construction and Maintenance, Highway Operations; eight subcommittees and four working groups:

Darien Subcommittee: Created in 1954 to promote interest in the construction of a road to connect the existing highway systems of North and South America through the Darien region of Panama and adjacent area of Colombia.

Subcommittee on the Pan American Transversal Highway in South America; Created in 1963 to promote the construction of a highway to connect Paranaguá, Brazil, with Asunción, La Paz and Lima.

Subcommittee on highway vocabulary.

Subcommittee on the use of computers in the highway field.

Subcommittee for the updating of inter-American handbook on traffic control mechanisms.

Subcommittee on the updating of provisions on maximum load and size limits for motor vehicles.

Subcommittee on studies and evaluation of the effects of the energy crisis in motorized transportation.

Pan-Amazonic Highway Subcommittee: Subcommittee created 1965 for the construction of a highway to establish a connection between the Pacific Ocean and the Amazon basin, so as to take advantage of river transportation throughout the length of the Amazon River and its principal tributaries.

Working group charged with preparing an evaluating manual on economic priorities for resurfacing of roads.

Working group on the application of photometric and photoevaluation techniques in highway projects.

Working group on criteria for manpower utilization in building and maintaining roads.

Working group on selection of construction firms.

6. To strengthen the struggle of all Muslim people with a view to safeguarding their dignity, independence and national rights; and
7. To create a suitable atmosphere for the promotion of co-operation and understanding among member states and other countries.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

SUMMIT CONFERENCES

The supreme body of the Organization is the Conference of Heads of State, which met in 1969 at Rabat, Morocco, in 1974 at Lahore, Pakistan, and in January 1981 at Mecca, Saudi Arabia, when it was decided that summit conferences would be held every three years in future.

CONFERENCES OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

Conferences take place annually. An extraordinary session was held for the first time in January 1980 to discuss the situation in Afghanistan; further extraordinary sessions were held in July, September and October.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: HABIB CHATTI (Tunisia).

Deputy Secretaries-General:

Political affairs: Dr. CIHAD FETHI TEVETOGLU (Turkey).

Cultural affairs: KACEM ZHIRI (Morocco).

At the summit conference in January 1981 it was decided that an Islamic Court of Justice should be established.

ACTIVITIES

The first summit conference of Islamic leaders (representing 24 states) took place in 1969 following the burning of the Al Aqsa Mosque in Jerusalem. At this conference it was decided that Islamic governments should "consult together with a view to promoting close co-operation and mutual assistance in the economic, scientific, cultural and spiritual fields, inspired by the immortal teachings of Islam". Thereafter the Foreign Ministers of the countries concerned met annually, and adopted the Charter of the Organization of the Islamic Conference in 1972.

At the second Islamic summit conference (Lahore, 1974), the Islamic Solidarity Fund was established, together with a committee of representatives which later evolved into the Islamic Commission for Economic, Social and Cultural Affairs. Subsequently, numerous other subsidiary bodies have been set up (see above).

The Organization is also active at a political level. From the beginning it called for vacation of Arab territories by Israel, recognition of the rights of Palestinians and of the Palestine Liberation Organization as their sole legitimate representative, and the restoration of Jerusalem to Arab rule. The 1981 summit conference called for a jihad (holy war—though not necessarily in a military sense) "for the liberation of Jerusalem and the occupied territories"; this was to include an Islamic economic boycott of Israel.

The first extraordinary Conference of Foreign Ministers was held in Islamabad, Pakistan, in January 1980. The member states called for the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan and suspended Afghanistan's membership of the organization. The Conference also reaffirmed the importance of the Iranian Islamic Republic's sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence, and adopted a resolution opposing any foreign pressures exerted on Islamic countries in general and Iran in particular. The Conference further asked members not to participate in the 1980 Olympics unless the Soviet troops had withdrawn from Afghanistan; and adopted a resolution condemning armed aggression against Somalia and denouncing the presence of military forces of the Soviet Union and some of its allies in the Horn of Africa. The 11th Conference of Ministers took place in Islamabad in May 1980, at which the problems in Afghanistan and Iran continued to be major topics of discussion, and a special committee was set up to conduct consultations on Afghanistan. Mediation in the Gulf war between Iran and Iraq was also attempted: a "goodwill mission", headed by the Secretary-General of the Organization, was established in September 1980 and suggested a ceasefire supervised by an observer force of troops drawn from Islamic countries, but the terms were rejected by the protagonists.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

THE CONFERENCE

Supreme authority of the Organization, responsible for the formulation of its general policy. It consists of representatives of member countries, decides upon reports and recommendations submitted by the Board of Governors. Meets at least twice a year. It approves the appointment of Governors from each country and elects the Chairman of the Board of Governors. It works on the unanimity principle.

THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Directs management of the Organization; implements resolutions of the Conference; draws up an annual Budget. It consists of one Governor for each member country, and meets at least twice a year.

THE ECONOMIC COMMISSION

A specialized body operating within the framework of the Secretariat, with a view to assisting the Organization in promoting stability in international oil prices at equitable levels; consists of a Board, national representatives and a commission staff; the Board meets at least twice a year.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: Dr. MARC S. NAN NGUEMA (Gabon).

Office of the Secretary-General: Provides him with executive assistance in carrying out contacts with governments, organizations and delegations, in matters of protocol and in the preparation for and co-ordination of meetings.

Research Division:

Energy Studies Department: Conducts a continuous programme for research in energy and related matters; monitors, forecasts and analyses developments in the energy and petrochemical industries; and the evaluation of hydrocarbons and products and their non-energy uses.

Economics and Finance Department: Analyses economic and financial issues of significant interest; in particular those related to international financial and monetary matters, and to the international petroleum industry.

Data Services Department:

Computer Section: Maintains and expands information services to support the research activities of the Secretariat and those of member countries.

Statistics Unit: Collects, collates and analyses statistical information from both primary and secondary sources.

Personnel and Administration Department: Responsible for all organization methods, provision of administrative services for all meetings, personnel matters, budgets, accounting and internal control.

Public Information Department: Responsible for a central public relations programme; production and distribution of publications, films, slides and tapes; and communication of OPEC objectives and decisions to the world at large.

Legal Affairs Unit: Undertakes special and other in-house legal studies and reports to ascertain where the best interests of the Organization and member countries lie.

OPEC News Agency: f. 1980 to provide information on OPEC to about 70 countries.

RECORD OF EVENTS

- 1960 First OPEC conference held in Baghdad, September; meetings to be held twice yearly, secretariat to be formed.
- 1961 Second conference, Caracas, January. Qatar admitted to membership; Board of Governors formed and statutes agreed.
- 1962 Fourth conference, Geneva, April and June. Protests addressed to oil companies against price cuts introduced in August 1960. Indonesia and Libya admitted to membership.
- 1964 Seventh conference, Jakarta, November. Settlement of the royalties issue negotiated, giving producers an increased share of profits. OPEC Economic Commission established.
- 1965 Ninth conference, Tripoli, July. Agreement on a two-year joint production programme, implemented from 1965 to 1967, to limit annual growth in output to secure adequate prices.
- 1967 Abu Dhabi admitted to membership.
- 1968 Fifteenth conference (extraordinary), Beirut, January. Accepted offer on elimination of discounts submitted by oil companies following negotiations in November 1967.
- 1969 Algeria admitted to membership.
- 1970 Twenty-first conference, Caracas, December. Tax on income of oil companies raised to 55 per cent.
- 1971 Negotiations between OPEC and oil companies on Gulf oil prices broke down, January; OPEC members prepared to legislate unilaterally to set posted prices and tax rates.
Twenty-second conference (extraordinary), Teheran, February. Five-year agreement between the six producing countries in the Gulf and 23 international oil companies (Teheran Agreement).
Twenty-fourth conference, Vienna, July. Nigeria admitted to membership.
- 1972 Meetings between OPEC and oil companies, Geneva, January. Companies agreed to adjust oil revenues of the largest producers after changes in currency exchange rates (Geneva Agreement).
- 1973 Meeting between OPEC and oil companies, Cairo, April, discussed OPEC's demand for compensation following 10 per cent devaluation of U.S. dollar in February.
Agreement with companies reached under which posted prices of crude oil were raised by 11.9 per cent and a mechanism installed to make monthly adjustments to prices in future (Second Geneva Agreement).
Thirty-fourth conference, Vienna, June. Ministerial Committee formed to review world energy situation.
Thirty-fifth conference (extraordinary), Vienna, September. Gulf states proposed negotiations with oil companies to revise the Teheran Agreement. Negotiations broke down on October 12th. On 16th, the Gulf states held a meeting and, refusing to negotiate further with the companies, unilaterally declared 70 per cent increases in posted prices, from $3.01 to $5.11 per barrel.

Thirty-sixth conference, Teheran, December. Posted price increased by nearly 130 per cent from $5.11 to $11.65 per barrel from January 1st, 1974. Ecuador admitted to full membership, Gabon became an associate member.

- 1974 Thirty-seventh conference (extraordinary), Geneva, January. As a result of Saudi opposition to the December price increase, prices were held at current level for first quarter (and subsequently for the remainder of 1974). Abu Dhabi's membership transferred to United Arab Emirates.
Meeting, Quito, June, increased royalties charged to oil companies from 12.5 to 14.5 per cent in all member states except Saudi Arabia.
Meeting, Vienna, September, increased governmental take by about 3.5 per cent through further increases in royalties on equity crude to 16.67 per cent and in taxes to 65.65 per cent, except in Saudi Arabia.
- 1975 OPEC's first summit conference was held in Algiers in March. Gabon admitted to full membership. Meeting in Gabon in June, Conference proposed that OPEC oil prices should be quoted in Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) of the IMF, instead of U.S. dollars. It was also proposed that prices should be indexed to world inflation rates.
A ministerial meeting in September agreed to raise prices by 10 per cent for the period until June 1976. It referred the question of pricing oil in SDRs to the committee of Finance Ministers. The year's second meeting of Conference, in Vienna in December, ended abruptly when a terrorist gang kidnapped some of the participants.
- 1976 The OPEC Special Fund was created in May. Meeting in Bali, Indonesia, in May, Conference allowed the prices agreed in September 1975 to continue.
At the year's second meeting of Conference, in Doha, Qatar, December, a general 15 per cent rise in basic prices was proposed and supported by eleven member states. This was to take place in two stages: a 10 per cent rise as of January 1st, 1977, and a further 5 per cent rise as of July 1st, 1977. However, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates decided to raise their prices by 5 per cent only.
- 1977 Forty-ninth conference, Saltsjöbaden, near Stockholm, Sweden, July.
Following an earlier waiver by 9 members of the 5 per cent second stage of the price rise agreed at Doha, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

1977 announced that they would both raise their prices (cont.) by 5 per cent. As a result, a single level of prices throughout the organization was restored.

Because of continued disagreements between the moderates, led by Saudi Arabia and Iran, and the radicals, led by Algeria, Libya and Iraq, the year's second conference at Caracas, December, was unable to settle on an increase in prices.

1978 Informal Consultative Conference, Taif, Saudi Arabia, May.

Ministerial Committee from six member states established to draw up long-term pricing and production strategy. Production ceilings of members lowered.

Fifty-first conference, Geneva, June. Price levels to remain stable until the end of 1978. Committee of Experts, chaired by Kuwait, met in July to consider ways of compensating for the effects of the depreciation of the U.S. dollar.

At the fifty-second Conference in December 1978 it was decided to raise prices by instalments of 5 per cent, 3.8 per cent, 2.3 per cent and 2.7 per cent. These would bring a rise of 14.5 per cent over nine months, but an average increase of 10 per cent for 1979.

1979 At an extraordinary meeting in Geneva at the end of March it was decided to raise prices by 9 per cent. Many members maintained surcharges they had imposed in February after Iranian exports were halted.

Fifty-fourth Conference, Geneva, June. Agreed minimum and maximum prices which seemed likely to add between 15 and 20 per cent to import bills of consumer countries.

Fifty-fifth Conference, Caracas, December. Recommended replenishment of the Opec Fund and agreed in principle to convert the Fund into a development agency with its own legal personality.

Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries

Decided to set up OPEC News Agency based at the Secretariat.

1980 Fifty-seventh Conference, Algiers, June. Decided to set the price for a marker crude at U.S. $32.00 per barrel, and that the value differentials which could be added above this ceiling (on account of quality and geographical location) should not exceed $5.00 per barrel.

The planned OPEC summit meeting in Baghdad in November was postponed indefinitely because of the Iran-Iraq war; issues which were to have been discussed included the linking of petroleum prices to growth rates and inflation in Western countries, and a reappraisal of OPEC aid.

In spite of the war, and the capture of the Iranian petroleum minister by Iraqis in October, the scheduled price-fixing meeting of petroleum ministers went ahead in Bali in December, with both Iraqis and Iraqis present. A ceiling price of U.S. $41.00 per barrel was fixed for premium crudes.

1981 In May attempts to achieve price reunification were made, but Saudi Arabia refused to increase its $32.00 per barrel price unless the higher prices charged by other countries were lowered. Saudi Arabia declared that it had been over-producing in order to bring about a glut and force prices down. Most of the other OPEC countries agreed to cut production by 10 per cent so as to reduce the surplus. An emergency meeting in Geneva in August again failed to unify prices, although Saudi Arabia agreed to make a production cut of a million barrels per day, to be reviewed monthly.

In October OPEC countries agreed to increase the Saudi marker price by 6 per cent to $34 per barrel, with a ceiling price of $38 per barrel. This price structure was intended to remain in force until the end of 1982. At the December summit meeting in Abu Dhabi it was expected that a long-term price structure, linking prices to currency fluctuations, would be discussed.

FINANCE

1981 budget: 214.85 million Austrian schillings, contributed in equal parts by members.

OPEC FUND FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

P.O.B. 995, 1011 Vienna, Austria

Telephone: 31 55 36-0.

Established by virtue of an agreement signed by all OPEC member countries in Paris on January 28th, 1976.

MEMBERS

Member countries of OPEC (see page 264).

AIMS

The OPEC Fund for International Development is a multilateral agency for financial co-operation and assistance. Its objective is to reinforce financial co-operation between OPEC member countries and other developing countries through the provision of financial support to the latter on appropriate terms.

The Fund is empowered to engage in all functions necessary or incidental to the carrying out of its objective. In particular, it is empowered to:

- (a) Provide concessional loans for balance-of-payments support;
- (b) Provide concessional loans for the implementation of development projects and programmes;

- (c) Make contributions and/or provide loans to eligible international agencies; and
- (d) Finance technical assistance activities.

In the cases where collective action by OPEC member countries is deemed appropriate, the Fund may be entrusted by its members with the task of an agent acting on their behalf, in particular in their relations with other International financial institutions.

The eligible beneficiaries of the Fund's assistance are the governments of developing countries other than OPEC member countries, and international development agencies whose beneficiaries are developing countries.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

ADMINISTRATION

The Fund is administered by a Ministerial Council and a Governing Board composed of one representative of each Contributing Party to the Fund.

Chairman, Ministerial Council: CÉSAR ROBALINO (Ecuador).

Chairman, Governing Board: DR. MAHSOUN JALAL (Saudi Arabia).

Director-General of the Fund: DR. IBRAHIM SHIHATA (Kuwait).

OPERATIONS

Requests for the Fund's assistance are to be submitted by eligible beneficiaries to the Director-General of the Fund for evaluation. Approval of such assistance is extended by the Governing Board.

The Fund may entrust an appropriate international development agency, an Executing National Agency of a member or any other qualified agency with the task of technical, economic and financial appraisal of the projects submitted to the Fund. Such appraisal is otherwise to be undertaken by the Fund. Furthermore, the Governing Board may entrust these same agencies or any other qualified agency of a member with the task of the administration of the loans approved by it. Such administration is otherwise to be undertaken by the Fund.

Each member of the Fund designates its Executing National Agency which will act as the channel of communications with the Fund. If required, each Executing National Agency establishes in its records a special account in the name of the Fund, separate from its own accounts.

Contributions to the Fund are voluntary. In June 1981 a meeting of OPEC finance ministers rejected a proposal by Venezuela to make contributions compulsory according to each country's financial position.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The resources of the Fund, whose unit of account is the U.S. dollar, consists of:

- (a) contributions by OPEC member countries; and
- (b) funds received from operations or otherwise accruing to the Fund.

The initial endowment of the Fund amounted to U.S. $800 million. It has subsequently been boosted by three replenishments which brought the total Fund's resources to about $4,000 million. Other contributions consisted of the profits accruing to some OPEC member countries through the sales of gold held by the International Monetary Fund, and additional payments made by the OPEC member countries through the Fund to the International Fund for Agricultural Development.

By August 1981 about $1,748 million had been committed, of which just over $1,162 million was in loans to 76 developing countries outside OPEC, and the rest was in contributions to other international agencies, particularly IFAD, which was allocated $435.5 million. Total disbursements amounted to $951.35 million.

REGIONAL COOPERATION FOR DEVELOPMENT— RCD

5 Los Angeles Ave., Blvd. Keshawarz, P.O.B. 3273, Teheran, Iran

Telephones: 658614, 656152, 658045.

Established in 1964 as a tripartite arrangement aiming at closer economic, technical and cultural co-operation and promoting the economic advancement and welfare of the people of the region.

MEMBERS

ORGANIZATION

(May 1981)

MINISTERIAL COUNCIL

Established 1964 as the highest decision-making body of the RCD; composed of the Foreign Ministers of the three countries; considers and decides on measures for regional co-operation among the three countries.

REGIONAL PLANNING COUNCIL

Established 1964; composed of the Heads of the three Planning Organizations; makes recommendations to the Ministerial Council on measures for regional co-operation among the three countries.

Working Committees: Industry and Petroleum, Trade, Transport and Communications, Technical Co-operation and Public Administration, Cultural Affairs, Information and Tourism, and Agriculture.

SECRETARIAT

Permanently established in Teheran in 1965; staff consists of Secretary-General, three Deputy Secretaries-General, six Directors and supporting staff, drawn from nationals of the member countries.

Secretary-General: MUKHTAR MASOOD (Pakistan).

ACTIVITIES

INDUSTRY AND STANDARDIZATION

In an agreement of November 1967 the three members agreed to collaborate in joint-purpose enterprises, and guidelines were laid down.

Materials, skills and, if possible, capital were to be pooled; national markets would be shared and industrial specialization encouraged; long-term agreements (off-take guarantees) were to be negotiated for specific enterprises, ensuring that the partner countries provide a market for the products of the joint projects.

Over 40 enterprises were identified of which ten were in production by April 1976. Three of these have equity participation by the member countries:

- (a) Iranian Aluminium Company, Takht-e-Jamshid Avenue, Teheran.
- (b) Bank note and Security Paper, Pakistan Security Printing Corporation Limited, Karachi.
- (c) Ball Bearings Aizad Industries Limited, Palace Cinema Building, Civil Lines, Karachi.

Those without equity participation include the Ultramarine Blue Project and the Shock Absorbers Project in Pakistan, and the following Projects in Turkey: Tungsten Carbide, Borax and Boric Acid, Centrifugal and Special Filters for Chemical Industries, High Tension Insulators and Tetracycline.

In an attempt to streamline the portfolio of projects earmarked for industrial co-operation, a regional industrial survey was carried out. On the recommendation of the survey team, telecommunications, iron and steel and heavy engineering and diesel engine industries are to receive priority in future co-operation.

There is also provision for common RCD Standards, 24 of which had been established by September 1979.

PETROLEUM AND PETROCHEMICALS

Projects include the Glycerine Plant in Pakistan, which exports its products to Turkey, the Polystyrene project in Turkey and the Carbon Black project in Iran.

Purchase of aviation fuel by the three national airlines, co-operation in the production and purchase of fertilizers and petrochemicals, and the exchange of trainees and experts are among other activities envisaged in this field.

TRADE

RCD hopes to introduce a system of regional trade preferences. The Ministers of Commerce met in April 1976 and laid down a schedule for the introduction of such a scheme, and in the same month the Heads of State and Government met in Izmir, agreeing to establish a free trade area within ten years.

Two agreements had already been signed, on RCD trade and on a multilateral payments arrangement.

Member countries participate in international fairs held within the region and are represented in RCD pavilions whenever established in fairs inside and outside the region.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

It is also hoped to revive the traditional trade route from Europe to Asia through Trabzon in Turkey, which could substantially assist regional transit trade.

The RCD Chamber of Commerce and Industry has been in operation since 1966. Its secretarial work was taken over by the Secretariat in 1973.

TOURISM

Ministers of Tourism of the RCD countries have agreed on measures to develop tourism in the region, such as issuing of group passports and joint publicity material and arranging charter flights and visits of tour operators. In this field, the three national airlines have agreed to allow reduced rates for inter-regional flights in some cases.

INSURANCE

Five re-insurance pools have been created by RCD, for Accident, Engineering, Marine, Aviation and Fire. Since the beginning of 1975, they have been merged into a single pool whose portfolio has grown from U.S. $2.5 million to $6.5 million (May 1980). The portfolio is spread over 18 countries besides the RCD members. The number of insurance and reinsurance companies ceding business to the pool in 1979 was 53 including 23 from outside the region.

The RCD International School of Insurance has been functional in Teheran since 1970. The RCD Insurance Centre has its headquarters in Karachi; it undertakes research and disseminates information on insurance activities in the region.

TRANSPORT

RCD Shipping Services began operation in 1966, both within the region and to the United States. The organization has its office in Istanbul.

The RCD Highway is now nearing completion, linking the three member countries along a 5,180 km. route.

The rail link between Pakistan and Iran is to be completed by 1982. Iran and Turkey were linked by rail in 1971.

COMMUNICATIONS

The working of the microwave system linking the member countries is constantly reviewed and efforts are made to improve the system, according to the changing requirements of the region. Technical know-how is exchanged between the member countries.

Regional Cooperation for Development

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Up to 1980, about 2,000 trainees, 1,250 students and 100 experts had visited the region under RCD programmes. In addition, 48 seminars and 11 joint courses on public administration had been held under tripartite arrangements.

An RCD Institute of Science and Technology, School of Economics, School of Hotel Management and a Science Foundation are to be established to strengthen regional co-operation in the technical field.

CULTURAL AFFAIRS

The RCD Cultural Institute in Teheran is engaged in research into the common historical and cultural heritage of the member countries. It has a library housing over 4,500 books. The Institute brings out a quarterly journal and has published 62 books, including original works and translations.

The RCD Cultural Exchange Programme includes exchange visits of artists, painters, eminent personalities and sportsmen.

YOUTH

An RCD Youth Foundation is planned to increase contact amongst the youth of the three member countries.

INFORMATION

To increase awareness of matters of common interest to the three nations, RCD aims to co-ordinate the region's mass media through co-operation between the national news agencies and radio and television organizations, exchange visits and seminars for journalists, and through the exchange of films.

AGRICULTURE

A Committee on Agriculture was established in 1978. Co-operation is envisaged in joint agricultural ventures, trade in agricultural commodities, the exchange of information and material, and training programmes.

AIMS

To increase Latin American economic unity; to promote inter-regional co-operation for the adoption of common positions and strategies on economic and social issues; to support schemes for intergration in the continent; and to encourage the formation of Latin American multi-national companies and other initiatives for co-operation.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

LATIN AMERICAN COUNCIL

The supreme body of the organization; establishes general policies of SELA. Consists of one representative from each member country, each with one vote. One ordinary session is to be held each year; elects its own chairman and officers, and elects the Permanent Secretary of SELA. The Council is not empowered to adopt decisions that affect the national policies of member states.

ACTION COMMITTEES

Composed of representatives of interested member states; to make studies and carry out specific programmes and projects; and to prepare and adopt joint negotiating positions of interest to member states in international forums. Financed by participating member states.

There are action committees in the following areas:

- (a) fertilizers, at Mexico City; has created a multi-national fertilizer marketing enterprise;
- (b) fish products, at Lima, Peru;
- (c) handicrafts, at Panama City;
- (d) housing, at Quito, Ecuador;

- (e) tourism, at San José, Costa Rica;
- (f) Nicaragua's reconstruction programme, at Maragua;
- (g) technological information, at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

The Council has also approved an agreement with the UNDP, under which SELA Council projects would be eligible for UNDP assistance.

PERMANENT SECRETARIAT

The technical and administrative centre of SELA; may represent the organization with the concurrence of the Council. Acts not only for the Council but for the whole system; is headed by a Permanent Secretary appointed by the Council for a four-year term. The Permanent Secretariat carries out functions entrusted to it by the Council, and implements the Council's decisions; organizes studies and prepares for projects, assists in formation of Action Committees; prepares draft budgets and provides services for meetings.

Permanent Secretary: CARLOS ALZAMORA (Peru).

SOUTH PACIFIC COMMISSION—SPC

Post Box D5, Nouméa, New Caledonia

Telephone: 26.20.00.

The Commission was established by an agreement signed in Canberra, Australia in February 1947, effective from July 1948. Its purpose is to promote the economic and social welfare and advancement of the peoples of the South Pacific region. The region contains approximately $4\frac{1}{2}$ million people, scattered over some 30 million square kilometres.

ORGANIZATION

SOUTH PACIFIC CONFERENCE

The Conference is held annually and since 1974 has combined the former South Pacific Conference, attended by delegates from the countries and territories within the Commission's area of action, and the former Commission Session, attended by representatives of the participating governments. Each government and territorial administration has the right to send a representative and alternates to the Conference and each representative (or in his absence an alternate) has the right to cast one vote on behalf of the government or territorial administration which he represents.

The Conference examines and adopts the Commission's work programme and budget for the coming year, and discusses any other matters within the competence of the Commission.

Planning and Evaluation Committee: meets in April or May each year to evaluate the preceding year's work programme and to draft the programme and budget for the coming year; it decides on two themes of regional interest to be discussed by the Conference.

Committee of Representatives of Participating Governments: approves the Commission's administrative budget and nominates the Commission's principal officers.

SECRETARIAT

Since November 1976 the Secretariat has had a Management Committee which has a supervisory and advisory role over all Commission activities. Committee members are the Principal Officers of the Commission.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Secretary-General: M. YOUNG VIVIAN (Niue).

Director of Programmes: W. T. BROWN, M.B.E. (Australia).

Director of Administration: T. PIERRE (Cook Islands).

AIMS

Each territory has its own programme of development activities. The Commission assists these programmes by bringing people together for discussion and study, by research into some of the problems common to the region, by providing expert advice and assistance and by disseminating technical information.

ACTIVITIES

The 16th South Pacific Conference adopted a recommendation by the 1976 Review Committee that the Commission should carry out the following specific activities:

- (a) rural development
- (b) youth and community development
- (c) ad hoc expert consultancies
- (d) cultural exchanges (in arts, sports and education)
- (e) training facilitation
- (f) assessment and development of marine resources and research; and that special consideration should be given to projects and grants-in-aid which do not necessarily fall within these specific activities, but which respond to pressing regional or sub-regional needs or to the expressed needs of the smaller Pacific countries. The work programme adopted by the 19th South Pacific Conference was developed in response to these guidelines. It gave priority to projects in the following areas for 1980:

Food and Materials: Agriculture; Plant protection; Forestry.

Marine Resources: Artisanal fisheries; Oceanic fisheries.

Rural Management and Technology: Conservation and environmental management; Rural health, sanitation and water supply; Rural employment; Rural technology.

Community Services: Community education training; Youth and adult education; Family and community health services; Public health.

Socio-economic Statistical Services.

Education Services: English language programme: media unit.

Awards and Grants: Short-term experts and specialist services; Assistance to applied research, experiments and field work; Cultural conservation and exchange; Inter-territorial study visits and travel grants.

The South Pacific Forum is the gathering of Heads of Government of the independent and self-governing states of the South Pacific. Its first meeting was held on August 5th, 1971, in Wellington, New Zealand. It provides an opportunity for informal discussions to be held on a wide range of common issues and problems and meets annually or when issues require urgent attention. The Forum has no written constitution or international agreement governing its activities nor any formal rules relating to its purpose, membership or conduct of meeting. Decisions are always reached by consensus, it never having been found necessary or desirable to vote formally on issues.

The 12th meeting of the Forum was held in August 1981 in Port Vila, Vanuatu.

SOUTH PACIFIC BUREAU FOR ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION—SPEC

G.P.O. Box 856, Suva, Fiji

Telephone: 312600.

Established by an agreement signed on April 17th, 1973, at the third meeting of the South Pacific Forum in Apia, Western Samoa.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

COMMITTEE

The Committee is the Bureau's executive board. It comprises representatives and senior officials from all member countries. It meets twice a year, immediately before the meetings of the South Pacific Forum and at the end of the year, to discuss in detail the Bureau's work programme and annual budget.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat carries out the day-to-day activities of the Bureau. It is headed by a Director, with an executive staff of 11 drawn from the member countries. In 1975 the Bureau became the official secretariat of the South Pacific Forum and its secretariat is responsible for the administration of the Forum.

Director: Dr. GABRIEL GRIS.

Deputy Director: JONATHAN P. SHEPPARD.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The Bureau was set up as a result of proposals for establishing a "Trade Bureau" which were put forward at the second meeting of the South Pacific Forum in 1972. It is to facilitate continuing co-operation and consultation between members on trade, economic development, transport, tourism and other related matters. In 1974 the Bureau absorbed the functions of the Pacific Islands Producers' Association (PIPA).

The current work programme includes regional activities in the following areas: trade; trade promotion; transport (shipping and civil aviation); telecommunications; tourism; agriculture; industrial development; aid and air co-ordination; Law of the Sea; fisheries and seabed resources; the environment; energy; secretariat duties.

Since its establishment, the Bureau has established the Pacific Forum Line (a regional shipping line), the South Pacific Forum Fisheries Agency, a South Pacific Trade Commission in Australia, the Association of South Pacific Airlines, a SPEC Fellowship scheme and a South Pacific Regional National Disaster Fund and has co-ordinated the establishment of the South Pacific Regional Environment Programme.

BUDGET

The Governments of Australia and New Zealand each contribute one-third of the annual budget and the remaining third is equally shared by the other member Governments.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

The Conference is held annually and involves representatives of SADCC governments, co-operating governments and international agencies. Third Conference: Blantyre, Malawi, November 1981.

Chairman: Dr. Q. K. J. MASIRE (Botswana).

SECRETARIAT

To be located in Gaborone, Botswana. The principal officers were to be named early in 1982.

ACTIVITIES

In July 1979 the first Southern African Development Co-ordination Conference was held at Arusha, Tanzania, in order to harmonize development plans and reduce the region's economic dependence on South Africa. The Conference was attended by delegations from Angola, Botswana, Mozambique, Tanzania and Zambia; the group was later joined by Lesotho, Malawi, Swaziland and Zimbabwe. In April 1980 a regional economic summit conference was held in Lusaka, Zambia, and the Lusaka Declaration, a statement of strategy entitled "Southern Africa: Towards Economic Liberation", was approved, together with a programme of action allotting specific studies and tasks to member governments, as follows:

- Angola:* regional energy planning.
- Botswana:* foot-and-mouth disease control plans; research programme on crop production.
- Mozambique:* setting up a regional commission for transport.
- Swaziland:* manpower development and training.
- Tanzania:* co-ordination strategy.
- Zambia:* studies for a Southern African development fund.
- Zimbabwe:* regional food security fund.

In June 1981 responsibility for fisheries and wildlife was allocated to the Government of Malawi.

Transport was seen as the most important area to be developed, on the grounds that, as the Lusaka Declaration noted, "The dominance of the Republic of South Africa has been reinforced by its transport system. Without the establishment of an adequate regional transport and communications system, other areas of co-operation become impractical". Priority was to be given to the improvement of railway services into Mozambique, so that the landlocked countries of the region could transport their goods through Mozambican ports instead of South African ones.

The second SADCC was held at Maputo, Mozambique, in November 1980, and was attended by representatives of 35 industrialized countries as well as development agencies. Pledges were made of U.S. $650 million, to be used for 97 proposed development projects over the next five years. The chief donors were the African Development Bank ($380 million), the European Community ($100 million), Italy ($50 million) and the U.S.A. ($25 million).

By August 1981, 22 projects were being implemented and plans for the rest of the 97 projects were being examined or prepared, except for three which were withdrawn.

Southern African Transport and Communications Commission: Maputo, Mozambique; f. 1980 by the SADCC to carry out transport development programme.

THE WARSAW TREATY OF FRIENDSHIP, CO-OPERATION AND MUTUAL ASSISTANCE— THE WARSAW PACT

Headquarters of the Joint Command: Moscow, U.S.S.R.

The Warsaw Treaty of Friendship, Co-operation and Mutual Assistance (The Warsaw Pact) was signed in Warsaw in May 1955. It was automatically extended for a further ten years in June 1975. The Treaty supplemented agreements already in existence between the U.S.S.R. and Czechoslovakia (1943), Poland (1945), and Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania (1948). Albania ceased to participate in 1961 and formally withdrew from the Treaty in 1968.

ORGANIZATION

POLITICAL CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (PCC)

The Committee was intended to meet not less than twice a year, but in fact there have been fewer meetings; since 1972 meetings have taken place in alternate years. The venue rotates among the member countries and the Chairmanship is held by each member country in turn. Delegations of member states are normally led by the First Secretary of the Party supported by the Head of Government, Foreign Minister and others. Meetings are normally attended by the Commander-in-Chief, Warsaw Pact Joint Armed Forces.

COMMITTEE OF DEFENCE MINISTERS

Set up by the PCC in 1969, as part of a reorganization of the Treaty's military structure. Acts as a permanent organ, meeting annually. Each member country provides the Chairman and the venue in turn. Meetings receive a report from the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces.

MILITARY COUNCIL

Set up by the PCC in 1969. Consultative Committee of national Chiefs of Staff or Deputy Ministers of Defence, with status of Deputy Commanders-in-Chief of the Warsaw Pact Joint Armed Forces. Meets normally twice a year, in each member country in turn, under the Chairmanship of the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. The autumn meeting of the Military Council is usually combined with a general conference of national Force Commanders.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF THE JOINT ARMED FORCES

Set up March 1969.

Chairman: Col.-Gen. I. A. FABRIKOV.

COMMITTEE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

Set up by the PCC in 1976 as a permanent organ parallel to Committee of Defence Ministers. First met in Moscow, May 1977, and subsequently in each member country in turn.

JOINT SECRETARIAT

Established in January 1956 in Moscow; given higher status by the PCC in 1976; Sec.-Gen. NIKOLAY P. FIRYUBIN (U.S.S.R.).

JOINT COMMAND OF THE ARMED FORCES

Set up in 1955 under the general supervision of the PCC.

Commander-in-Chief: Marshal VIKTOR G. KULIKOV (U.S.S.R.).

Chief of Staff and First Deputy Commander-in-Chief: Army Gen. ANATOLY I. GRIBKOV (U.S.S.R.).

Deputy Commanders-in-Chief: The members of the Military Council.

COMBINED GENERAL STAFF

Composed of representatives of the seven member states with headquarters in Moscow. Services meetings of the Committee of Defence Ministers and of the Military Council. Plans and evaluates manoeuvres and exercises of Warsaw Pact Joint Armed Forces.

HISTORY

The Brussels Treaty was signed in 1948 by Belgium, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. It foresaw the potential for international co-operation in Western Europe and provided for collective defence and collaboration in economic, social and cultural activities. Within this framework, NATO and the Council of Europe (see chapters) were formed in 1949.

On the collapse in 1954 of plans for a European Defence Community, a nine-power conference was convened in London to try to reach a new agreement. This conference's decisions were embodied in a series of formal agreements drawn up by a ministerial conference held in Paris in October 1954. The agreements entailed: arrangements for the Brussels Treaty to be strengthened and modified to include the Federal Republic of Germany and Italy, the ending of the occupation regime in the Federal Republic of Germany, and the invitation to the latter to join NATO. These agreements were ratified on May 6th, 1955, on which date the seven-power Western European Union came into being.

The new organization was given the task of settling the future of the Saar. Under a Franco-German agreement of October 1954, the Saar was to have a European statute within the framework of WEU, subject to approval by referendum. In October 1955 the Saar population voted against the statute and expressed the wish for incorporation in the Federal Republic of Germany. Political and economic incorporation were achieved in January 1957 and July 1959 respectively.

The modified Brussels Treaty provided for a system of co-operation in social and cultural affairs, and these activities were transferred in June 1960 to the Council of Europe.

Between 1963 and 1970, while negotiations for the United Kingdom's accession to the EEC were suspended, the WEU Council invited the Commission of the EEC to participate in meetings on European economic affairs. These were discontinued in 1970 on the re-opening of negotiations which led to the Treaty of Accession in January 1972. The Council has since devoted its meetings to consultations on political questions.

Among subjects debated by the Assembly during 1981 leading to recommendations were: the future and present state of European security; SALT and the British and French nuclear forces; the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan; international industrial consortia and collaborative arrangements for the production of high-technology military equipment; European security and the Mediterranean; the future of European space activities; developments in Poland; European security and events in the Gulf area.

In December 1980 a study group was established to promote close co-operation with the Commission of the European Communities and with NATO.

Telephone: 98 94 00.

Founded 1948 to promote co-operation between Christian Churches and to prepare for a clearer manifestation of the unity of the Church.

MEMBERS

There are 319 Churches in over 90 countries, of which 30 are associate Churches. Chief denominations: Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Lutheran, Methodist, Moravian, Old Catholic, Orthodox, Presbyterian, Reformed and Society of Friends. The Roman Catholic Church is not a member but sends official observers to meetings.

ORGANIZATION

(October 1981)

Hon. President: Dr. W. A. VISSER 't HOOFT (Netherlands).

Presidium: His Holiness ILIA II, Patriarch of All Georgia (U.S.S.R.), Justice Mrs. A. R. JIAGGE (Ghana), Prof. JOSÉ MIGUEZ-BONINO (Argentina), Dr. T. B. SIMATUPANG (Indonesia), OLOF SUNDBY, Archbishop of Uppsala (Sweden), Dr. CYNTHIA WEDEL (U.S.A.).

ASSEMBLY

The governing body of the World Council, consisting of delegates of the member Churches, meets every six or seven years to frame policy and consider some main theme. The fifth Assembly was held at Nairobi, Kenya, in November and December 1975. The next assembly is to be held at Vancouver, Canada, in 1983.

PRINCIPAL COMMITTEES

CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Appointed by the Assembly to carry out its policies and decisions. Consists of 140 members chosen from Assembly delegates and meets annually.

Moderator: EDWARD W. SCOTT, Primate, The Anglican Church of Canada.

Vice-Moderators: His Holiness KAREKIN II, Catholicos-Coadjutor, Armenian Apostolic Church, Catholicosate of Cilicia (Lebanon), JEAN SKUSE (Australia).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Consists of twenty-six members chosen by the Central Committee from its membership to prepare its agenda, expedite its decisions and supervise the work of the Council between meetings of the Central Committee. Meets every six months.

SECRETARIAT

General Secretary: Dr. PHILIP A. POTTER (West Indies).

ACTIVITIES

Studies. Theological research work is undertaken, and conferences and commissions study the reunion of the Churches, evangelism and missionary work, the role of the Church in society, religious liberty, racial and cultural relations, and the place of the layman in the Church today.

Inter-Church Aid. Provides funds for Churches in need and considers each year a list of projects, allocating funds for those approved.

Refugee and World Service. Provision of financial and material relief in disaster areas and distribution of food, clothing, medical supplies and tents. Thousands of refugees have been re-settled by the Council, which also provides medical care, homes for aged refugees and educational facilities.

Education. The Office of Education was set up in 1971 when the integration with the World Council of Christian Education took place. The office is concerned with both religious and general education. The Council provides scholarships for theological students to continue their education in other countries, largely in places provided by member Churches in their theological schools. The Ecumenical Institute holds educational courses, study conferences and a graduate course in ecumenical studies in connection with the University of Geneva, at Bossey, Switzerland.

International Affairs. The Commission of the Churches on International Affairs represents the Council at conferences of international bodies such as the United Nations, and works for peace, justice and freedom.

Mission and Evangelism. The Council's Commission on World Mission and Evangelism (formerly the International Missionary Council) serves the Churches and missionary societies in the maintenance of missionary work and promotes co-operation in the common task of evangelism.

Youth Activities. The Council promotes world youth projects and ecumenical work camps as well as providing opportunities for voluntary service by young people.

Programme to Combat Racism. This was inaugurated in August 1969 by the Central Committee.

Mems.: national committees in 61 countries.

Pres. Prof. H. MORITZ (Austria); Sec.-Gen. M. LOUIS (France); Asst. Sec.-Gen. C. BOUCHER (France). Publs. Bulletin géodésique, Travaux de l'AIG, Bibliographie géodésique internationale.

International Association of Geomagnetism and Aeronomy

—IAGA (Association de géomagnétisme et d'aéronomie—AIGA): Geophysics Research Laboratory, University of Tokyo, Tokyo 113, Japan; f. 1919. Aims: the study of questions relating to geomagnetism and aeronomy and the encouragement of research. Mems.: the countries which adhere to the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics are eligible as members.

Pres. K. D. COLE (Australia); Vice-Pres. A. J. DESSLER (U.S.A.), M. GADSDEN (U.K.); Sec.-Gen. N. FUKUSHIMA (Japan). Publs. Transactions of the General Assemblies (every four years), Transactions of the Scientific Assemblies (every four years), IAGA Bulletin (including annual Geomagnetic Data and other monographs), IAGG News (annual).

International Association of Meteorology and Atmospheric Physics—IAMAP (Association internationale de météorologie et de physique de l'atmosphère—AIMPA): NCAR, P.O.B. 3000, Boulder, Colo. 80307, U.S.A.; f. 1919; permanent commissions on atmospheric ozone, radiation, atmospheric chemistry and global pollution, dynamic meteorology, polar meteorology, cloud physics, climate, atmospheric electricity, planetary atmospheres and their evolution and meteorology of the upper atmosphere; general assemblies held once every four years; special assemblies held once between general assemblies.

Pres. W. L. GODSON (Canada); Sec. S. RUTTENBERG (U.S.A.). Publs. Proceedings of General Assembly, Proceedings of Special Assembly, IAMAP News Bulletin.

International Association of Photobiology (Association Internationale de Photobiologie—AIP): c/o L. O.

Björn, Department of Plant Physiology, Box 7007, 221 01 Lund, Sweden; f. 1928; stimulation of scientific research concerning the physics, chemistry and climatology of non-ionising radiations (ultra-violet, visible and infra-red) in relation to their biological effects and their applications in biology and medicine; 18 national committees represented. International Congresses held every four years. Next Congress: U.S.A., 1984.

Pres. Prof. F. URBACH (U.S.A.); Sec.-Gen. Dr. L. O. Björn (Sweden). Publ. Congress Proceedings.

International Association of Sedimentologists (Association internationale des sédimentologues): c/o Dr. C. L. V.

Monty, Laboratoire de Paléontologie Animale, Université de Liège, 7 place du 20 Août, Liège 4000, Belgium; f. 1952. Mems.: 1,850.

Pres. Prof. Dr. K. J. HSU (Switzerland); Gen. Sec. Dr. C. L. V. MONTY (Belgium). Publ. Sedimentology, newsletters (bi-monthly), books on particular sedimentological topics.

International Association of Theoretical and Applied Limnology (Societas Internationalis Limnologiae): W. K.

Kellogg Biological Station, Michigan State University, Hickory Corners, Mich. 49060, U.S.A.; f. 1922; study of physical, chemical and biological phenomena of lakes and rivers; about 3,200 mems.

Pres. K. WUHRMANN (Switzerland); Gen. Sec. and Treas. ROBERT G. WETZEL (U.S.A.). Publs. Verhandlungen der internationalen Vereinigung für Limnologie, Mitteilungen.

International Association of Volcanology and Chemistry of the Earth's Interior—IAVCEI (Association internationale de volcanologie et de chimie de l'intérieur de la terre): c/o Dept. of Geology, University of Nottingham, England; f. 1919 to examine scientifically all aspects of volcanology.

Pres. Dr. S. A. FEDOTOV (U.S.S.R.); Sec. P. E. BAKER (U.K.). Publs. Bulletin Volcanologique, Catalogue of the Active Volcanoes of the World, Newsletter.

International Association of Wood Anatomists (Association internationale des anatomistes du bois): c/o Institute of Systematic Botany, University of Utrecht, The Netherlands; f. 1931 for the purpose of study, documentation and exchange of information on the structure of wood.

Mems.: 400 in 51 countries.

Exec. Sec. B. J. H. TER WELLE. Publ. IAWA Bulletin.

International Association on Water Pollution Research:

Alliance House, 29/30 High Holborn, London WC1V 6BA, England; f. 1965 to encourage international communication, co-operative effort, and a maximum exchange of information on water quality management; to sponsor regular international meetings; to provide a scientific medium for the publication of research reports and to shorten the time-lag between development of research and its application. Mems.: 27 national, 200 associates, 1,000 individuals; Last Conf., Toronto, June 1980.

Pres. Prof. R. S. ENGELBRECHT; Vice-Pres. Prof. P. HAREMOES, Dr. Ing. E. KUNTZE. Publs. Water Research (monthly), Water Science and Technology (12 a year).

International Astronautical Federation—IAF (Fédération internationale astronautique): 250 rue St. Jacques, 75005

Paris, France; f. 1950 to foster the development of astronautics for peaceful purposes at national and international levels. Mems.: 58 national astronautical societies in 36 countries. The IAF has created the International Academy of Astronautics (IAA) and the International Institute of Space Law (IISL).

Pres. L. PEREK (Czechoslovakia); Exec. Sec. M. PIGÉ-CLAUDIN. Publ. Proceeding of Annual Congresses and Symposia.

International Botanical Congress (Congrès internationale de botanique): c/o Prof. W. Greuter, Botanischer Garten, Königin-Luise-Str. 6-8, 1000 Berlin 33, Federal Republic of Germany; f. 1864 to inform botanists of recent progress in the plant sciences; the Nomenclature Section of the Congress attempts to provide a uniform terminology and methodology for the naming of plants; other Sections deal with molecular, metabolic, structural, systematic and evolutionary, ecological botany; floristics and phytogeography; lower plants; cultivated plants and natural plant resources; conservation of the plant world, etc. Mems.: about 3,000 persons attended the 13th Congress in Sydney in 1981.

International Bureau of Weights and Measures (Bureau internationale des poids et mesures): Pavillon de Breteuil, 92310 Sèvres, France; f. 1875. Objects: international unification of physical measures; establishment of fundamental standards and of scales of the principal physical dimensions; preservation of the international prototypes; determination of national standards; precision measurements in physics. 45 member states.

Pres. J. V. DUNWORTH (U.K.); Sec. J. DE BOER (Netherlands); Dir. PIERRE GIACOMO (France). Publs. Procès-Verbaux (annually), Proceedings of the Comités Consultifs (every few years), Comptes Rendus de la Conférence Générale (every 6 years or less), Recueil de Travaux.

International Cartographic Association (Association cartographique internationale): Flottbrovägen 16, 112 64 Stockholm, Sweden; f. 1959. Aims: the advancement, instigation and co-ordination of cartographic research involving co-operation between different nations. Particularly concerned with furtherance of training in cartography, study of source material, compilation, graphic design, drawing, scribing and reproduction techniques of maps; organizes international conferences, symposia, meetings, exhibitions. Mems.: 59 nations.

Pres. (1980-84) Prof. Dr. F. J. ORNELING (Netherlands); Sec. Treas. OLOF HEDBOM (Sweden). Publs. International Cartographic Yearbook, IGU Bulletin (bi-annually), Multilingual Dictionary of Technical Terms in Cartography, ICA Bibliography 1957-72, Oceanographic Cartography, Computer-Assisted Cartography, Colour-Proofing in Cartography.

International Commission for Bee Botany (Commission internationale pour l'étude des relations entre les abeilles et les plantes): c/o J. LOUVEAUX, 91440 Bures-sur-Yvette, France; f. 1950 to promote research and its application in the field of bee botany, and collect and spread information; to organize meetings, etc., and collaborate with scientific organizations. Mems.: 175 in 34 countries.

Pres. J. LOUVEAUX; Sec. Dr. G. VORWOHL.

International Commission for Physics Education: f. 1960 to encourage and develop international collaboration in the improvement and extension of the methods and scope of physics education at all levels; collaborates with UNESCO and organizes international conferences. Mems.: appointed triennially by the International Union of Pure and Applied Physics.

Chair. Prof. R. U. SEXL; Sec. P. J. KENNEDY, Dept. of Physics, University of Edinburgh, King's Building, Mayfield Rd., Edinburgh, Scotland.

International Commission for the Scientific Exploration of the Mediterranean Sea (Commission internationale pour l'exploration scientifique de la mer Méditerranée—CIESM): Secrétariat Général, 16 blvd. de Suisse, Monaco; f. 1919 for scientific exploration of the Mediterranean Sea; includes 12 scientific committees; 1,200 scientists, 17 member countries.

Pres. S.A.S. The Prince RAINIER III of MONACO; Sec.-Gen. Cdt. J. Y. COUSTEAU (France). Publs. Rapports et Procès-Verbaux des réunions de la CIESM, Bulletin de Liaison des Laboratoires (annual).

International Commission on Glass: c/o Institut National du Verre, 10 blvd. Defontaine, Charleroi, Belgium; f. 1950 to organize and co-ordinate research in glass and allied products and to promote scientific co-operation.

International Commission on Radiation Units and Measurements—ICRU: 7910 Woodmont Ave., Suite 1016, Washington, D.C. 20014, U.S.A.; f. 1925 at the First International Congress of Radiology (London), to develop internationally acceptable recommendations regarding: (1) quantities and units of radiation and radioactivity, (2) procedures suitable for the measurement and application of these quantities in clinical radiology and radiobiology, (3) physical data needed in the application of these procedures. Makes recommendations on quantities and units for radiation protection (see below, International Radiation Protection Association). Mems.: from about 18 countries.

Chair. H. O. WYCKOFF; Vice-Chair. A. ALLISY; Sec. R. S. CASWELL; Exec. Sec. W. R. NEY. Publs. Reports.

International Commission on Zoological Nomenclature (Commission internationale de la nomenclature zoologique): c/o British Museum (Natural History), Cromwell Rd., London, SW7 5BD, England; f. 1895; has judicial powers to determine all matters relating to the interpretation of the International Code of Zoological Nomenclature and also plenary powers to suspend the operation of the Code where the strict application of the Code would lead to confusion and instability of nomenclature; the Commission is responsible also for maintaining and developing the Official Lists and Official Indexes of Names in Zoology.

Pres. C. W. SABROSKY (U.S.A.); Sec. R. V. MELVILLE (U.K.). Publs. International Code of Zoological Nomenclature, Bulletin of Zoological Nomenclature, Opinions and Declarations rendered by the International Commission on Zoological Nomenclature, Copenhagen Decisions on Zoological Nomenclature, 1953.

International Council for Bird Preservation: 219c Huntingdon Road, Cambridge, CB3 0DL, England; f. 1922; determines status of bird species throughout the world and compiles data on all endangered species; identifies conservation problems and priorities; initiates and co-ordinates conservation projects and international conventions; national sections in 65 countries.

Pres. Prof. S. DILLON RIPLEY (U.S.A.); Vice-Pres. Dr. CH. IMBODEN, Dr. Y. YAMASHINA (Japan), Prof. KAI CURRY-LINDAHL (Sweden); Dir. Dr. CHRISTOPH IMBODEN (U.K.). Publs. Bulletin, ICBP Newsletter.

International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (Conseil international pour l'exploration de la mer): Palaegade 2-4, DK-1261, Copenhagen K, Denmark; f. 1902. Objects: concerted biological and hydrographical investigations for the promotion of a planned exploitation of the resources of the sea. Area of interest: The Atlantic Ocean and its adjacent seas, and primarily the North Atlantic. Library of 15,000 vols. Membership: Governments of 18 countries.

Gen. Sec. HANS TAMBS-LYCHE. Publs. Journal du Conseil, Rapports et Procès-Verbaux, Bulletin Statistique, ICES Oceanographic Data Lists and Inventories, Annales Biologiques, Co-operative Research Reports, Fiches d'Identification du Zooplancton, etc.

International Council of the Aeronautical Sciences: Goethestrasse 10, 5000 Cologne 51, Federal Republic of Germany; f. 1957 to encourage free interchange of information on all phases of mechanical flight. Holds biennial Congresses. Mems.: national associations in 27 countries.

Pres. R. L. BISPLINGHOFF (U.S.A.); Exec. Sec. R. W. STAUFENBIEL (Federal Republic of Germany).

International Federation of Cell Biology (Fédération internationale de biologie cellulaire).

Sec.-Gen. Dr. L. M. FRANKS, Imperial Cancer Research Fund, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, W.C.2, England.

International Federation of Operational Research Societies: c/o IMSOR, Bldg. 349, Technical University of Denmark, 2800 Lyngby, Denmark; f. 1959. Aims: the development of operational research as a unified science and its advancement in all nations of the world. Mems.: about 30,000 individuals, 31 national societies, 5 kindred societies.

Pres. Prof. R. H. COLLICUT (U.K.); Sec. Mrs. HELLE WELLING. Publ. International Abstracts in Operational Research, Proceedings of Triennial International Conferences on Optical Research, IFORS Bulletin.

International Federation of Societies for Electron Microscopy (Fédération internationale des sociétés de microscopie électronique): Hearst Mining Bldg., University of California, Berkeley, Calif. 94720, U.S.A.; f. 1955. Mems.: representative organizations of 40 countries.

Pres. Dr. J. B. LE POOLE (The Netherlands); Gen.-Sec. Prof. GARETH THOMAS.

International Food Information Service: Editorial Office, Lane End House, Shinfield, Reading, RG2 9BB, England; f. 1968 by the Gesellschaft für Information und Dokumentation (Frankfurt), the Institute of Food Technologists (Chicago), the Commonwealth Agricultural Bureaux and the Centrum voor Landbouwpublikaties en Landbouwdocumentaties for the collection and dissemination of scientific and technological information on foods and their processing.

Joint Man Dirs. E. J. MANN, Dr. U. SCHÜTZSACK. Publ. Food Science and Technology Abstracts (monthly).

International Foundation of the High-Altitude Research Stations Jungfrauoch and Gornergrat (Fondation internationale des stations scientifiques du Jungfrauoch et Gornergrat): 5 Sidlerstrasse, 3000 Berne, Switzerland; f. 1931. An international research centre which enables scientists from many scientific fields to carry out experiments at high altitudes. 8 countries contribute to support the station: Austria, Belgium, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Holland, Italy, Switzerland, United Kingdom.

Pres. Prof. H. DEBRUNNER.

International Glaciological Society: Lensfield Rd., Cambridge, CB2 1ER, England; f. 1936 to stimulate interest in and encourage research into the scientific and technical problems of snow and ice in all countries; 1,050 mems. in 33 countries.

Pres. C. SWITHINBANK (U.K.); Vice-Pres. Dr. C. R. BENTLEY (U.S.A.), Dr. C. RAYOND (U.S.A.), Dr. H. RÖTHENSBERGER (Sweden); Gen.-Sec. H. RICHARDSON. Pubs. Journal of Glaciology (3 a year), Ice (News Bulletin—3 a year), Annals of Glaciology, Conference Proceedings.

International Hydrographic Organization (Organisation hydrographique internationale): Ave. Président J. F. Kennedy, B.P. 345, Monte Carlo, Monaco; f. 1921. Objects: to establish a close and permanent association among the hydrographic offices of its member governments; to co-ordinate the hydrographic work of these offices with a view to rendering navigation easier and safer on all the seas of the world; to endeavour to obtain as far as possible uniformity in charts and hydrographic documents; to encourage the adoption of the best methods of conducting hydrographic surveys and improvements in the theory and practice of the science of hydrography; and to encourage surveying in those parts of the world where accurate charts are lacking; to extend and facilitate the application of oceanographic knowledge for the benefit of navigators and specialists in marine sciences; to render advice and assistance to developing countries upon request, facilitating their application for financial aid from the UNDP for creation or extension of their hydrographic capabilities; to fulfil the role of world data centre for bathymetry; computerized Tidal Constituent Data Bank. Next Conference: 1982. 49 Member States.

Directing Committee: Pres. Rear Adml. G. S. RITCHIE, C.B., D.S.C., F.R.I.C.S. (U.K.); Dirs. Rear-Adml. D. C. KAPOOR, A.V.S.M. (India), Capt. J. E. AYRES (U.S.A.). Pubs. International Hydrographic Review (twice yearly), International Hydrographic Bulletin (monthly), IHO Yearbook, Reports of Proceedings of I.H. Conferences, Repertory of Technical Resolutions, special publications on various technical subjects, all in English and French, General Bathymetric Chart of the Oceans (in 24 sheets).

International Hibernation Society: 300 Dean Drive, Rockville, Md. 20851, U.S.A.; f. 1960 for exchange of information on mammalian hibernation. Mems.: 147 in 14 countries.

Exec. Sec. RICHARD C. SIMMONDS (U.S.A.). Publ. Newsletter (fortnightly).

International Institute of Refrigeration (Institut international de froid): 177 blvd. Malesherbes 75017 Paris, France; f. 1920 to further the development of the science and practice of refrigeration on a world-wide scale; to investigate, discuss and recommend any aspects leading to improvements and energy-saving in the field of refrigeration. Mems.: 56 countries and 950 associates.

Dir. A. GAC (France). Pubs. Bulletin (bi-monthly), International Journal of Refrigeration (bi-monthly), Proceedings of Meetings, International Recommendations, etc.

International Mineralogical Association: Institut für Mineralogie, Berlin-Charlottenburg, Hardenbergstr. 35, Federal Republic of Germany; f. 1958 to further international co-operation in the science of mineralogy. Mems.: national societies in Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, German Democratic Republic, Federal Republic of Germany, Hungary, India, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A.

Sec. Dr. CHRISTEL TENNYSON.

International Organisation of Legal Metrology (Organisation internationale de métrologie légale): 11 rue Turgot, 75009 Paris, France; f. 1955 to serve as documentation and information centre on the verification, checking, construction and use of measuring instruments, to determine characteristics and standards to which measuring instruments must conform for their use to be recommended internationally, and to determine the general principles of legal metrology. Mems.: governments of 46 countries.

Pres. K. BIRKELAND (Norway); Dir. B. ATHANÉ (France). Publ. Bulletin (quarterly).

International Palaeontological Association (Association internationale de paléontologie): Geological Institute, University of Göttingen, Göttingen, Federal Republic of Germany; f. 1933; affiliated to the International Union of Geological Sciences and the International Union of Biological Sciences.

Pres. B. S. SOKOLOV (U.S.S.R.); Sec.-Gen. Prof. O. WALLISER (Federal Republic of Germany).

International Phonetic Association—IPA (Association phonétique internationale): University College, Gower St., London, WC1E 6BT, England; f. 1886 to promote the scientific study of phonetics and its applications. Mems.: 800.

Pres. (vacant); Sec. J. C. WELLS (U.K.). Publ. Journal (twice yearly).

International Polar Motion Service (Service international mouvement polaire): International Latitude Observatory of Mizusawa, Mizusawa, Iwate-ken, Japan; f. 1962 to replace the International Latitude Service (f. 1899). Object: to make observations in latitude and time stations all over the world for the study of all problems relating to the earth's rotation; central bureau of the service collects astronomical observations, determines polar motion and distributes the data and results.

Dir. Dr. K. YOKOYAMA. Pubs. Monthly Notes, Annual Reports.

International Primatological Society: c/o Dr. Allan M. Schrier, Dept. of Psychology, Brown University, Providence, R.I. 02912, U.S.A.; f. 1964 to promote primatological science in all fields. Mems.: about 750. Pres. Dr. WILLIAM A. MASON (U.S.A.); Sec.-Gen. Dr. ALLAN M. SCHRIER (U.S.A.).

International Radiation Protection Association—IRPA: Gartnergasse 15-1/27, 1030 Vienna, Austria; f. September, 1966, to unite in an international scientific society, individuals and societies throughout the world concerned with protection against ionizing radiations and allied effects, and to be representative of doctors, health physicists, radiological protection officers and others engaged in radiological protection, radiation safety, nuclear safety, legal, medical and veterinary aspects and in radiation research and other allied activities. Mems.: approx. 6,400 individual founding members and associates from 23 associate societies.

International Scientific Film Library (Cinéma-thèque scientifique internationale): 29 rue Vautier, 1040 Brussels, Belgium; f. 1961; created under the patronage of the International Scientific Film Association and the Belgian Ministry of National Education and Culture; to preserve the most outstanding scientific and technical films and also to promote the knowledge, study, widest possible dissemination and the rationalization of the production of scientific films. Mems.: 49.

Pres. Prof. JAN JACOBY (Poland); Dir.-Curator P. BORMANS (Belgium). Pubs. Catalogue of Films Deposited, The Pioneers of the Scientific Cinema (series).

International Society for General Semantics: P.O.B. 2469, San Francisco, Calif. 94126, U.S.A.; f. 1942 to advance knowledge and inquiry into non-Aristotelian systems and general semantics. Mems.: 3,000 individuals in 28 countries.

Pres. MARY MORAIN (U.S.A.); Exec. Dir. RUSSELL JOYNER (U.S.A.).

International Society for Human and Animal Mycology—ISHAM (Société internationale de mycologie humaine et animale): Gellerstrasse 11a, CH-4052 Basel, Switzerland; f. 1954; to pursue the study of fungi pathogenic for man and animals. Mems. 800 from 68 countries.

Pubs. Sabouraudia (1 vol. of 4 parts per year), Newsletter.

International Society for Rock Mechanics (Société internationale de mécanique des roches): Laboratório Nacional de Engenharia Civil, Av. do Brasil, 1799 Lisboa Codex, Portugal; f. 1962 to encourage and co-ordinate international co-operation in the science of rock mechanics; to assist individuals and local organizations to form national bodies primarily interested in rock mechanics; to maintain liaison with other organizations that represent sciences of interest to the Society, including geology, geophysics, soil mechanics, mining engineering, petroleum engineering and civil engineering. The Society organizes international meetings and encourages the publication of the results of research in rock mechanics. Mems.: c. 4,500.

Pres. Prof. WALTER WITKE; Sec.-Gen. Dr. ARNALDO SILVÉRIO. Publ. News (quarterly).

International Society for Stereology: Department of Anatomy, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455, U.S.A.; f. 1961; an interdisciplinary society gathering scientists from metallurgy, geology, mineralogy and biology to exchange ideas on three-dimensional interpretation of two-dimensional samples (sections, projections) of their material by means of stereological principles. Fifth Congress, Salzburg, Sept. 1979. Mems.: 450.

Pres. H. E. EXNER; Sec. ANNA-MARY CARPENTER, PH.D., M.D.

International Society for Tropical Ecology: c/o Botany Dept., Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi, 221005 India; f. 1956 to promote and develop the science of ecology in the tropics in the service of man; to publish a journal to aid ecologists in the tropics in communication of their findings; and to hold symposia from time to time to summarize the state of knowledge in particular or general fields of tropical ecology. 500 members. Sec. Dr. K. C. MISRA (India); Editor Prof. R. MISRA. Publ. Tropical Ecology (2 a year).

International Society of Biometeorology: 446 Witikonstrasse, 8053 Zürich, Switzerland; f. 1956. Aims: to unite all biometeorologists working in the fields of Agricultural, Botanical, Cosmic, Entomological, Forest, Human, Medical, Veterinarian, Zoological and other branches of Biometeorology. Mems.: 500 individuals, nationals of 46 countries.

Pres. Prof. Dr. H. LIETH (West Germany); Sec. Dr. B. P. PRIMAUULT (Switzerland). Publ. International Journal of Biometeorology.

International Society of Electrochemistry—ISE (Société internationale d'électrochimie—SIE): Institut des métaux et des machines, 34 chemin de Bellerive, 1007 Lausanne, Switzerland; f. 1949. Mems.: 769 in 36 countries.

Chair. Prof. CH. TOBIAS (U.S.A.); Gen. Sec. Prof. D. LANDOLT (Switzerland). Publ. Electrochimica Acta (monthly).

International Time Bureau (Bureau international de l'Heure): 61 ave. de l'Observatoire, 75014 Paris, France; f. 1912 to determine Universal Time and the co-ordinates of the terrestrial pole; to maintain international atomic time; to co-ordinate time signals emissions. Mems.: Observatories and Laboratories of Standards in 32 countries.

Dir. Prof. B. GUINOT. Pubs. Annual Report, Circulars.

International Translations Centre (Centre international des traductions): 101 Doelenstraat, 2611 NS Delft, The Netherlands; f. 1961; is an international clearing house for scientific and technical translations prepared from languages difficult of access for the West; managed by a board representative of national centres from 12 European countries; maintains information network for announcing new translations.

Chair. Dr. S. SCHWARZ (Sweden); Dir. D. VAN BERGHEIJK (Netherlands). Pubs. World Transindex (monthly), Journals in Translation (irregular), Translation News (irregular).

International Union of Microbiological Societies—IUMS (Union internationale des sociétés de microbiologie): CNRS/LCB, 31 Chemin Joseph Aiguier, 13274 Marseille Cedex 2, France; f. 1930. Mems.: 71 national microbiological societies.

Pres. Prof. Dr. H. P. R. SEELIGER (Federal Republic of Germany); Sec.-Gen. Prof. J. C. SENEZ.

International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources—IUCN (Union internationale pour la conservation de la nature et de ses ressources): 1196 Gland, Switzerland; f. 1948 to promote the conservation of natural resources by the scientific monitoring of their conditions, by determining scientific priorities for conservation, mobilizing the scientific and professional resources to investigate the most serious conservation problems and recommend solutions to them, developing programmes to protect and sustain the most important and threatened species and ecosystems and assisting governments to devise and carry out conservation projects; maintains a conservation library and documentation centre and units for monitoring traffic in wildlife. Mems.: governments of 56 countries, 116 government agencies, 281 national non-governmental organizations, 22 international non-governmental organizations and six affiliates.

Pres. Prof. MOHAMED EL-KASSAS (Egypt); Dir.-Gen. Dr. LEE M. TALBOT (U.S.A.). Publs. IUCN Bulletin (every 2 months) incl. annual report, IUCN Books, Red Data Books on Vertebrates and Plants, World Conservation Strategy, World Directory of National Parks and other Protected Areas, United Nations List of National Parks and Equivalent Reserves, Environmental Policy and Law Papers.

International Union for Quaternary Research (Union internationale pour l'étude de quaternaire): Vrije Universiteit Brussels, Kwartairgeologie Pleinlaan 2, B-1050 Brussels, Belgium; f. 1928.

Pres. J. SOONS (New Zealand); Sec.-Treas. R. PAEPE (Belgium).

International Union for the Study of Social Insects (Union internationale pour l'étude des insectes sociaux): Dept. of Biology, The University, Southampton, England; f. 1951. Mems.: about 700 of almost all nationalities.

Pres. Prof. C. D. MICHENER; Sec. Dr. P. E. HOWSE. Publs. Insectes sociaux, Congress, Symposia proceedings.

International Union of Food Science and Technology: f. 1970; sponsors international symposia and congresses. Mems.: 43 national groups.

Pres. J. H. HULSE (Canada); Sec.-Gen. J. F. KEFFORD, CSIRO Division of Food Research, P.O.B. 52, North Ryde, N.S.W. 2113, Australia. Publ. IUFST Newsletter (2 a year).

International Waterfowl Research Bureau (Bureau international de recherches sur les oiseaux d'eau): Slimbridge, Glos. GL2 7BX, England; f. 1954 to promote and co-ordinate research on and conservation of waterfowl; 32 mem. countries.

Dir. Prof. G. V. T. MATTHEWS. Publs. Bulletin and special volumes.

Joint Institute for Nuclear Research (Obedinennyi Institut Yadernykh Issledovaniy): Postal Address: Head Post Office, P.O.B. 79, Moscow, U.S.S.R.; Headquarters: Dubna, near Moscow, U.S.S.R.; f. 1956 to collaborate in nuclear research between the member countries; Committee of Government Plenipotentiaries composed of heads of atomic energy authorities of member countries meets annually to determine future policy and finance; Scientific Council composed of senior scientists plans programme of work; Management carries out practical work of the Institute between meetings of the Committee. Research Laboratories for: Nuclear Problems, High Energies, Theoretical Physics, Neutron Physics, Nuclear Reactions and Computing and Automation; Special Departments: ion acceleration laboratory, high energy division. Mems.: Bulgaria, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, German Democratic Republic, Hungary, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Mongolia, Poland, Romania, U.S.S.R., Viet-Nam.

Chair. Scientific Council and Dir. Academician N. N. BOGOLUBOV (U.S.S.R.); Deputy Dirs. Prof. D. KISS (Hungary), Prof. M. SOWINSKI (Poland); Admin. Man. V. L. KARPOVSKY.

NORDITA (Nordic Institute for Theoretical Atomic Physics): Blegdamsvej 17, DK-2100 Copenhagen Ø, Denmark; f. 1957 to promote scientific research and co-operation in theoretical atomic physics among the Nordic countries and to provide advanced training for younger physicists; mems.: Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden.

Dir. Prof. AAGE BOHR; Chair. of Board Prof. HAAKON OLSEN.

Nordic Society for Cell Biology (Nordisk Forening for Celleforskning): c/o Prof. Nils Björkman, Dept. of Anatomy, Royal Veterinary and Agricultural College, Bülowsvej 13, 1870 Copenhagen V, Denmark; f. 1960 to promote contact between cell biologists through symposia and a congress every two years. Mems.: 245 in Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden.

Chair. Prof. BJÖRN AFZELIUS (Sweden); Sec. Prof. NILS BJÖRKMAN (Denmark). Publs. abstracts of papers presented at congresses in Experimental Cell Research and Norwegian Journal of Zoology, Proceedings of Congress.

ALBANIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The People's Socialist Republic of Albania is bordered by Yugoslavia to the north and east, Greece to the south and the Adriatic and Ionian Seas to the west. The climate is Mediterranean throughout most of the country. The sea plays a moderating role, although frequent cyclones in the winter months make the weather unstable. The average temperature is 14°C in the north-east and 18°C in the south-west. The language is Albanian, the principal dialects being Gheg (north of the Shkumbini river) and Tosk (in the south). The literary language is being formed on the basis of a strong fusion of the two dialects with the phonetic and morphological structure of Tosk prevailing. The State recognizes no religion and supports atheist propaganda. All religious institutions have been closed. Before 1946 Islam was the predominant faith, with very small numbers of Catholics in the north and Greek Orthodox in the south. The flag (proportions 7 by 5) is red, with a two-headed black eagle, above which is a gold-edged, five-pointed red star. The capital is Tirana (Tiranë).

Recent History

After more than 400 years of Turkish rule, Albania declared its independence in 1912. The country was occupied by Italy in April 1939, after which Albania was united with the Italian crown for four years. Albania was occupied by German forces in 1943 but they withdrew after a year and a provisional government was established in October 1944.

The Communist-led National Liberation Front (NLF), established with help from Yugoslav Communists in 1941, was the most successful wartime resistance group and took power in November 1944. Elections held in 1945 were based on a single list of candidates, sponsored by the Communists. Government came under the control of Enver Hoxha, head of the Albanian Communist Party (now the Party of Labour) since 1943. The People's Republic of Albania was proclaimed in January 1946.

The NLF regime had close links with Yugoslavia, including a monetary and customs union, until the Stalin-Tito break in 1948. Albania's leaders, fearing Yugoslav expansionism, quickly turned against their former mentors. Albania became a Soviet satellite until Stalin's death in 1953.

Hoxha resigned as Head of Government in 1954 but retained effective national leadership as First Secretary of the Party of Labour. Albania joined the Warsaw Pact in 1955 but relations with the U.S.S.R. deteriorated when Soviet leaders attempted a rapprochement with Yugoslavia. Albania supported Beijing in the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute. The U.S.S.R. denounced Albania and broke off relations in 1961. Albania turned increasingly to China for support, ended participation in the CMEA in 1962 and withdrew from the Warsaw Pact in 1968. However, following the improvement of relations between China and the U.S.A. after 1972, Albania became disenchanted with Beijing. Sino-Albanian relations deteriorated further upon the death of Mao Zedong in 1976.

In 1974 the Minister of Defence was dismissed, but it was not until 1978 that the Government chose to reveal that he had been involved in a plot against the regime on behalf of China, and that he had been executed in 1975. In 1977 thousands of pro-Chinese officials were believed to have been imprisoned. In 1978 Albania announced its full support of Viet-Nam in its dispute with Beijing and China formally terminated all economic and military co-operation with Albania, although diplomatic links are still maintained.

A new constitution was adopted in December 1976, declaring Albania a People's Socialist Republic, and re-affirming its policy of self-reliance. Albania was not represented at the 1980 Madrid Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe. As a result of the rift with Beijing, Albania has shown a tentative interest in emerging from its isolation and improving relations with its neighbours and other European countries, but still remains hostile to the U.S.S.R. Ideological differences have prevented friendly relations with Yugoslavia, and the question of the Albanian minority in Yugoslavia remains a sensitive issue. The visit to Yugoslavia by Albania's Minister of Foreign Trade in July 1980 led to closer economic co-operation, but in 1981 relations were strained following riots by ethnic Albanians in the Yugoslav province of Kosovo.

Elections to the People's Assembly were held in November 1978, resulting in an effective 100 per cent poll for the 250 candidates nominated by the Democratic Front. In September 1979 Hysni Kapo, member of the Politburo and one of Hoxha's closest collaborators, died. A government reshuffle was carried out in April 1980. Mehmet Shehu, Chairman of the Council of Ministers, was relieved of his concurrent post of Minister of Defence. In June a Ministry of Communal Economy was created. In March 1981 a Ministry of Energy was established.

Government

Nominally the supreme organ of government is the People's Assembly, a single-chamber legislature of 250 deputies. In practice the Assembly meets for only a few days each year to ratify actions taken in its name by the Presidium of the Assembly, whose President is Head of State. Executive authority is held by the Council of Ministers, whose Chairman is Head of Government. The Council is elected by the People's Assembly.

Real power is held by leaders of the (Communist) Albanian Party of Labour or Workers' Party, the only political party in the country. The Party has a political monopoly; it controls the entire functioning of government and all the country's leaders are members. The Party Congress, convened every five years, elects the Central Committee (81 full members and 40 candidate members were elected in November 1981), which in turn elects the Political Bureau (Politburo).

Elections to the People's Assembly, held every four years, are based on a single list of candidates standing for the Communist-led Democratic Front.

For local government Albania is divided into 26 districts, each under a People's Council elected every three years.

Defence

Defence in Albania is conducted under the auspices of the People's Army which was founded in 1943. Military service lasts for two years in the Army, and three years in the Air Force, Navy and paramilitary units. According to Western estimates, the total strength of the armed forces was 43,000 in July 1981, comprising Army 30,000, Air Force 10,000 and Navy 3,000. The internal security forces number 5,000 and the frontier force 8,000. Defence expenditure in 1980 was estimated at 915 million lekë.

Economic Affairs

Albania is the poorest country in Europe. The World Bank's estimate of G.N.P. per capita in 1978 was only U.S. $740. However, Albania has considerable mineral resources, and its hydro-electric potential is being developed rapidly. The economy operates on the principles of public ownership of the means of production. Long-term planning began in 1951, and by 1965 the semi-feudal society had been replaced by the state-run agrarian-industrial system. The fifth Five-Year Plan (1971-75) aimed to develop production through extensive capital investments and large industrial building projects. During the sixth Five-Year Plan (1976-80) the annual growth in the national income averaged 5 per cent. Industrial output increased by an average annual rate of 6.8 per cent. Agricultural production rose by 21.4 per cent over the previous five-year period. Exports increased by 33 per cent, processed and semi-processed goods accounting for 70 per cent of the total. The seventh Five-Year Plan (1981-85) envisages an increase of 35-37 per cent in the national income. Industrial production is expected to rise by 36-38 per cent, agricultural output by 30-32 per cent, exports by 58-60 and imports by 56-58 per cent.

Industry now utilizes natural resources, and Albania refines its own oil. Priority is being given to the development of the power industries. Albania is the world's second largest exporter of chromite (chromium ore). Production increased by 36 per cent between 1975 and 1979. The biggest mine is at Bulqize in Dibër District. Other important products include coal, output of which was reported to have increased by 50 per cent between 1975 and 1979, copper, nickel, pyrite, agricultural raw materials, machinery and equipment, chemical materials, fertilizers, building materials and textiles. An iron and steel plant opened at Elbasan in 1976, and a second blast furnace began production in 1981. Agriculture was transformed after 1945 by land reclamation, mechanization and complete collectivization. In 1980 the 423 co-operatives accounted for 77 per cent of total agricultural production.

Albania's principal exports, besides chromite, include ferro-nickel ore, copper wire, bitumen, tobacco and cigarettes, timber and furniture, textiles, canned foods, wine, fruit and vegetables. The constitution forbids the acceptance of foreign credits. Economic growth has been hindered by the Government's inflexible trading policies and by the ending of all agreements with China, which accounted for half of Albania's foreign trade until 1978. Trade exchanges with Greece were expected to increase to U.S. $50 million a year from 1980. A goods exchange agreement for 1981-85 was signed with Yugoslavia in 1980, setting the total value of their trade at $720 million. Long-term agreements (1981-85) have also been concluded with Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, North Korea and Viet-Nam.

Transport and Communications

There are 228 km. of railway track, all of it built since 1944. By 1980 rail traffic accounted for 37 per cent of all freight carried. In April 1979 Albania and Yugoslavia agreed to construct a 50-km. railway between Shkodër and Titograd. A line between Durrës and the Bulgarian Black Sea ports is also planned. Roads now link the remotest regions of the country although smaller roads, particularly in the highlands, are mostly unsuitable for motor transport. There are no private cars in Albania, and bicycles and mules are widely used. Albania's merchant fleet uses the main ports of Durrës, Vlorë and Sarandë. A new port is under construction near Vlorë. There is an airport at Rinas for international flights, and in 1977 Albania concluded an air agreement with Greece, thus opening its first air link with the West. There is no internal air service.

Social Welfare

In Albania all medical services are free of charge. There are now hospitals, clinics and maternity homes throughout the country which provide free treatment for the entire population. In 1980 there was one doctor for every 579 persons. Socio-cultural expenditure in 1981 amounted to 1,932 million lekë. Kindergartens and nursery schools receive large subsidies. There is a non-contributory state social insurance system for all workers, and a pension system for the old and disabled. Income tax has been abolished, government expenditure being met by surpluses earned by state enterprises.

Education

Education in Albania is provided free. Children in the age group of three to six years may attend nursery school (kopshte); children between the ages of seven and 15 years attend an "eighth-grade school" which is compulsory. Secondary schools in Albania may be divided into three main categories, namely "12-year schools" (shkollat 12-vjeçare) giving four-year courses, secondary technical-professional schools (shkollat e mesme tekniko-profesionale) which combine vocational training with a general education, and lower vocational schools (shkollat e ulte profesionale) which train workers in the fields of agriculture and industry. The school-year in secondary schools lasts six and a half months. All secondary-school graduates are required to spend a year working in factories or on collective farms.

In the 1972-73 school year there were 699,000 students enrolled at eighth-grade, secondary and high schools. In the same year 30,200 students were enrolled at higher education institutes in Albania. The State University of Tirana has 16,000 students. Students at higher education institutes spend seven months of every year at the institute, two months in production or construction work, one month in physical culture and military training, and two months on vacation. Since 1979 a number of Albanian students have been permitted to attend training courses in the West.

Tourism

All aspects of tourism in Albania are handled by Albturist, the state tourist department. There are about 10,000 foreign visitors to Albania each year. There are few recognized resorts apart from Durrës, although great potential exists in the beauty spots on the coast and in the scenery of the interior.

Public Holidays

1982: May 1st (May Day), November 7th (Victory of the October Socialist Revolution), November 28th (Proclamation of Independence), November 29th (Liberation Day 1944).

1983: January 1st (New Year's Day), January 11th (Proclamation of the Republic).

Coins: 5, 10, 20 and 50 qintars; 1 lek.

Notes: 1, 3, 5, 10, 25, 50 and 100 lekë.

Exchange rates (October 1981): £1 sterling=13.08 lekë;

U.S. $1=7.00 lekë (non-commercial rates).

100 lekë=£7.64=$14.29.

Note: Between August 1965 and August 1971 the basic exchange rate was U.S. $1=5.00 lekë (1 lek=20 U.S. cents). From December 1971 to February 1973 the rate was $1=4.605 lekë. A new basic rate of $1=4.145 lekë was introduced in February 1973. During 1976 this was adjusted to $1=4.10 lekë. In terms of sterling, the basic rate between November 1967 and June 1972 was £1=12.00 lekë. The non-commercial rate, applicable to tourism and to remittances from non-communist countries, was set at $1=7.00 lekë in 1979.

STATE BUDGET

1979 (provisional): Revenue 7,800 million lekë; Expenditure 7,750 million lekë.

1980 (provisional): Revenue 8,000 million lekë; Expenditure 7,950 million lekë.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Adopted December 27th, 1976)

Summary

THE SOCIAL ORDER THE POLITICAL ORDER

Articles 1-15

Albania is a People's Socialist Republic, based on the dictatorship of the proletariat. The Albanian Party of Labour (Workers' Party) is the sole leading political force of the State and society. Marxism-Leninism is the ruling ideology.

The representative bodies are the People's Assembly and the People's Councils, elected by the people through universal suffrage by equal, direct and secret ballot. Officials serve the people and render account to them. They also participate directly in production work, in order to prevent the creation of a privileged stratum.

In the construction of socialism, Albania relies primarily on its own efforts.

THE ECONOMIC ORDER

Articles 16-31

The economy is a socialist economy, which relies on the socialist ownership of the means of production. Socialist property is inviolable and state property belongs to all the people. The State works to narrow the differences between the countryside and the cities. The personal property of the citizens is recognized and protected by the State.

Foreign trade is a state monopoly.

The granting of concessions to, and the creation of foreign or joint economic or financial institutions with, capitalist, bourgeois and revisionist monopolies and States, as well as the acceptance of credits from them, is prohibited.

Citizens pay no levies or taxes whatsoever.

EDUCATION, SCIENCE AND CULTURE

Articles 32-37

The State carries out broad ideological and cultural activity for the communist education of the working people. Education is organized by the State and is free of charge.

The State organizes the development of science and technology.

The State recognizes no religion and supports and carries out atheist propaganda.

THE FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF CITIZENS

Articles 38-65

The rights and duties of citizens are founded on the reconciliation of the interests of the individual with those of the socialist society.

All citizens are equal before the law. Women enjoy the same rights as men.

Citizens reaching the age of 18 have the right to take part in voting for, and to be elected to, all organs of state power.

Citizens enjoy the right to work and to recreation. Workers are guaranteed the necessary material means for life in old age and sickness.

Marriage and the family are under the care and protection of the State and society. Marriage is contracted before the competent state organs.

Citizens enjoy freedom of speech.

The creation of all organizations of a fascist, anti-democratic, religious or anti-socialist nature is prohibited.

SUPREME BODIES OF STATE POWER THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY

Articles 66-74

The People's Assembly is the supreme body of state power and sole law-making body. It defines the main directions of the domestic and foreign policy of the State. It elects, appoints and dismisses the Presidium of the People's Assembly, the Council of Ministers, the Supreme Court, the Attorney-General and his deputies.

The People's Assembly is composed of 250 deputies, elected for a period of four years, and meets in regular session twice a year.

THE PRESIDIUM OF THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY

Articles 75-79

The Presidium of the People's Assembly is the supreme body of state power, with permanent activity, and is composed of a President, three Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and 10 members. It convenes the sessions of the People's Assembly and, between sessions, supervises the implementation of the laws and decisions of the People's Assembly, and controls all state organs.

The Presidium directs and controls the activity of the People's Councils.

THE SUPREME ORGANS OF STATE ADMINISTRATION

Articles 80-86

The Council of Ministers is the supreme executive and order-issuing body, and is composed of the Chairman, Vice-Chairmen and ministers. It directs activity for the realization of the domestic and foreign policies of the State. It directs and controls the activity of the ministries, other central organs of the state administration and the executive committees of the People's Councils.

The Chairman and Vice-Chairmen of the Council of Ministers constitute the Presidium of the Council of Ministers.

THE COUNTRY'S DEFENCE AND THE ARMED FORCES

Articles 87-91

The State protects the victories of the people's revolution and of socialist construction, and defends the freedom, national independence and territorial integrity of the country.

The armed forces are led by the Albanian Workers' Party. The First Secretary of the Central Committee of the Albanian Workers' Party is the Supreme Commander of the armed forces and Chairman of the Defence Council. The stationing of foreign bases and military forces in Albania is not permitted.

LOCAL ORGANS OF STATE POWER AND STATE ADMINISTRATION

Articles 92-100

The People's Councils are organs of state power, which carry out the administration in the respective administrative-territorial units with the broad participation of the working masses. The People's Councils are elected for a term of three years.

THE PEOPLE'S COURTS

Articles 101-103

The People's Courts are bodies which administer justice. At the head of the organs of justice stands the Supreme Court, which directs and controls the activity of the courts. The Supreme Court is elected at the first session of the People's Assembly. The other People's Courts are elected by the people.

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE

Articles 104-106

It is the duty of the Attorney-General's Office to supervise the implementation of the laws. The Attorney-General and his deputies are appointed at the first session of the People's Assembly. Attorneys are appointed by the Presidium of the Assembly.

THE EMBLEM, THE FLAG, THE CAPITAL

Articles 107-109

The emblem of the People's Socialist Republic of Albania consists of a black double-headed eagle, encircled by two sheaves of wheat with a five-pointed red star at the top and tied at the bottom by a red ribbon bearing the inscription "24th May 1944".

The state flag has a red background with a black double-headed eagle in the middle and a red five-pointed star outlined in gold at the top.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Justice is administered under the Constitution by the Supreme Court, and by District, Village, County and Township Courts created by a special law in October 1968 as links of the judicial system which functions within the ranks of the people. Military Tribunals are held at the Supreme and District Courts. Courts of Justice are independent in the exercise of their functions, and are separated from the administration.

Until March 1966 the judicial system was supervised by a Minister of Justice and his officials. This department now no longer exists and its principal responsibilities are discharged by the Supreme Court. The current Penal Code came into force in September 1952, while the Civil Code has gradually been adopted since 1954. Trials are normally held in public. The accused is assured the right of defence, and the principle of presumption of innocence is sanctioned by Article 13 of the Code of Penal Procedure. The Supreme Court and the District Courts are made up of a professional judge and two Assistant Judges, who are workers elected in the same way as the judges. Trials in the Village, County and Township Courts are held before an Assistant Judge from the District Court and two social activists. Second-degree cases are held in the Supreme Court before three judges, and in the District Courts before Assistant Judges. The verdicts of the lower courts may be altered, within the law, by the higher courts, and judges may be recalled before the expiration of their term by their electors or the organ which has elected them.

The Supreme Court is elected for a four-year term by the People's Assembly; between sessions of the Assembly, individual members of the Court are elected by the Presidium of the People's Assembly. The District Courts are elected for a three-year term by a secret ballot of all voting citizens.

President of the Supreme Court: ARANIT ÇELA.

The Attorney-General and his deputies are appointed by the People's Assembly.

Attorney-General: RRAPO MINO.

RELIGION

There is no formal practice of the previously predominant Muslim religion although certain social traditions persist. All religious institutions were closed by the government in 1967. Article 37 of the 1976 constitution states that Albania recognizes no religion and supports and carries out atheist propaganda. All of the old mosques have now been shut down and are preserved as centres of cultural interest. Formerly the population was approximately 70 per cent Muslim, 15 per cent Roman Catholic (in the north) and 15 per cent Greek Orthodox (in the south).

THE PRESS

The Albanian press recognizes itself as a powerful medium of educational and organizational propaganda with a profound Marxist-Leninist ideological content. It expresses party doctrine probably more forcefully than any other European communist press. There are numerous local newspapers, generally the organs of the regional party committees.

In 1976 there were 25 newspapers, with a total circulation of 47 million copies. The most important publications are the Communist Party daily, Zëri i Popullit, and Bashkimi, the organ of the Democratic Front.

The Albanian news agency, ATA, has a monopoly of news distribution in Albania.

ANDORRA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Valleys of Andorra form an autonomous principality in the eastern Pyrenees, bounded by France and Spain, and lying about half way between Barcelona and Toulouse. The climate is alpine with much snow in winter and a warm summer. The official language is Catalan. The majority of the population is Roman Catholic. The flag (proportions 3 by 2) has equal vertical stripes of blue, yellow and red, with the state coat of arms in the centre of the yellow stripe. The capital is Andorra la Vella.

Recent History

As there is no clear line drawn between the competence of the General Council of Andorra and the co-princes who rule the country, the Andorrans have met with many difficulties in recent years in their struggle to gain international status for their country and control over its essential services.

In the December 1971 elections to the General Council there were three new categories of voters: women, who had been officially enfranchised by decree in April 1970; persons between the ages of 21 and 25; and second-generation Andorrans including sons of Andorran mothers (previously, only third-generation Andorrans were entitled to vote).

In partial elections to the General Council in December 1977 the franchise was extended to include all first-generation Andorrans of foreign parentage aged 28 and over. In recent years Andorra's foreign residents, who make up about 70 per cent of the population, have themselves been demanding political rights. Immigration is on a quota system, being restricted to French and Spanish nationals intending to work in Andorra.

A seventh parish was created within the principality by the separation of Les Escaldes from the joint parish of Andorra la Vella-Les Escaldes in June 1978. Estanislau Sangrà Font, one of the four councillors from the new parish, was elected First Syndic in December, breaking a tradition of more than 100 years of government by Syndics from the parish of Sant Julià de Lòria.

In October 1978 the two Co-princes met for the first time in 700 years. The occasion for their meeting was the anniversary of Andorra's status as a co-principality, established in 1278. In a speech to the Andorran people President Giscard d'Estaing, the French Co-prince, pledged improvement in the roads linking France and Andorra and closer financial and technical co-operation between the two countries in the future.

Andorra's only political association, the Partit Democràtic d'Andorra, which was formed in 1979 and is still technically illegal, campaigns for institutional reforms to bring about a more democratic style of government.

Government

Andorra has no proper constitution, and its peculiar autonomy is a legacy of feudal conditions; the country, although administratively independent, has no clear international status. Andorra is a co-principality, under the suzerainty of the President of France and the Spanish Bishop of Urgel. The valleys pay a nominal bi-annual tax, the questia, to France and to the Bishop of Urgel. The French head of state is represented in Andorra by the Veguer de França, and the Bishop by the Veguer Episcopal. Each co-ruler has set up a permanent delegation for Andorran Affairs. The Permanent Delegates are, respectively, the prefect of the French department of Pyrénées-Orientales and the vicar general of the Urgel diocese.

The General Council of the Valleys submits motions and proposals to the permanent delegation. The 28 members (four from each of the seven parishes) are elected by adult Andorran citizens for four years, half the Council being renewed every two years. The Council nominates the First Syndic (Syndic Procurador General), to act as chief executive for a three-year term, and the Second Syndic, who cease to be members of the Council on their election. Proposals have been made for a reform of the electoral system and the introduction of a second legislative chamber.

Economic Affairs

Andorra's products are mainly agricultural, cereals, potatoes and tobacco being the principal crops. Livestock is raised and there are approximately 12,000 sheep, 3,600 cattle and 180 horses. Iron, lead, alum, stone and timber are produced. In the last decades Andorra la Vella has become a market for numerous European goods, owing to favourable excise conditions. However, concern within Andorra over the social implications of such a rapid development has led to calls for a brake on economic expansion.

French and Spanish currencies are in use. There is no income tax and property taxes are low. About 90 per cent of revenue comes from taxes on petrol and consumer goods. Since medieval times the profits of butchers, hotels and chemists have been the property of the principality. An official budget estimate is announced every year in November.

Tourism is an important source of revenue, both in winter and summer.

Education

Education is provided by both French and Spanish schools. Instruction in Catalan has only recently become available at a new school run by the local church. In 1979 there were a total of 6,300 pupils attending the 18 schools. The total number of teaching staff was 305.

Tourism

Andorra has attractive mountain scenery, with winter sports facilities available at four ski-ing centres. In 1979 about 7 million foreign tourists entered Andorra, most of them visitors in transit.

Public Holidays

1982: September 8th (National Holiday), December 25th (Christmas).

AUSTRIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Austria lies in Central Europe, between Switzerland, Liechtenstein, the Federal Republic of Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Italy. The climate varies sharply owing to great differences in elevation. The mean annual temperature lies between 7° and 9°C (45° and 48°F). The population is 99 per cent German-speaking, with small Croat and Slovene-speaking minorities. About 89 per cent are Roman Catholics and about 6 per cent are Protestants. The national flag (proportions 3 by 2) consists of three horizontal bands of red, white and red. The state flag has, in addition, the coat of arms in the centre. The capital is Vienna.

Recent History

Austria was annexed by Germany in March 1938. After liberation by Allied forces, a provisional government was established in April 1945. Following Germany's surrender, Austria was divided into four zones occupied by forces of the U.S.A., the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and France. These four approved the first elections held in November 1945, when the People's Party won 85 and the Socialist Party 76 of the 165 seats in the Nationalrat. These two parties formed a government under the first post-war President of the Republic, Dr. Karl Renner. However, it was not until May 1955 that the four powers signed a State Treaty with Austria ending the occupation and recognizing Austrian independence, effective from July 27th. Occupation forces left in October 1955.

A period of over 20 years of coalition government came to an end in April 1966 with the formation of a Council of Ministers by the People's Party alone. Dr. Bruno Kreisky, a former Foreign Minister, was elected leader of the Socialist Party in 1967 and the Socialists achieved a relative majority in the March 1970 general elections and formed a minority government with Kreisky as Federal Chancellor. The Socialist Party gained an absolute majority in the Nationalrat in general elections held in 1971 and 1975. In November 1978 the Government was defeated in a national referendum on whether to commission Austria's first nuclear power plant and it was widely expected that Kreisky would resign. However, the Socialist Party gave him their full support and he emerged in an apparently even stronger position. In March 1979 the Socialists made unexpected gains in important regional elections in Salzburg and Lower Austria and in the general election held in May they increased their majority in the Nationalrat to 18. The debate on nuclear power was revived in October 1980, but the motion was again defeated in the Nationalrat and the controversial plant at Zwentendorf remains an expensive "nuclear museum". The issue has provoked a split within both the ruling Socialist Party and the opposition ÖVP.

In January 1981 Kreisky announced a Cabinet reshuffle following the resignation of the Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Finance, Hannes Androsch, who had come under attack from both his own party and the opposition for his personal financial practices. Austria's traditional political and social stability was threatened more than once in 1981. The first killing of a politician since 1945 (for which Arab extremists claimed responsibility) took place in May, and in August an attack by the Palestine Liberation Organization on a Viennese synagogue put a strain on relations with Israel. By July, concern was mounting over the unprecedented number of Poles seeking political asylum in Austria. There was some likelihood that Dr. Kreisky would retire as Chancellor before the general election due in May 1983.

Government

Austria is a federal republic divided into nine provinces each with its own provincial assembly and government. Legislative power is held by the bicameral Federal Assembly. The first chamber, the Nationalrat (National Council), has 183 members elected by universal adult suffrage for four years (subject to dissolution) on the basis of proportional representation. The second chamber, the Bundesrat (Federal Council), has 58 members elected for varying terms by the provincial assemblies. The Federal President, elected by popular vote for six years, is the Head of State. He normally acts on the advice of the Council of Ministers, led by the Federal Chancellor, which is responsible to the Nationalrat.

Defence

After the ratification of the State Treaty in 1955, Austria declared its permanent neutrality. To protect its independence, the armed forces were instituted. Military service is compulsory and consists of six months' initial training, followed by a maximum of 60 days' reservist and 30 to 90 days' specialist training for twelve years. In July 1981 the total armed forces numbered 16,300 regulars and 34,000 conscripts; the army consisted of 14,000 regulars and 32,000 conscripts, and the air force of 2,300 regulars and 2,000 conscripts. Austrian air units are an integral part of the army. Total strength which can be mobilized is 167,000, in addition to 70,000 reservists called up for training during the year. The 1981 defence budget totalled 12,860 million Schilling.

Economic Affairs

The Austrian economy depends mainly on manufacturing, while agriculture is of declining importance. The proportion of the labour force in agriculture and forestry dropped steadily from 17.3 per cent in 1971 to 10.4 per cent in 1980 and the agricultural contribution to the Gross Domestic Product (G.D.P.) in 1980 was an estimated 4.6 per cent. Nevertheless, Austrian farms produce more than 90 per cent of the country's food requirements and surplus dairy products are exported.

Austria has iron ore and petroleum deposits, lignite, magnesite, lead and some copper. Hydro-electric power resources are being developed and electricity is supplied to neighbouring countries, including a proposed major electricity link with the Soviet Union as of 1985.

After the war about a quarter of Austrian industry was nationalized, including most of the heavy industry. The nationalized sector is responsible for 19 per cent of industrial output. Industrial relations are good. The rate of unemployment in 1981 was 2.2 per cent. Manufacturing employed 33.5 per cent of the labour force and provided 29.4 per cent of the G.D.P. in 1980.

Austria's G.D.P. grew steadily from the 1960s, but dropped by 2 per cent in 1975. The Government reacted by pumping money into the economy; credit was eased, export aid given and taxes curbed, so that personal disposable incomes increased by 2.5 per cent. G.D.P. grew by 4.6 per cent in 1976 but the rate fell to only 0.5 per cent in 1978; in 1979 G.D.P. rose by 4.9 per cent, but in 1980 the increase was only 3.1 per cent. The inflation rate was 3.7 per cent in 1979, the lowest in Europe, and by March 1981 was averaging 6 per cent.

The Government's commitment to a policy of full employment gave rise to the need for a heavy public sector borrowing requirement of around 4.5 per cent of G.N.P. in 1979. The 1977 trade deficit reached a record 71,442 million Schilling but, due to a fall in private consumption and increased foreign demand, the deficit was reduced in 1978. In 1979, however, it reached 60,419 million Schilling, largely due to an ever-increasing fuel import bill, and in 1980 the figure rose again to 87,508 million Schilling. Earnings from tourism offset about 46 per cent of the deficit in 1980. The total value of exports increased by 17.1 per cent in 1979, and by 9.6 per cent in 1980. The improvement in the balance of trade and increased earnings from services resulted in a reduction in the current balance of payments deficit from 49,110 million Schilling in 1977 to 25,881 million in 1979, but in 1980 the deficit increased again to 46,835 million Schilling.

In 1978 the Government introduced various measures to promote investment and in 1979 plans were announced to end subsidies which boost interest rates on private savings deposits. With the prospect of the rising cost of imported energy, the Schilling was revalued by 1.5 per cent in September 1979, although it remained closely linked to the Deutsche Mark. The central bank's discount rate was raised from 3.75 to 5.25 per cent in January 1980 and to 6.75 per cent in March.

Austria became a member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) in 1960. After applications for a form of associate membership of the EEC which would not compromise its neutrality, a bilateral trade agreement with the European Communities came into effect in January 1973.

Transport and Communications

Austria has a highly developed system of public transport by road, rail, air and river. Its geographical situation makes Austria particularly important as a link between West and East Europe and its Alpine passes facilitate north-south communications. The Danube provides Austria with an artery particularly important for the transport of coal, steel, petroleum and other raw materials. A passenger service is maintained on the Upper Danube and between Vienna and the Black Sea. There are six commercial airports, all providing both international and internal services.

Social Welfare

The social insurance system covers all wage earners and salaried employees, agricultural and non-agricultural self-employed and dependants, regardless of nationality. The coverage is compulsory and provides earnings-related benefits in case of old-age, invalidity, death, sickness and maternity and work injury. About 95 per cent of the population are protected. There are separate programmes providing unemployment insurance, family allowance, benefits for war victims, etc.

Education

The central controlling body is the Federal Ministry of Education and the Arts, higher education and research coming under the auspices of the Federal Ministry of Science and Research. Provincial boards (Landesschulräte) supervise school education in each of the nine federal provinces.

Education is free and compulsory between the ages of 6 and 15 years. All children undergo four years' primary education at a Volksschule, after which they choose between two principal forms of secondary education. This may be a Hauptschule which, after four years, may be followed by one of a variety of schools offering technical, vocational and other specialized training, some of which provide a qualification for university. Alternatively, secondary education may be obtained in an Allgemeinbildende höhere Schule which provides an eight-year general education covering a wide range of subjects, culminating in the Reifeprüfung or Matura. This gives access to all Austrian universities. Since 1977/78, however, all Austrian citizens over the age of 24, and with professional experience, may attend certain university courses in connection with their professional career or trade.

Opportunities for further education exist in six universities as well as 14 specialist colleges, all of which have university status, and schools of technology, art and music. Institutes of adult education (Volkshochschulen) are found in all provinces, as are other centres run by public authorities, church organizations and the Austrian Trade Union Federation.

Tourism

Austria's mountains, forests and valleys make it an ideal resort in both summer and winter. Celebrated beauty spots are the Salzkammergut Lake District, the Tyrol and Vorarlberg valleys and the Vienna woodlands. Vienna is a centre for music and art lovers and historians, with its opera houses and concert halls, art galleries and museums. In winter thousands of visitors go to Austrian skiing resorts. Festivals are held all over Austria in the summer. Internationally famous are the Vienna Festival and the Salzburg Music Festival. Receipts from tourism totalled 75,045 million Schilling (gross) in 1980.

Public Holidays

1982: April 12th (Easter Monday), May 1st (Labour Day), May 20th (Ascension Day), May 31st (Whit Monday), June 10th (Corpus Christi), August 15th (Assumption of the Virgin), October 26th (National Holiday, Flag Day), November 1st (All Saints' Day), December 8th (Immaculate Conception), December 25th (Christmas), December 26th (St. Stephen's Day).

1983: January 1st (New Year's Day), January 6th (Epiphany).

THE CONSTITUTION

Austria is a democratic republic, having a president (Bundespräsident), elected directly by the people, and a two-chamber legislature, the Federal Assembly. The republic is organized on the federal system, comprising the provinces (Länder) of Burgenland, Carinthia, Lower Austria, Upper Austria, Salzburg, Styria, Tyrol, Vorarlberg and Vienna. There is universal suffrage for men and women over the age of 19.

The Nationalrat (National Council) consists of 183 members, elected by universal direct suffrage, according to a system of proportional representation. It functions for a period of four years.

The Bundesrat (Federal Council) represents the federal provinces. Vienna sends 12 members, Lower Austria 11, Styria 9, Upper Austria 9, Carinthia 4, Tyrol 4, and the other provinces 3 each, making 58 in all. The seats are divided between the parties according to the number of seats they hold in the provincial assemblies and are held during the life of the provincial government which they represent. Each province in turn provides the chairman for six months.

For certain matters of special importance the two chambers meet together; this is known as a Bundesversammlung.

The President, elected by popular vote, is the Head of State, and he holds office for six years. He is eligible for re-election only once in succession. Although he is invested with special emergency powers, he normally acts on the authority of the Government, and it is the Government which is responsible to the National Council for governmental policy.

The Government consists of the Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor and the other ministers, who may vary in number. The Chancellor is chosen by the President, usually from the party with the strongest representation in the newly elected National Council, and the other ministers are then chosen by the President on the advice of the Chancellor.

If the National Council passes an explicit vote of "no confidence" in the Federal Government or individual members thereof, the Federal Government or the Federal Minister concerned shall be removed from office.

All new acts must be read and put to the vote in both houses. A new bill goes first to the National Council, where it usually has three readings, and secondly to the Federal Council, where it can be held up, but not vetoed.

The Constitution also provides for appeals by the Government to the electorate on specific points by means of referendum. There is further provision that if 200,000 or more electors present a petition to the Government, the Government must lay it before the National Council.

The Landtag (Provincial Assembly) exercises the same functions in each province as the National Council does in the State. The members of the Landtag elect a government (Landesregierung) consisting of a provincial governor (Landeshauptmann) and his councillors (Landesräte). They are responsible to the Landtag.

The spheres of legal and administrative competence of both national and provincial governments are clearly defined. The Constitution distinguishes four groups:

1. Law-making and administration are the responsibility of the State: e.g. foreign affairs, justice and finance.

2. Law-making is the responsibility of the State, administration is the responsibility of the provinces: e.g. elections, population matters and road traffic.

3. The State lays down the rudiments of the law, the provinces make the law and administer it: e.g. charity, rights of agricultural workers, land reform.

4. Law-making and administration are the responsibility of the provinces in all matters not expressly assigned to the State: e.g. municipal affairs, building theatres and cinemas.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Austrian legal system is based on the principle of a division between legislative, administrative and judicial power. There are three supreme courts (Verfassungsgerichtshof, Verwaltungsgerichtshof and Oberster Gerichtshof). The judicial courts are organized into about 200 local courts (Bezirksgerichte), 17 provincial and district courts (Landes und Kreisgerichte), and 4 higher provincial courts (Oberlandesgerichte) in Vienna, Graz, Innsbruck and Linz.

SUPREME ADMINISTRATIVE COURTS

Verfassungsgerichtshof (Constitutional Court): Vienna I, Judenplatz 11; f. 1919; deals with matters affecting the Constitution, examines the legality of legislation and administration; Pres. Univ. Prof. Dr. ERWIN MELICHAR; Vice-Pres. Prof. Dr. KURT RINGHOFER.

Verwaltungsgerichtshof (Administrative Court): Vienna I, Judenplatz 11; deals with matters affecting the legality of administration; Pres. Dr. WALTER RATH; Vice-Pres. Dr. FRIEDRICH LEHNE.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

Oberster Gerichtshof: Vienna I, Museumstrasse 12; Pres. Dr. RUDOLF HARTMANN; Vice-Pres. Dr. OTTO OBAUER, Dr. LEOPOLD WURZINGER.

THE PRESS

Austria's Wiener Zeitung, founded in 1703, is the oldest daily paper published in the world, and Austria's press history dates back to 1605, when its first newspaper was published. The Press Law of 1922 states that "The freedom of the Press is assured and subject only to the limitations defined in this law".

Reform has been demanded in the Press Law with particular regard to right of reply. According to this section of law, any person or persons who feel themselves to have been subject to an incorrect statement in the Press can (and often do) demand to have a formal reply of equal volume and position published in the offending newspaper. This is regarded by the majority of the Press as an obstacle to its freedom. Other objections have been raised on such points as the lack of constitutional guarantees for freedom of opinion and circulation, and the compulsory supply of copy to the Ministry of the Interior. A newspaper's registered Verantwortlicher Redakteur (Responsible Editor) is penally liable for material printed which contravenes the law on such points as libel or "corruption of minors".

For many years no "Responsible Editor" has been imprisoned, although fines have been imposed and issues confiscated. In practice there is complete freedom of opinion and circulation in the Austrian Press subject to the restrictions of the 1922 Press Law.

In 1961 the Austrian Press Council (Presserat) was founded. It consists of representatives of the publishers and journalists and its principal duties are to watch over the freedom of the Press and to ascertain grievances of the Press. The political parties each have at least one newspaper, and independent papers tend to follow a political line. Although there is a strong provincial Press in Graz, Linz, Salzburg and Innsbruck, the country's Press is centred in Vienna. The four highest circulation dailies are the Neue Kronen-Zeitung, the Kurier, the Kleine Zeitung (Graz) and the Arbeiter-Zeitung. Die Presse (independent), the Arbeiter-Zeitung (socialist) and the Salzburger Nachrichten (independent) are the country's most respected dailies.

BANKS

CENTRAL BANK

Oesterreichische Nationalbank (Austrian National Bank): 1090 Vienna, Otto Wagner-Platz 3; f. 1923; Pres. Prof. Dr. STEPHAN KOREN; Gen. Man. Dkfm. Dr. HEINZ KIENZL; 7 brs.

Banks in Austria belong to one of four groups. The first group of so-called commercial banks, which operate on a national basis, includes private banks and the Austrian subsidiaries of foreign credit institutes. The second group consists of the regional banks, which mainly provide mortgage facilities. The third group comprises specialized banks concerned primarily with investment and credit facilities. In the fourth group of multi-functional banks are the Savings Banks, of which there were 168 in 1977, Raiffeisenkassen (Co-operative Banks) and the Volksbanken. Both the Savings and Co-operative banks provide most retail bank services. Legislation which came into effect on March 1st, 1979, further liberalizes credit law and encourages the trend towards universal banking. Banking secrecy and advantages such as no limit on foreign deposits have made Austria as attractive as Switzerland as a secure repository for foreign capital.

NATIONALIZED INDUSTRIES

After the Second World War the Nationalrat passed a law giving the State control in the sectors concerned with coal and ore mining, iron and steel, non-ferrous metals, mineral oil production and processing, chemical production, electricity and engineering and shipbuilding. Nationalized industries now employ about one-sixth of industrial workers and contribute one-fifth of the country's industrial production. To rationalize the administration of the State's interest in these concerns and their subsidiaries, a Federal Law passed in January 1970 transferred the controlling interest to the Austrian Nationalized Industries Holding Company (ÖIAG).

Österreichische Industrieverwaltungs-Aktiengesellschaft (ÖIAG) (Austrian Nationalized Industries Holding Company): 1015 Vienna I, Kantgasse 1, Postfach 99; f. 1970 to form an effective co-ordination of the nationalized enterprises on the basis of economic management and to promote research activities in the subsidiary companies; Chair. TRADE FAIRS

Trade Fairs play an important part in the economic life of Austria. The largest are held during the spring and autumn at Vienna, but there are also a number of important fairs held in the provinces.

Vienna International Trade Fair: 1020 Vienna, Messege-lände; f. 1921; twice yearly (March and September); exhibits of all categories except cars, lorries, etc.; 40 countries represented; average number of visitors 650,000; Pres. MANFRED MAUTNER MARKHOF; Dir.-Gen. ALFRED HINTSCHIG; Dirs. ALFRED DRAXLER, Dr. REGINALD FÖLDY.

Dornbirner Messe Gesellschaft mbH: Messestrasse 4, 6850 Dornbirn; annually (July); main emphasis on the textile industry; average number of visitors 250,000.

Grazer Süd-Ost-Messe: Messeplatz 1, P.O.B. 63, 8011 Graz; f. 1906; twice yearly (May and October); exhibits of all categories, but special emphasis on agriculture, iron and steel, hotel and building equipment; average number of visitors 500,000; Dir. JOSEPH STOEFFLER.

Innsbrucker Messe Ges. m.b.H.: 6020 Innsbruck, Maria-Theresien-Strasse 45; annually (September); mainly devoted to tourism and equipment for the tourist; average number of visitors 200,000.

Österreichische Holzmesse-Klagenfurter Messe (Austrian Timber Fair): Messedirektion, 9021 Klagenfurt, Postfach 79, Valentin-Leitgeb-Strasse 11; annually (summer season); main emphasis on timber and articles made of wood; average number of visitors 300,000.

Rieder Messe: 4910 Ried im Innkreis, Postfach 61; holds International Agricultural Fair and Ried Spring Fair in alternate years; over 1,000,000 visitors.

Welscher Messe: 4601 Wels, Messege-lände; every 2 years; agriculture, cattle-breeding, industry, trade; average number of visitors 1,300,000.

TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

Österreichische Bundesbahnen (ÖBB) (Austrian Federal Railways): Head Office: 1010 Vienna, Elisabethstrasse 9; Dir.-Gen. WOLFGANG PYCHA.

Vienna Divisional Management: 1020 Vienna, Nordbahnstrasse 50; Pres. Dr. ERWIN SEMMELRATH.

Linz Divisional Management: 4020 Linz, Bahnhofstrasse 3; Pres. Dr. KARL STADLER.

Villach Divisional Management: 9500 Villach, 10. Oktoberstrasse 20; Pres. Dipl.-Ing. JOHANN PONTASCH.

Innsbruck Divisional Management: 6020 Innsbruck, Claudiastrasse 2; Pres. Dipl.-Ing. S. KIENPOINTNER.

The Austrian Federal Railways operate 90 per cent of all the railway routes in Austria. There are approximately 5,850 km. of track and all main lines are electrified.

Other railway companies include: Achensee Railway, Graz-Köflach Railway, Győr-Sopron-Ebenfurt Railway, Montafon Railway, Stern and Hafferl Light Railways Co., Styrian Provincial Railways, Tirol Zugspitze Railway, Vienna Local Railways, Zillertal Railway (Jenbach-Mayrhofen).

ROADS

There are 106,780 km. of classified roads in Austria of which 938 km. are modern motorway, 10,195 km. main roads and 25,667 km. secondary roads (1980).

INLAND WATERWAYS

Only the Danube is navigable. It enters Austria from Germany at Passau and flows into Hungary near Hainburg. The length of the Austrian section of the river is 351 km. Danube barges carry up to 1,700 tons, but loading depends on the water level which varies much during the year. Cargoes are chiefly mineral oil and derivatives, coal, coke, iron-ore, iron, steel, timber and grain.

Ministry of Transport: 1010 Vienna, Elisabethstrasse 9; responsible for the administration of inland waterways.

Erste Donau-Dampfschiffahrts-Gesellschaft (First Danube Steamship Co.): 1020 Vienna, Handelskai 265; fleet consists of 8 passenger vessels, 9 towboats and pushers, 29 motor-cargoships, 92 cargobarges and lighters, 10 motor tankships, 29 tankbarges and lighters.

Passenger services are provided on Bodensee (Lake Constance) and Wolfgangsee by Austrian Federal Railways, and on all the larger Austrian lakes.

CIVIL AVIATION

The main International Airport is at Schwechat, near Vienna. There are also international flights from Innsbruck, Salzburg, Graz, Klagenfurt and Linz, and internal flights between these cities.

Österreichische Luftverkehrs A.G. (Austrian Airlines): 1107 Vienna, Fontanastrasse 1; f. 1957; serves 42 cities in 30 countries of Europe, North Africa and the Middle East, covering 46,519 km.; external flights from Vienna, Graz, Linz, Klagenfurt and Salzburg to Amsterdam, Athens, Beirut, Belgrade, Berlin, Brussels, Bucharest, Budapest, Cairo, Copenhagen, Damascus, Dhahran, Düsseldorf, Frankfurt, Geneva, Helsinki, Istanbul, Jeddah, Larnaca, London, Madrid, Malta, Manchester, Milan, Moscow, Munich, Nice, Paris, Prague, Rome, Salonica, Sofia, Stockholm, Tel-Aviv, Tripoli, Warsaw and Zürich; Aircraft fleet: 6 DC-9-32, 5 DC-9-51; on order: 5 DC-9-81, 2 Airbus A310-220; Chair. and Dir.-Gen. OTTO BINDER; Man. Dirs. DDr. A. HESCHGL, Dr. H. PAPOUSEK.

Austria is also served by the following foreign airlines which have offices in Vienna: Aeroflot (U.S.S.R.), Aerolineas Argentinas, Air Canada, Air France, Air India, Air Malta, ALIA (Jordan), Alitalia, Avianca (Colombia), Balkan (Bulgaria), British Airways, Canadian Pacific, ČSA (Czechoslovakia), EgyptAir, El Al (Israel), Finnair, Iberia (Spain), Icelandair, Interflug (German Democratic Republic), Iran Air, Iraqi Airways, JAL (Japan), JAT (Yugoslavia), KAL (Republic of Korea), KLM (Netherlands), Kuwait Airways, LOT (Poland), Lufthansa (Federal Republic of Germany), Malév (Hungary), Olympic (Greece), Pan American (U.S.A.), PIA (Pakistan), Qantas (Australia), Royal Air Maroc, SAA (South Africa), Sabena (Belgium), SAS (Sweden), Swissair, TAP (Portugal), TAROM (Romania), Tunis Air, THY (Turkey), TWA (U.S.A.) and Varig (Brazil).

BELGIUM

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Kingdom of Belgium lies in north-west Europe, bounded to the north by the Netherlands, to the east by Luxembourg and the Federal Republic of Germany, to the south by France, and to the west by the North Sea. The climate is temperate. Dutch, spoken in the north (Flanders), and French, spoken in the south (Wallonia), are the two main official languages. A 1963 law established four linguistic regions, the French, Dutch and German-speaking areas and Brussels, which is situated in the Flemish part but has bilingual status. Approximately 55 per cent of the population are Dutch-speaking, 44 per cent French-speaking and 0.6 per cent speak German. The population is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. The national flag (proportions 15 by 13) consists of three equal vertical stripes—black, yellow and red. The capital is Brussels.

Recent History

Since the Second World War, Belgium has become recognized as a leader of international co-operation in Europe. It is a founder member of many important international organizations, including the Council of Europe, the European Communities and the Benelux Economic Union.

The language dispute between the French-speaking Walloons and the Dutch-speaking Flemings has been the main problem in politics since the war, exacerbated by political polarization of north (supporting mainly the conservative Christian Social Party and the nationalist Volksunie and south (predominantly Socialist). One of the main obstacles to resolving the dispute is the status of Brussels, as 85 per cent of its inhabitants are francophone but the Flemish parties refuse to grant it equal status with the other two regional bodies. The French-speaking minority in the capital's Dutch-speaking suburbs contributes to the problem. Gaston Eyskens' government produced moderate constitutional reforms in July 1971 in the first steps towards regional autonomy. In 1972 the succeeding coalition made further concessions, the German-speaking community being represented in the Cabinet for the first time, and in 1973 linguistic parity was assured in central government. Provisional legislation was passed in 1974 establishing separate Regional Councils and Ministerial Committees.

In June 1977 Leo Tindemans formed a coalition between the Christian Social Party, the Socialists and two "linguistic" parties, the Front Démocratique des Francophones (FDF) and the Volksunie. The Cabinet, in what became known as the Egmont Pact, proposed the abolition of the virtually defunct nine-province administration, and devolution of power from the central government to create a federal Belgium, comprising three political and economic regions (Flanders, Wallonia and Brussels), and two linguistic communities. These proposals, however, were not implemented. Tindemans resigned in October 1978 and the Minister of Defence, Paul Vanden Boeynants, took over as Prime Minister in a transitional government. Elections were held in December but the results showed little change in the distribution of seats in Parliament. Four successive Prime Ministers-designate failed to form a new government, the main obstacle again being the future status of Brussels. The six-month crisis was finally resolved when a new coalition government was formed under Dr. Wilfried Martens in April 1979.

In 1980 the linguistic conflict worsened, sometimes involving violent incidents. The Brussels problem, along with disputes over the proposed installation of NATO nuclear missiles in Belgium and cuts in public spending at a time of high unemployment, further weakened the government. It was decided that Flanders and Wallonia would be administered by regional assemblies, with control of cultural matters, public health, roads, urban projects and 10 per cent of the national budget. Brussels was to retain its three-member executive, but a decision about its future was to be made by 1982.

By October Martens had formed four coalition governments, the instability resulting from internal disagreement over his proposals to remedy the economic crisis now facing the country. Rising unemployment and declining productivity overshadowed the traditional regional and linguistic conflicts. Austerity measures proposed by Martens, including a wages freeze, resulted in demonstrations and lost him the support of the Socialist parties. This led to the formation in April 1981 of a new government, led by Mark Eyskens (Christian Social Party), comprising the Christian Social Party and the Socialist parties; the Cabinet remained virtually unchanged, and expressed its intention to promote investment and industrial development while cutting public spending. Lack of parliamentary support for his policies led, however, to Eyskens' resignation in September. The leader of the Freedom and Progress Party (PVV), Willy de Clercq, was entrusted with the task of forming a new coalition government following the general elections of November 1981.

Government

Belgium is a constitutional and hereditary monarchy, comprising nine provinces. Legislative power is vested in the King and the bicameral Parliament (the Senate and the Chamber of Representatives). The Senate has 181 members, including 106 directly elected by universal adult suffrage, 50 elected by provincial councils and 25 co-opted by the elected members. The Chamber has 212 members, all directly elected by popular vote, using proportional representation. Members of both Houses serve for up to four years. Executive power, nominally vested in the King, is exercised by the Cabinet. The King appoints the Prime Minister and, on the latter's advice, other Ministers. The Cabinet is responsible to Parliament. There are political organs representing each of the linguistic regions and the capital (see Recent History).

Defence

Belgium is a member of NATO. The total strength of the armed forces in July 1981 was 89,500 (of whom 24,600 were conscripts), comprising army 65,000, navy 4,400, air force 20,100. The defence budget for 1981 was 87,182 million Belgian francs. Military service lasts eight months for postings to Germany and ten months for conscripts serving in Belgium.

Economic Affairs

Belgium is among the most densely populated countries in Europe and its economy is mainly industrial. Industrial activity has concentrated in recent years in the increasingly populous Flemish areas of the north, but the Government is encouraging re-investment in the southern, Walloon, region. Apart from coal and, to a lesser extent, clay, sand and stone, the country has no natural resources and purchases essential raw materials abroad; thus the vital export trade is dependent largely on the state of the world market. Agriculture employs less than 3 per cent of the workforce and contributes about 2 per cent to G.N.P.

Just under 60 per cent of Belgium's G.D.P. is exported, making it one of the world's principal per caput exporters. About 70 per cent of Belgium's external trade is with other members of the EEC, the Federal Republic of Germany, France and the Netherlands alone accounting for 53 per cent of the total in 1980. Belgium and Luxembourg constitute the Belgo-Luxembourg Economic Union (BLEU) and form a single customs region. Other major trading partners are Switzerland, Sweden, the U.S.A. and Saudi Arabia. Belgium transferred from the European currency "snake" to the new European Monetary System (EMS) in 1979 in a grid of nearly-fixed parities. The central exchange rates and fluctuation margins within which they were operating before its introduction remained unchanged. The Belgian franc reached a record level against the U.S. dollar in October 1979.

The main problems since 1978 have been public spending, the state of the Belgian franc and unemployment, which affected 7.4 per cent of the labour force in December 1978. Unemployment is particularly serious in Wallonia, due mainly to the contraction of the steel and textile industries which are the traditional mainstays of Belgium's economy. In July 1981 it reached 9.6 per cent, the highest in the EEC, despite numerous job creation schemes and the reduction of working hours in some companies. In 1980 the steel industry was making heavy losses and plans were implemented to merge the two largest steel concerns.

Belgium's G.N.P. registered an average annual increase of only 1.5 per cent for 1974-78. However, the increase was 2 per cent in 1978 and 3.5 per cent in 1979. Industrial output fell by 5 per cent in 1980 as recession affected Belgium's heavy industries and there were several closures in the steel, motor vehicle and textile sectors. Inflation-indexed wage rises also contributed to a total public debt of an estimated BF 2,700,000 million at the end of 1980.

In 1978, for the first time in ten years, Belgium began a programme of large-scale foreign borrowing to help finance its large, mostly domestic, public sector deficit (which had been aggravated by large payments of unemployment benefits, job creation projects, rising petroleum prices and public investment) and for further efforts to revitalize the steel and textile industries, such as the formation of the Société Financière de la Sidérurgie in April 1980. The foreign debt stood at over BF 250,000 million in April 1981.

In 1978 the Government committed itself to severe deflationary policies: the inflation rate was reduced to 4.4 per cent in 1979 but rose to 7.8 per cent in the year to July 1981. In March 1981 the bank discount rate was forced up to a record 16 per cent to protect the Belgian franc, which fell to its lowest permitted level on the EMS scale, following speculative selling on the foreign exchange markets as the Government came under pressure to devalue the franc. By May 1981 the bank rate had been cut to 13 per cent. In an effort to decrease the budget deficit, which stood at BF 111,600 million in April, higher taxes were imposed and public spending cut by 2.2 per cent, excluding only unemployment benefit (already with a deficit of 20,000 million francs), public debt repayment and education. Value added tax rose from 16 to 17 per cent in June 1981 to compensate for a BF 30,000 million programme of aid to industry. The projected budget deficit for 1981 was BF 187,000 million. In April 1981 the public sector shortfall was running at approximately BF 320,000 million.

Transport and Communications

The Société Nationale des Chemins de Fer Belges maintains the main-line railway network while the Société Nationale des Chemins de Fer Vicinaux operates most of the bus and tram services. The modernized port of Antwerp, now the second biggest in Europe, is being further extended to make it accessible to vessels of 125,000 tons, compared with the current limit of 75,000 tons. In 1980 further investment was made in a project to extend liquefied gas facilities at Zeebrugge harbour. The main international airport is at Brussels, with two others at Antwerp and Ostend.

Social Welfare

Social welfare is mainly administered by the National Office for Social Security. Contributions are paid by employers and employees towards family allowances, health insurance, unemployment and pensions. Most allowances and pensions are tied to the cost of living index. Workers and employees are entitled to 4 weeks holiday for every twelve month period of work. They are insured against accidents occurring on the work premises or on the way to and from work. Medical care is free to widows, pensioners, orphans and the disabled. Ordinary and supplementary family allowances are the entitlement of all families. Social welfare is also administered at a local level by Public Assistance Commissions which have been set up in every municipality.

Education

Education in Belgium is compulsory from 6 to 14 years of age. Two separate education systems exist: the école officielle is a state secular school and the école libre is a private denominational school (usually Roman Catholic) receiving state subsidies. Under the 1963 Language of Instruction Act teaching is given in the language of the region; in the Brussels district teaching is in the mother language of the pupil.

There are state financed nursery schools for children of 2½ to 5 years old, attended by about 90 per cent of infants. Elementary education is for children aged 6 to 12 years and consists of three courses of two years each. Secondary education lasts for a maximum of six years and is also divided into three two-year cycles. The Diploma of Secondary Education may be gained after an additional two years of higher teacher training.

The requirement for university entrance is a pass in the "examination of maturity", taken after the completion of secondary studies. Courses are divided into 2-3 years of general preparation followed by 2-3 years of specialization. There are five universities, two of which are divided into French and Dutch-speaking sections, and several university centres or faculties. There are also non-university institutions of higher education for those who have successfully completed their secondary studies. These provide arts education, technical training or higher teacher training (i.e. for secondary school).

The National Study Fund provides grants where necessary and nearly 20 per cent of students are receiving scholarships. Annual educational expenditure amounts to almost 20 per cent of the total budget.

Tourism

There are towns of rich historic and cultural interest

THE CONSTITUTION

The Belgian Constitution has been considerably modified by amendment since its origin in 1831. Belgium is a constitutional monarchy. The central legislature consists of a Chamber of Representatives and a Senate. The Chamber of Representatives consists of 212 members, who are elected for four years unless the Chamber is dissolved before that time has elapsed. Belgium entered 1971 with a rewritten Constitution, differing from its predecessor mainly in its treatment of the two cultural entities. Since then all Belgians have been officially recognized as either Flemings or Walloons, and each community has regional powers in cultural and economic affairs. Before this there had been juridical recognition of the separate, bilingual status of Brussels, and provision made for the creation of regional political organs for Brussels, Flanders and Wallonia.

ELECTORAL SYSTEM

Members must be twenty-five years of age, and they are elected by secret ballot according to a system of proportional representation. Suffrage is universal for citizens of eighteen years or over, and voting is compulsory.

The Senate, or Second Chamber, is chosen in the following manner. It is composed of:

(1) Half as many members as the Chamber of Representatives, elected directly by the same electors.

(2) Members chosen by the Provincial Councillors, in the proportion of one for every 200,000 population.

(3) Members co-opted by groups (1) and (2), up to half the number of group (2).

There are now 181 Senators.

All Senators must be over 40, with the exception of a small number of members of the Royal Family, who become Senators by right at the age of 18. Members are elected for four years.

THE CROWN

The King has the right to veto legislation, but he does not exercise it. Though he is supreme Head of the Executive, he in fact exercises his control through the Cabinet, which is responsible for all acts of government to the Chamber of Representatives. Though the King, according to the Constitution, appoints his own ministers, in practice, since they are responsible to the Chamber of Representatives and need its confidence, they are generally the choice of the Representatives. Similarly, the Royal initiative is in the hands of the ministry.

LEGISLATION

Legislation is introduced either by the Government or the members in the two Houses, and as the party complexion of both Houses is generally almost the same, measures passed by the Chamber of Representatives are usually passed by the Senate. Each House elects its own President at the beginning of the session, who acts as an impartial Speaker, although he is a party nominee. The Houses elect their own committees, through which all legislation passes. They are so well organized that through them the Legislature has considerable power of control over the Cabinet. Nevertheless, according to the Constitution (Art. 68), certain treaties must be communicated to the Chamber only as soon as the "interest and safety of the State permit". Further, the Government possesses an important power of dissolution which it uses; a most unusual feature is that it may be applied to either House separately or to both together (Art. 71).

Revision of the Constitution is to be first settled by an ordinary majority vote of both Houses, specifying the article to be amended. The Houses are then automatically dissolved. The new Chambers then determine the amendments to be made, with the provision that in each House the presence of two-thirds of the members is necessary for a quorum, and a two-third majority of those voting is required.

LOCAL ADMINISTRATION

The system of local government conforms to the general European practice of being based on a combination of central officials as the executive agent and locally elected councillors as the deliberating body. The areas are the provinces and the communes, and the latter are empowered by Art. 108 of the Constitution to associate for the purposes of better government.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The independence of the judiciary is based on the constitutional division of power between the legislative, executive and judicial bodies, each of which acts independently. Judges are appointed by the Crown for life, and cannot be removed except by judicial sentence. The law of 1967, in force since 1970, unified civil procedure in the district courts, and reorganized the courts' areas of competence. Each of Belgium's nine provinces is divided into judicial districts. The judiciary is organized on four levels, from the judicial canton to the district, regional and national courts. The lowest courts are those of the Justices of the Peace, of which there are 222, and the Police Tribunals (20); each type of district court numbers 26, 1 in each canton, including the Tribunals of the First Instance, Tribunals of Commerce, and Labour Tribunals. There are 5 regional Courts of Appeal, 5 regional Labour Courts, and 1 Court of Assizes in each province. The highest courts are the 5 civil and criminal Courts of Appeal, the 5 Labour Courts and the supreme Court of Cassation. The Military Court is in Brussels.

Mission Evangélique Belge: 7 rue du Moniteur, Brussels; f. 1918; about 2,000 mems.; publ. Belgian Beacon.

THE PRESS

Article Eighteen of the Belgian constitution states: "The Press is free; no form of censorship may ever be instituted; no cautionary deposit may be demanded from writers, publishers or printers. When the author is known and is resident in Belgium, the publisher, printer or distributor may not be prosecuted."

There are over 30 general information dailies, 20 of which are autonomous, the remainder depending largely or totally on the former (some are only, under a different title, regional editions of a larger paper).

There is a trend towards concentration. The "Le Soir" group consists of six dailies. The only other significant group consists of three Catholic papers linked with De Standaard.

Most of the important newspapers are family concerns, and family interests predominate even when newspapers have multiple ownership. Examples of family ownership of major papers are as follows: Le Soir (Rossel), Het Laatste Nieuws (Hoste), La Libre Belgique (Jourdain), La Dernière Heure (Brébart), Het Belang van Limburg (Theelen).

Although there are few official political organs, it should be mentioned that nearly all the Belgian dailies have political leanings. Vooruit and De Volksgazet are semi-official organs of the Belgian Socialist Party. It is not, however, possible to establish a parallel between the supporters of the parties and the readership of the dailies. For example, the readers of the Socialist newspapers are far fewer than those who vote for that party, and though Le Soir claims its neutrality with regard to the parties, it nevertheless adopts a decided viewpoint in many cases.

Although there is no easy division of the daily papers into popular and serious press, most papers strive to give a serious news coverage. The widest circulating dailies in French are: Le Soir (233,148), La Meuse/La Lanterne (160,280), La Libre Belgique (125,000) and La Dernière Heure (125,000); and in Dutch: Het Laatste Nieuws (308,000), De Standaard/Nieuwsblad (333,625), Het Volk (201,633) and Gazet Van Antwerpen (188,432). The major weeklies include Panorama/Ons Land (99,000) and Le Soir Illustré (104,000), the latter associated with the daily Le Soir; and the cultural periodicals Pourquoi Pas? (78,000) and Knack (80,000). The popular women's periodical Femmes d'Aujourd'hui (170,612) has considerable sales in France. Some periodicals are printed in French and in Dutch.
